

Bill Banning Pari-Mutuel Betting Introduced in Legislature

All Types of Gambling Hit

Special Prosecutors and Declaring Nuisances Other Provisions

Repeal of the pari-mutuel law, authorizing wagering on horse and dog races, and prohibiting all other forms of gambling, were provided in a bill introduced Monday by Senator Lessard of Multnomah county.

The pari-mutuel law was enacted at the 1933 legislative session and the total wagers since that time have exceeded $12,000,000.

Lessard said his bill was in line with recommendations made Saturday by L. A. Liljeqvist, who is conducting the grand jury investigation of gambling conditions in Multnomah county.

A further provision of the bill authorizes any attorney to act as special prosecutor in gambling cases. He would receive a minimum fee of $25, or any larger amount fixed by the court.

Places in which gambling is conducted would be deemed a nuisance. Private attorneys also could be assigned to prosecute the owners of these.

Justices of the peace would have concurrent jurisdiction in all gambling proceedings.

Another bill, by Senator Carney, defines nickel-in-the-slot machines, declares them a gambling device, and provides for their confiscation and destruction.

Carney said his bill distinguishes between a game of chance and a game of skill. A similar bill was defeated at the 1935 legislative session.

The state of Oregon already has received more than $300,000 as its share of the wagering receipts. The state receives 2 1/2 per cent of the total.

parts of the state would. Why should the state continue to play Santa Claus to Salem?"

The Lessard amendment would provide that "all public institutions not otherwise located by the electorate of the state of Oregon shall be determined by an act of the legislative assembly."

"If they (Salem and Marion county) value these institutions so highly, then why should they not be scattered among the other counties? Our neighboring states of Washington and California distribute their institutions among the various counties. By this decentralization, other sections would benefit from them," Lessard declared.

Building Cost Limit Set by Joint Committee; Seek Salem Bid

PWA. This will be a sum between $350,000 and $525,000. Second, the amount of the appropriation for the capitol building and site was set at $3,500,000. It was made clear that no member is bound by his vote in the committee on these questions and that the committee can reconsider its action later.

"We should have enough ground to build a commensurate building," Senator Pearson said. "If we are to use that little piece where the old capitol stood, I agree with Senator Zimmerman that $20,000 is all that should be spent on a building."

Zimmerman brought a laugh when he replied, "But they've torn the walls down now."

Echoing Pearson's statement that $3,500,000 should not be spent on a building for the old site were Senators Duncan, Wallace, Frank, Atkinson and Force Salem's Hand.

The limit of $525,000 for the purchase of an additional site was openly admitted to be an attempt to force the city of Salem into contributing a substantial amount toward the acquisition of more ground.

"The object of my motion," Representative Kirkpatrick said, "is to suggest a good proposition out of Salem."

A sub-committee of three was appointed last night to determine the prices of the sites and to confer with city officials as to what extent the city would be willing to enter the negotiations.

Appearing before the committee last night Elton Watkins of Portland warned the group that the water supply of Salem was inadequate and fire protection poor.

At the afternoon session of the committee, Ralph Moody, assistant attorney general advised the committee that the continuing appropriation for the capitol funds could be made.

State's Buildings Valued 21 Million

The state of Oregon owns buildings, furnishings and equipment valued in excess of $21,000,000. This was brought out at a senate committee meeting Monday afternoon to determine whether it would be economy for the state to carry insurance rather than relying on a restoration fund.

Senators' Buildings Insurance Proposed

Senator Pearson has introduced a bill providing that the state buildings and furnishings shall be insured on the basis of 70 per cent of their sound value.

Each Building Would Be Insured on Basis of Risk

Employment of a competent insurance engineer to appraise the properties was provided in the bill.
