Difference of $125,000 to Be Made Up if People, Legislature Favor

080, which is the same amount it would have contributed under the board's original purchase offer of $700,000. The $700,000 offer was $50,000 short of the sum for the campus, aside from the site for the school in Bush's pasture, which the Willamette trustees had demanded, which difference deadlocked the campus negotiations until the city of Salem stepped in yesterday.

The pledge made by the city of Salem through its councilmen, subject to vote of citizens on the bond issue, calls for the difference between the $385,000 and the 55 per cent loan portion of the $750,000 or $27,500, and in addition the sum of $75,000 required for the purchase of 34 acres of land in Bush's pasture for a new Willamette university campus grounds.

While the governor stated definitely that he would recommend the Willamette site for the new capitol, he announced that the board of control is also making application to the public works administration for a loan and a grant on approximately 95 acres south of the Salem city limits, known as Candelaria park and valued at about $89,000. Options have been obtained on virtually all of this tract, the board of control was informed. This land is more familiarly known as the Grabenhorst hill tract. In connection with this possibility, the attorney general is preparing a legal opinion as to legality of constructing the capitol outside of the city limits of Salem, designated by statute as the permanent seat of Oregon's government.

The Grabenhorst hill site and Ben Lomond park, also south of town and outside the city limits, will both be submitted to the legislature as possible building sites for the state, but without specific recommendation of the governor, officials said.

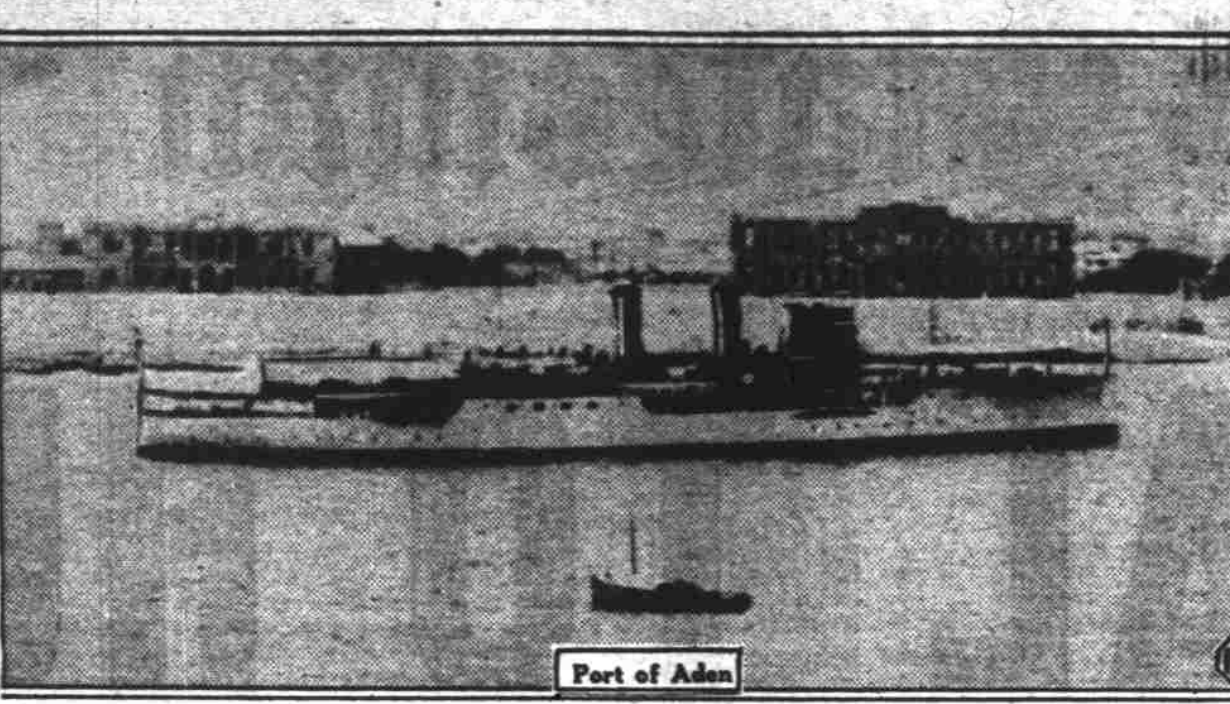

All Sites Proposed Will Be Submitted
"Though priority will be given to the Willamette site proposal by the board in making application for a PWA site grant, it must be understood that all sites proposed to the board will be submitted to the legislature when it convenes," Governor Martin said in explaining these moves.

Announcement of the climax to the negotiations between the Willamette trustees and the state, coming on heels of the city's intervention, was made by Governor Martin yesterday morning following a conference between the governor, Secretary of State Earl Snell, members of the Willamette campus negotiating committee and the committee of Salem citizens.

Under the now acceptable plan, the state capitol will add 18 acres from the Willamette campus to the old statehouse grounds and the whole will be thrown into a square, by adding the part of Wilson park lying east of the west line of Winter street and westing State street from Winter to 13th street and also vacating Waverly street. The latter street, running from State to Court between the old capitol grounds and the supreme court and state office building block, the city council will be adequate to vacate.

This proposed state building square will be adequate for many years into the future, and will meet with the ideas submitted to

Where British Lion Will Watch Italy's Movements

From this stronghold, the Port of Aden, located at the eastern entrance to the Red sea, directly opposite Ethiopia, the British lion will watch Italy's movements in the critical Suez canal zone. A British cruiser is shown in the harbor, which is at the eastern mouth of Suez.

Governor Martin in the new state capitol on the Willamette site and released from the state planning board by the public works committee, Jamieson Parker, Ormand R. Bean and Philip A. Parsons.
Governor Martin, following the conference, made it clear that final decision on location of the new capitol building lies entirely with the state legislature, to which the governor and other members of the board of control will submit all available data on all proposed sites.
Mayor Kuhn said last night the date for the special bond election which will be held to raise the Salem quota on the compromise agreement will be set within the next two weeks.

Salem's gift toward the state capitol on the Willamette site and Willamette at Bush's pasture will be subject to legislative approval of a special election in Salem to increase the tax levy for bond issue, say leaders in the movement.
The city's pledge for the Willamette site only for the new statehouse structure and will not be binding unless provisions of the agreement on the deal with Willamette university are carried to conclusion.
Governor Martin said application for the sum to be used in construction of the new Willamette buildings should reach Washington not later than Friday. Accompanying it will also be the application for the hill site.
Commending Salem citizens upon their move yesterday, Governor Martin stated, "It demonstrates a vision into the future needs of the state and confidence in both the state and their city, as well as an appreciation of their designation as the capital city of Oregon."

Secretary of State Snell also expressed pleasure over the agreement reached yesterday.
In their agreement to the plan as announced following the joint session yesterday, Willamette university trustees asked that the school be allowed the use of Lausanne hall, the women's dormitory on the southwest edge of the present campus, for a period of five years.

Expressing appreciation for the opportunity for a new Willamette campus, Dr. Bruce R. Baxter, president of Willamette university, last night stated that the continued interest on the part of Governor Martin, his board and the people of Salem lays only an added obligation on the school to further cooperate in the movement toward future development of the state's center.
Earlier in the day Dr. Baxter had attended the meeting of state, city and school officials, in which Salem promised to float a $75,000 municipal bond issue to purchase a new site for the university, provided the state would buy the old campus for its capitol buildings.
"We deeply appreciate the unprecedented opportunity for a new campus and buildings, and although we are not anxious to sell, Willamette will never stand in the way of a greater state of Oregon," Baxter said he hoped nothing would be done that would in any way depart from the ideals and traditions of Willamette's earlier days.

ever, several times has released for publication the statement that when application had been made for capitol funds to the public works administration at Washington he would do his utmost to see that Oregon's application was given special consideration.

Stand of the Willamette trustees on modification of PWA regulations in the construction of campus buildings, Senator McNary indicated some time ago would probably not meet with serious difficulties in the state's plan to obtain $2,500,000 for capitol plus $750,000 for site of the same. The government would furnish 45 per cent of the funds and the state 55 per cent.

BULLET FATAL TO HUEY LONG

Delirious, Talks About His Book in Which He Takes Presidential Role

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 9. — (AP) — Behind closed hospital doors, Huey P. Long waged a desperate battle tonight against words of an assassin's bullet—a battle physicians expected to last three days before there is a definite turn.

The senator underwent an emergency operation and a blood transfusion last night shortly after being taken to the operating table from the crowded corridor of the statehouse where he was shot by Dr. C. A. Weiss, jr., son-in-law of one of Long's political opponents.

The physician, himself shot to death by state police and bodyguards, was buried late today after funeral services at St. Joseph's Catholic church, of which he was a member. Undertakers said there were thirty bullet holes in his body.
Recent suggestion of candidacy recalled
Baton Rouge seethed with activity all day. The Louisiana empire over which Long ruled was shocked by the suddenness of the attack, but a coroner's inquest heard witnesses describe the shooting and the legislature rushed through new laws designed to strengthen Long's "dictatorship." Hundreds of messages poured into Baton Rouge.

Senator Long on a recent visit to New York said he would run as an Independent in 1936 if the democrats re-nominate the president, the republicans choose Herbert Hoover "and if there is no liberal candidate in the field."
Today one of his "share-the-wealth" clubs announced plans to open offices for "Long-for-president."

On being informed of her son's death, Mrs. C. A. Weiss, sr., said: "When he did a thing like that, he must have known he would be killed instantly but they (the bodyguards) didn't have to kill him the way they did. They didn't have to kill him at all."
"The only thing I am grateful for in this terrible thing is this: Thank God, Senator Long was not killed. I thank God for that. My boy is dead but I would never want that on his soul."
Lieutenant-Governor Gives First Blood
Lieutenant-Governor James Noe, one of hundreds of volunteers, gave the blood for the first transfusion. The donor of the blood in the second was not announced.

Armed guards swarmed over the capital today. Troops were held in readiness in New Orleans. Police were ordered to shoot any photographer attempting to take pictures of the hospital and men with sawed-off shotguns and rifles were in front of the governor's office, where Long was wounded.

The legislature just had recessed last night when the attack came. The senator, in characteristic fashion, strode out of the chamber, accompanied by his bodyguard and Supreme Court Justice John B. Fournet.
"Everybody be here in the morning," Long called to his aides. "Tell everybody to be here."
Weiss had been waiting in the senator's private quarters for a few minutes before said they heard him mutter:
"It won't be long now."
The 39-year-old eye, ear, nose and throat specialist, who had a brilliant career, stepped up to Long, pulled a pistol from inside his white linen suit, and pulled the trigger.

Justice Fournet lunged at him, deflecting the bullet. Then the gun jammed. But one bullet had struck Long.
In an instant there was a roar from the gang of the bodyguards and state police.
Little indication Given of His Plot
Weiss crumpled to the floor and from all sides of the crowded $5,000,000 skyscraper statehouse there came a surge of people.
The senator staggered down the basement steps and was rushed to the hospital by a friend of Long, Weiss, who studied at Tulane and had studied in Paris and Vienna, was an interne in Bellevue hospital, New York. He went on a family outing yesterday, seemed in good spirits and left home shortly before the shooting, apparently to see a patient.

The first complete bulletin on Senator Long's condition was issued Monday, Sept. 9. — (AP) — Baby Arizmendi, Mexican claimant of the world featherweight boxing championship, out-pointed Mickey Genaro, New York, in 10 rounds tonight.

LONG PRIDED SELF UPON GOOD HEALTH
WASHINGTON, Sept. 9. — (AP) — Senator Long (D-La.) prided himself on his physical condition during the recent session of congress.
When he appeared at his office the day after his 16-hour filibuster, he told a reporter he felt "fresh as a daisy except for a little hoarseness, and that will work out as soon as I start talking again." Then he added:
"My boy, never drink and never smoke, and eat lots of vegetables. Then you'll keep in trim."
To a question, "Why, senator, how long have you been on the wagon?" Long laconically replied, "Almost eighteen months."

Half Dozen Fires In Douglas Held To Be Incendiary
Reports of a half dozen incendiary forest fires in the Tillier district of Douglas county were received at the state forestry department Monday, Lynn Cronmiller, state forester, announced.
Cronmiller said he had sent more than 100 men to fight the fires and others would be assembled by the federal forestry officials.
Most of the other fires reported during the past week are under control, Cronmiller said.

Tragedy-Inured Searchers Comb Florida Keys; Pyres Complete Work of Storms

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 9. — (AP) — Two hundred fifty picked men, well hardened to tragedy, beat back and forth across Florida's keys today seeking more victims of Monday night's hurricane as FERA began discussing reconstruction plans.

Funeral pyres, scattered through the islets that felt the storm's blast, carried forward the work of destruction begun by the storm and its accompanying tidal waves, and Sheriff D. C. Coleman, heading operations, hoped to have the grim work done by the weekend.
Conrad A. Hyman, FERA administrator, announced he would seek $200,000 to $400,000 for partial rehabilitation and repair of storm damage in the keys and other areas. Civilian rehabilitation in the keys, he said, will be handled by the Red Cross.
Van Hyman conferred with Aubrey Williams, personal representative of federal relief administrator Harry Hopkins and President Roosevelt, whose investigation of circumstances of the disaster that took more than 400 lives, most of them war veterans working in three rehabilitation camps, brought him the conclusion that it was "an act of God."

Callers Witnesses
G. A. Worley, state's attorney who is conducting an investigation of the storm for Governor Sholtz, said he had issued subpoenas for "half a dozen persons from the keys, including camp officials, pioneer residents and others reported to have been killed."
Most observers, after studying the Red Cross lists of missing and checking the number of bodies found, placed the figure between 450 and 500. Today, the Red Cross was informed, more than 200 bodies had been cremated.
From all over the United States came queries from relatives seeking definite word concerning the fate of the missing, but it seems the only hope for identification lay in finger prints and possible identifying articles taken from the dead before hasty burial or cremation.

used at 6:45 o'clock this morning, it said:
"Senator Long was shot through the right upper quadrant of the abdomen, the bullet going through the body."
There were two penetrations of the transverse colon, and considerable hemorrhage from the mesentery and the omentum.
"The patient's condition is satisfactory, and no important information will be available for about 72 hours."
Hundreds of persons attended funeral services for Dr. Weiss. Floral offerings were banked high in a room of the Rabenhorst funeral home. Automobiles lined the streets for blocks and traffic policemen were on duty directing the stream of cars.

Virtually all physicians in Baton Rouge were in attendance.
NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 9. — (AP) — T. Semmes Walmesley, mayor of New Orleans who has fought Senator Huey P. Long bitterly for political control of the city of New Orleans, tonight said he "sincerely regretted" the shooting of Senator Long.
Mayor Walmesley's statement follows:
"I have consistently opposed violence as the proper means for correcting conditions in Louisiana and naturally I sincerely regret this occurrence."
"No matter how justifiable an individual may feel himself to be under the principles with which Louisiana has been contending, deep and as far reaching as they are, no one can countenance such violence."
"My sympathy goes out to Mrs. Long and the children, to the Pavy family and the family of Dr. Weiss."

GERMANY SEEN IN ITALY'S BOAT TOO
GENEVA, Sept. 9. — (AP) — The League of Nations assembly's 16th session today passed a resolution on the dangerous nature of the Italo-Ethiopian conflict, and an assertion by an Italian spokesman that his nation would refrain from any assurances that it would do nothing to complicate the crisis.
So acute did the crisis become that the opinion prevailed in many circles tonight that it could be settled only on a realistic basis. A league spokesman said an effort would be made to find a solution bridging league idealism and cold practicality—represented by Italy's needs for economic expansion.
Behind Italy's demand for more colonial rights, there lurked in many minds the specter that soon Germany—deprived of all its colonies—would proclaim its imperious needs for territory outside Europe.
A German spokesman said Reichswehrer Adolf Hitler doubtless would raise this issue before Germany juridically departs from the league October 14.

HUEY'S SOLONS PASS HIS BILLS

One Designed at Ouster of Assasin's Father-in-Law; Little Fight

Church of the Nazarene, for the "life and health of a fellow citizen... out beloved senator of Louisiana."
Armed guards stood at every door in the capitol today while all who entered were searched for weapons. Otherwise, legislative business proceeded much as if Long were giving it his energetic personal attention.

Before tackling the anti-Roosevelt measure, the house passed a bill aimed at Judge B. H. Pavy of Opelousas, father-in-law of Long's slain assassin. Pavy has been one of the senator's principal opponents in St. Landry parish.
The bill, designed to open the way for Long's followers to oust Judge Pavy in the next election, would change the boundaries of his judicial district.
Bills Slapping at Roosevelt Opposed
Few bills except those slapping at Roosevelt drew battle. Those were described by opponents as "political propaganda" to be "used on the stump."

One of the measures fixed a jail term for federal agents exercising "unconstitutional" powers in the state.
It was aimed at Long's opponents who have been placed in charge of new deal activities in Louisiana.
Another anti-Roosevelt bill, passed 72 to 17, requires that federal road construction programs in the state must be approved by the Louisiana highway commission.

STORE BURGLARIZED EARLY IN MORNING
Cutting their way through the roof, thieves made their way into the South Commercial street P. N. Taktit store early Sunday morning and got away with the money kept in the store for change.
The burglary was committed sometime after midnight. Larson P. Griggs, manager of the store, stated, as employees were on the premises until that time. The thieves cut a hole through the roof over the large refrigerator room and apparently made their exit the same way.
The robbery was discovered when one of the employes came to the store Sunday morning to get a bottle of milk.
Griggs did not know how much was taken. Police were working on the case yesterday.
