Society Booms as Alumni Return To Campus

TODAY the annual trek of grads back to their alma mater begins and the Willamette campus will be very busy playing host to the alumni and making their stay an enjoyable one.

Briefly, the campus social events include the alumni banquet at the First M. E. church tonight, a dancing party at the Alpha Psi Delta fraternity tonight following the Homecoming play, a party at the Kappa Gamma Rho house after the play and a late supper at the Quella for Sigma Tau, their alumni and guests following the play. They will also dance.

Alpha Phi Alphas will have a fireside dinner tonight and entertainment by the house trio. Sunday morning a breakfast at the chapter house will honor alumnae.

Beta Chi members will be at home for an informal tea Saturday afternoon and are also planning a breakfast.

Delta Phi will entertain with its annual alumnae luncheon Saturday afternoon followed by a program.

at practically no cost. Any business would welcome these as donations and find them a most popular number.

Pattern 514 comes to you with a transfer pattern of the dog pillow 15 x 15 inches, the bunny 8 inches tall, and the elephant 8 inches in length, complete directions and yardages for making them.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to The Oregon Statesman Needlecraft Dept.

Cuddle Pillow and Toys

Pattern 514

These simple toys—made of but two identical pieces—will meet with every toy's immediate approval. The elephant and bunny are just the size to clutch firmly when tucked up in the crib. The dog will be a very special friend, for he's a pillow. And he'll make going to sleep something to look forward to! His ears are in patches of contrasting material which makes him more alluring. Each toy can be made in no time and

1st Church Plans Dedication Week

A week of pre-dedication events will be held at the First Methodist church starting Sunday morning when Dr. Fred Taylor of Portland, former pastor of the church, will speak at the 11 o'clock hour.

Some event will be arranged each night in the week for various departments of the church, the week to culminate Sunday, October 27, in dedication of the new church school temple, constructed at a cost of around $36,000. Program details are now being worked out by the pastor, Rev. James E. Milligan.

Work on the church school temple is nearing completion.

Building Insulated

Among the numerous outstanding features of the new temple, constructed to the south and to join the church building proper, are the doors and the weather-wood insulation.

Double doors constructed of an historic walnut tree are found at both entrances to the temple. These were fashioned by U. J. Lehman, who works at the Spaulding Lumber company planing mill here, where the doors were turned out after nearly three weeks of painstaking work. The walnut for the doors, furnished by D. H. Mosher, is from a tree one of the Jason Lee Missionaries planted in this area.

The church temple is the only large building in the northwest entirely finished in weatherwood acoustical insulating board from the U. S. Gypsum company, which has had a representative here throughout installation of the board.

Another feature is the three-unit heating plant, any one unit of which will function independently of the other. The three units weigh a mere nine tons.

Theatre Guild to Widen Activities

More people in more plays will be the motto of the Willamette university Little Theatre guild this year, according to Genevieve Thayer, who will direct the activities of the guild.

Present plans call for the presentation of one play every three weeks in the Little theatre on the third floor of Waller hall at Willamette. Several presentations will be made of each play with the public invited to Thursday and Friday performances.

Miss Thayer recently returned from a summer's study at the Martha Oatman school of the theatre in Los Angeles. She took several important parts in plays which the school presented in its theatre and over the air.

Membership in the Little Theatre guild is limited to 50 students.
