

Chicago to Loose Bears Tonight Seeking Grid Revenge

COLLEGE STARS TIE RANKING

Morse Not Included, Lineup for Start; Coach for All-Stars Hopeful

By CHARLES DUNKLEY CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—(P)—The big bad Bears are going on a prowl for revenge tomorrow night. Defenders of professional football, Chicago's Bears will battle a team of college all-stars, the pick of the nation, at Soldier Field in what is certain to be a stirring football conflict. A crowd of 80,000 to 85,000 will tax the seating capacity to view the game.

Bears Prepared
The Bears, ready for the fight of their lives after 17 days of earnest preparation, are determined to wipe out the stigma of last year's scoreless tie and establish that professional football is superior to the college game.

The coaches predict a wide-open battle, with thrilling forward passing and desperate line plunging.

Said Frank Thomas, Alabama head coach of the All-Stars:

Thomas Optimistic
"The way the two teams have been hearing down has been one of my most gratifying experiences in football. They are determined to win. I feel confident they will do it."

The Bears returned from their camp at Delafield, Wis., confident and ready. They went through a routine drill at Soldier Field tonight.

The players' only concern was the starting lineup. Every member of the squad was anxious for a first crack at the collegians.

The game will start at 7:30 p. m., central standard time and will be broadcast.

Cards Blast Phillies in Two Games

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 28.—(P)—The league-leading St. Louis Cardinals stormed through to a double victory over the Phillies today before a record week-day throng of 14,000 and increased their lead to 2½ games over the New York Giants, who lost twice to Pittsburgh. The scores were 5 to 1 and 13 to 5.

Led by Pepper Martin, who belted a home run in the sixth inning of each game, the Cardinals with the bases full when the Cards were experiencing difficulties, the league leaders piled up a total of 27 hits. The Phils got only 15 in the two games although they held the lead for five innings of the afterpiece.

Stars That Are Dimmed

JUST to show that you can't get by on a reputation in the big leagues, several of the big "name" players of the majors have found the going plenty tough this season, though by rights they should be right up at the top.

Lefty Gomez, Yankee portside paragon, who was undisputed leader of the American League pitching parade last year, is now far down in the ruck and will be fortunate to win as many games as he loses during the present campaign. The slender scion of the slab is in the midst of an off-year, and is having the worst season of his career.

Even though his earned-run average is more than fair, proving that he is still quite effective in fooling enemy swarms, the gallant if goofy Gomez just can't seem to hit a winning stride. His famed "gopher" ball, so-called because it can always be counted on to "go for" four bases whenever he throws it, is once more in evidence, bringing disaster in its wake; as a result, the senior is very sad these days.

Another big gun of the Yanks, Lois Gehrig, is in the throes of a slump this season, after leading both leagues in practically every department of slugging in 1934. Loosie is over the 300 mark at this writing, but is still far below any of his last year's figures.

Supposed to be the bright star of a rather drab outfit, the far-famed Al Simmons, slugger extraordinary of the White Sox, is collecting horse-collars instead of home-runs this season, while his unheralded team-mates are running wild to make the Pale Hose the surprise team of the year. If Al, who hit a healthy 345 last season, was smacked on the horseshoe at that rate now, Jimmy Dykes might be piloting a pennant winner in the Windy City.

One of last year's pitching phenoms was the much-ballyhooed Paul "Daffy" Dean, who rolled up a brilliant first-year record with the Cardinals and showed so much stuff that he was freely predicted that he would outshine even the great Dizzy this season. Unfortunately for the younger Dean, current pitching averages list him down among the huriling rabble with a mediocre winning percentage, while brother Diz continues to bask in the top flight twirling spotlight.

behind the steady pitching of Johnny Allen and Charley Ruffing to win both ends of a doubleheader from the White Sox, 9 to 1 and 5 to 2 today after splitting three straight double hits. Lou Gehrig hits his 27th homer in the second clash.
