Hop Prices Drop Here, Past Week

Brewers Hesitant About Buying, No Heavy Decline Noted

Hop prices were a bit lower during the past week than the previous week with the proponderant price of 9 cents per pound, as compared to 10 cents a pound the week before, Durbin and Corroyer report.

There was no tendency for the price to toboggan, but it was noted that buyers were a bit more anxious to sell and brewers somewhat hesitant about buying during the week, with the consequent lowering of prices.

Pacific coast hop markets maintained a fairly steady tone during the week ended November 6, with trading only moderately active according to the weekly hop market review of the U. S. bureau of agricultural economics. Prices paid growers ranged from about unchanged in Oregon and Washington to moderately active, according to the weekly hop market review of the U. S. bureau of agricultural economics. Prices paid growers ranged from about unchanged in Oregon and Washington to moderately active, according to the weekly hop market review of the U. S. bureau of agricultural economics.

Oregon Markets Slow

Oregon markets, while furnishing the principal activity in coast markets during the period under review, were considerably less active than during the previous week, reflecting some slackening in domestic demand. No interest was reported in older contracts during the period and so new contracts were being made in good volume, according to trade advisers, and these were supplying a considerable proportion of domestic consumers needs.

The moderate demand which prevailed during the week was principally from domestic interests and offerings from growers were about equal to current requirements. Deliveries on contracts were being made in good volume, according to trade advisers, and these were supplying a considerable proportion of domestic consumers needs.

New York Steady

The New York hop market showed steady undertone during the week, with fairly good sales of hops on the Pacific coast and prices advanced about 1c per pound for the list. Recent warm weather in the east stimulated demand for beer and some of the smaller brewers purchased additional supplies for immediate requirements.

Latest information indicates that the English hops marketing board has announced that estimated consignments of 1935 crop are being 227,000 cwt. are about 2,000 cwt. excess of estimated demand, and that therefore they will destroy 50 percent of the stocks of 1934 crop hops immediately.

Fog Causes Death Of Veteran Flier

FORT WORTH, Tex., Nov. 11.—(P)—Roaring through the fog at 200 miles an hour, Pilot Chief Maus crashed to his death in a Braniff airliner just outside Port Worth before dawn Saturday.

The veteran flier, with more than 6,000 hours in the air, was ferrying the plane to Waco to start the morning run to Houston. He had no passengers aboard and only 150 pounds of express.

Apparently he got too low and "blew into the ground" at top speed, for his ship tore a hole three feet deep and 12 feet in diameter when it hit. It barely missed a residence in the river-side section.

Regulations do not permit flying with passengers when the "ceiling" is less than 800 feet, but because Maus was merely taking the plane to Waco to put in service, he was allowed to proceed.

He was following the airway to Waco when he received the message. He evidently attempted to change his course and head back to Dallas but, in doing so, misjudged his altitude.
