The bulk of the stock list gave a little ground in relatively quiet dealings, but the bulls had their innings with a few specialties, some rails, which were mostly ready, and at times firm, and a few non-ferrous metal shares.

Potato Diversion Plan is Launched

A determined effort to pull the country's potato industry out of its present doldrums is under way by the agricultural adjustment administration which has just completed a series of both informal and formal hearings on the problem throughout the commercial potato producing areas of the nation.

The nearest of these meetings to Oregon were held in Idaho the last week in October, where E. R. Jackman of the O. S. C. extension service, went as observer for the growers and extension service of

It is estimated that potato prices in the United States are now bringing growers an average of only 50 per cent of their parity It is the belief of AAA officials that by a combination of diversion of excess tonnage to industrial uses and creation of marketing agreements in certain areas, the average returns to producers can be raised to about 75
