Rossmann Asks Red Cross Aid

Relief Calls on Private Agencies Increasing, Chairman Cites

An appeal to the citizens of Marion county to respond whole heartedly to the annual Red Cross call, which opens today and closes November 29, was issued yesterday by Judge George Rossmann, member of the state supreme court and county Red Cross chapter chairman. "I believe that every resident of Marion county ought to give careful consideration to the appeal for funds of the local chapter of the Red Cross," Judge Rossmann said. "The local chapter has been engaged for several years in substantial relief work and, in my opinion, the demands upon it in the year ahead will be much greater.

Private Giving Needed—"I am afraid that the people of Salem do not realize that federal and county funds have to be augmented by private giving. There has to be a considerable fund in the possession of the Red Cross or some other charity to relieve human suffering on a large number of local families who are going to face distress in the winter which is now beginning. Federal expenditures for relief of the unemployed are being curtailed and some items necessary to the existence of human beings are not being provided by the federal government. The government very properly assumes that private giving will supplement its funds.

To a large extent clothing, medicine, etc., must be provided for needy families by the thoughtful people of Marion county. A child of unemployed parents ought not to suffer from lack of medical and dental attention, nor should it suffer the ill consequences that ensue from lack of fuel at home and warm clothing.

Clothing Distributed—"The local chapter in the past few years has constantly endeavored to supplement federal and county funds, but, of course, its ability to do so has been directly dependent upon the contributions which this community makes at roll call time. We have distributed very large quantities of clothing and have provided many children with dental and medical aid. Some elderly persons have been provided with eyeglasses, many veterans of the wars have been assisted with their war claims in securing hospitalization and in registering for placement in veterans' CCC camps.

The local chapter has also cooperated with other agencies of like kind scattered throughout the county. Much useful work in providing Braille literature for the blind has been contributed by a group of kindly women. In some instances we have helped motherless children. Not a dime is wasted and effort is made to make every dollar yield maximum results.

The above is a brief resume of what the local chapter has done with its portion of the membership funds contributed at roll call time. Fifty cents of every dollar contributed remains in Marion county. The other 50 cents goes to the national office, but if more than one dollar is contributed no more than 50 cents goes to the national office.

Flour, Seeds Obtained—"The work of the national office of the Red Cross and its needs for funds are so well known that no comment is needed but it may be well to recall that through the national office three years ago the local chapter was able to secure very large quantities of flour, clothing and seeds for distribution in this county. Through its generosity we have also been able to institute annual lifesaving courses which have benefitted several hundreds of children as well as people of mature years and at the present time the national office is helping us with our plans to install at least two first aid stations upon the highways in Marion county."

Tells Nation

President Roosevelt

Nearly 5,000,000 people have been put back to work by private industry since March, 1933, President Roosevelt asserted in a nationwide radio broadcast from the White House after returning from his vacation cruise. Speaking in behalf of the 1935 Mobilization for Human Needs, Roosevelt urged the public to contribute to private charities to lighten the government relief burden.

Strato Fliers Reach Ground

Flight Unmarred—"My records show we reached an altitude of 73,000 feet," he told an Associated Press reporter. Both fliers said the flight went off perfectly—except for the scare when the gondola cleared the sheer rock cliffs of the bowl near Rapid City by only 50 feet.

"Our instruments apparently worked perfectly throughout," Captain Stevens said. "They were not damaged at all in landing. We came down quite slowly and there wasn't even a bounce when we hit. The gondola rolled over the side, at about a 90-degree angle, but there wasn't enough jar to even bounce us around.

"We could see the curvature of the earth plainly when we reached the ceiling," Capt. Anderson said. "We photographed it, of course, and the curvature should be plainly visible in the picture. We could see the earth at all times, but could not discern objects.

"We were at the ceiling, which my records show was about 73,000 feet, for an hour and a half," Capt. Anderson said. "We took many observations, and I believe gathered much useful scientific data."

Sky Below Blue—"When we were at the top," Captain Anderson related, "the sky above us looked dark blue. At times it seemed to be a deep purple. Below it was blue, and sometimes white."

WHITE LAKE, S. D., Nov. 11.—(AP)—A gentle landing by the world's largest balloon in a field near here late today successfully ended man's most sensational venture into the heights of the stratosphere to an unofficially recorded altitude of 73,000 feet.
