Cannery Will Still Operate

50,000 More Cans Arrive; Another County Circuit Trip Not Certain

Continued operation of Marion county's portable cannery, used to preserve foodstuffs for relief families, was assured yesterday when the relief committee received an additional consignment of 50,000 cans from the federal government, Glenn C. Niles, county relief administrator announced. The cannery already has exceeded last year's output by approximately 38,000 cans of fruit and vegetables.

How much longer the plant will be kept in operation is undecided, Niles said, and it has not been determined whether or not it will be taken on another circuit of the county. He said the cannery probably would be run at its present location, the county shops on Shilvertown road near the state fairgrounds, "as long as the crew can keep busy." Yesterday apples, prunes, plums, beans and tomatoes were being processed.

The September pack by the portable cannery set a new record for any single month in the three seasons it has been in use. During that month 144,180 cans of produce were put up, from which relief families received 110,924 cans and the relief committee retained $3,256 as toll to be distributed to direct relief cases during the winter.

Close to a balance has been struck between the packs of fruit and of vegetables this season. The cannery has been used to can 114,734 cans of fruit of 13 kinds and 120,505 cans of vegetables of eight varieties. In the process 17,540 pounds of sugar and 1860 pounds of salt, both supplied by the relief committee, have been used.

Over 28 Millions Paid
For Relief in Oregon,
Holman Tells Governor

The state of Oregon has received for relief purposes from federal, state and local sources approximately $28,662,000 since August, 1932, State Treasurer Holman reported to Governor Martin Tuesday.

Governor Martin said this averaged $9,000,000 a year and was a burden which could not be continued indefinitely. The funds were handled by the state and county relief committees.

Both Satisfied
Bill Kipp was panhandled by a man on Capitol hill yesterday. The man asked for a nickel. Bill told him that he had but one nickel, and said if the man had a nickel he would trade with him. The man produced a nickel and handed it to Bill, and Bill gave him his nickel. Then they went gravely on their respective ways, Bill glowing with the consciousness of having done a good deed and the man happy in the feeling that comes to one who has not been roughly rebuffed. Quite a sweet story.

J. W. Lawless, who spends his summers exhibiting a collection of snakes with the Browning Amusement company, exhibited his pets in the window of a South Commercial street market Monday. The exhibit attracted much attention. I chanced to be one of a party gathered at the window Monday night to see the reptiles.

put to bed. Were I to give you a list of those gathered on this occasion you would be surprised. Anyway, the show was enjoyed by one and all. Personally, I was interested in the effort of Mr. Lawless to induce one of the large snakes to permit one of the little snakes to go to bed down the large snake's throat into the large snake's nice warm tummy. The effort was unsuccessful and the poor little snake was compelled to sleep out in the cold. Not a bad bedtime story.

Powell Gets Nod
Discussion as to the relative tap-dancing ability of Eleanor Powell and Fred Astaire, each of whom has been seen on the screen in Salem within a few days, is still going on here and there about town. The girls seem to favor Astaire and the boys rather incline towards Powell. At any rate, it must be admitted that Miss Powell's imitation of Katharine Hepburn in "Morning Glory" was perfect, while Astaire did not imitate anybody in anything.

Retail Clerks' Union

Topic; Hewitt Speaker
Roy R. Hewitt Monday night addressed a meeting of the retail clerks, who are contemplating forming a union, on the increasing necessity of the Oregon anti-injunction act, the labor relations act, and other acts protecting the worker, due to economic stress. The meeting discussed the question whether or not a Salem local union of the Retail Clerks Protective association should be formed.

Delsell Seriously Ill
With Hiccoughs, Word
W. A. "Bill" Delsell, deputy internal revenue collector at Portland, is reported to be seriously ill at the Portland sanatorium following an attack of hiccoughs which first appeared last week while he was on a hunting trip in eastern Oregon. According to word to friends here, he was in the hospital in eastern Oregon several days before being removed to Portland. Delsell is a former Salem resident and well known democrat who has been in political activities for years.

Too Much Parking Space
Sought for New Station
Is Claim, Council Meet
Steps to prevent the Union Oil company from taking over downtown parking space with its new service station being erected at the southwest corner of Church and State streets were urged upon the police and street committees at the city council meeting Monday night. Alderman Fuhrer declared this station would destroy a full block's parking space. Questions as to the right of the company to cut curbing and to pave over the parking were raised but not settled. It was suggested an ordinance be introduced to cover the situation, at the same time it was pointed out several prior measures of this nature had been killed.

Fire Prevention To Be Stressed
The Salem citizenry was urged by Mayor V. B. Kuhn last week to devote more than usual thought to the prevention of national fires, in recognition of national fire prevention week. The mayor's proclamation read as follows: "Inasmuch as there has annually been set aside a week known as national fire prevention week, and inasmuch as every municipality should support an effort that has for its purpose the decreasing of fire hazards, the people of every community, regardless whether they live in the city or rural sections, should lend every effort to support said action. Therefore, for the benefit of the people and their industries as a whole, I hereby proclaim the week of October 6 to 12 as fire prevention week."
"V. B. KUHN,
Mayor
Salem, Ore."
