

Move to End Coal Strike Hits Snag

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—(P)—Arguments over wage differentials today put a new snag between the operators and miners seeking a wage hour contract to end the three-day old soft coal strike.

The disagreement over what wage increase Appalachian producers would give their miners remained, however, the major gulf between separating the contract negotiators.

Neither side had yielded ground up to nightfall, the producers reiterating that they offered a seven and a half cent a ton increase for miners digging coal and the miners steadily repeating that they could and would accept nothing less than a nine cent increase. That was their stand when the coal strike was called in the early hours of Monday.

Sorghum Mill Has Three-Weeks Run

Essons Leave Farm Soon; Small Girl Wins Friday Award

JEFFERSON, Sept. 25.—The sorghum mill on the Albert Jellison farm three miles southwest of Jefferson is being operated for a few weeks. The Jellisons have three acres in sugar cane and J. W. Pugh has about half an acre. Several farmers in that community have planted sugar cane along the river bottom where it is said to be the best. Many visitors stop to watch the process of sorghum making, as the mill is located close to the Pacific highway.

Rev. and Mrs. Albya Esson, plan to move away from their farm near Millersburg within a short time, or as soon as they find another location. Mr. and Mrs. Homer Schlegel have rented the Esson farm and will move there soon.

Mr. Ross will you have POMMES de Terre or ARME de Bois? Heck no, gimme potatoes or beans which ever one ye like. None of those fancy dishes for me. I'm just common folks like Ed Keech here, only not quite so corpulent. That, folks was heard at the Market Coffee Shop at the noon lunch hour. Many are the weighty problems settled there. Just why this country ever had a depression is beyond me says Ed Keech to us one day. Bill, he said poundin on the counter till onea the clean spoons fell off the counter ten feet away, this country's gettin in a mess. By golly do you know in Custer's and my business here, it's got to the stage by gum where we gotta try a law suit on its merits, didja ever hear of such a thing? Why I remember—Hold on there says Custer, I was a lawyer and a darn good 'un too before you finished your first reader. Now folks like we always are settlin arguments like that we says, now see here boys, we don's know anything about law. "Yeah," says Ed, anybody'd know that, you can't even write and if you could you couldn't read it. "Heck," says Custer, "I'll go ye one bettern that. I'll bet he can't even read readin, but acordin to my wife and all the other food buyers I've ever talked to, these Markets of hussin's done more to help the peopul thru the depression than all the high-falutin arguments youve put up around this lunch counter. Whatza, By gum it's an ambulance says Ed as they both grabbed their hats and ran out the door. Whew, that was an ordeal for us, now maybe with those fellows gone we can quote some prices that will verify Custer's statement that these two Markets do save money for folks that trades at 'em.
