

Intolerance Danger Spot in America Today Says Linfield President

Speaker Warns Of War to Come

Must Teach Racial Equality College Head Tells Silvertown Group

SILVERTOWN, Nov. 16.—"Intolerance is the danger spot of America," said Dr. Elam Anderson, president of Linfield college, Friday night in the concluding address of the national education week program at Silvertown.

"We must teach tolerance or we can look forward to conflict more serious than any we have yet had," Dr. Anderson continued.

"If we cannot teach tolerance and learn to appreciate and work with one another, not because of similarity but in spite of differences, the ideal of our country will be ruined. Our education is based upon the foundation that we are all free and equal. But this is all a dream; something we fail to practice. We have racial distinctions. Chinese and Japanese children born in this country of Americanized parents do not have an equal chance. Yet we preach that this is a free and equal country. Their opportunities are limited. We grudgingly give attention to even the outstanding oriental student. The suspicion we have toward other races and countries is the only real danger our democracy faces. The uprise of colored races is caused by the white race's failure to recognize the equality of races."

Dr. Anderson went on to say that some of the people of this country still had a certain attitude toward people who speak a different tongue, even though that tongue be a white man's language. If schools, the speaker said, are to attain their largest success, they must discourage the differentiation of tongues and races. Dr. Anderson also decried the existing fights between religions, both Catholic and Protestant, and among the Protestant religions themselves. The first step to stamp out intolerance is to accept the existence of a law of individuality, he said; to understand, rather than condemn, to adopt an impartial and impersonal attitude of fact.

Boyd Canoy, the youthful superintendent of schools for educational week, acted as chairman of the evening and introduced the speaker and also Stephen Batus, music-director in the Silvertown schools. The chorus gave a short concert which was appreciatively received by the large audience present. A group of songs were also given by the pupils in grades taught by Miss Harriet Smith, Miss Florence Story and Harry Camerap.

Kees Endowment Fund Is Closed

ALBANY, Nov. 16.—An endowment fund created by the will of Owen Kees, who died in June, 1861, for the Santiam Academy at Lebanon, was closed this week at the office of County Clerk Russell, when J. M. Burtenshaw, fiscal administrator of the fund, filed his tenth annual and final report of his trusteeship of the fund. Originally the fund consisted of $1847, residue of the estate of Owen Kees, an early Oregon pioneer. The academy was established at Lebanon in 1854, and was one of the early institutions of learning in Oregon. In 1902 the academy was discontinued and the grounds leased to the Lebanon school district for 99 years. The Lebanon high school now stands on the site of the old academy buildings. So for 33 years the original endowment fund has outlived the institution which it endowed.

During the 74 years the fund has run, many men have acted as administrators. The first administrator was Morgan Kees, who according to his final account on file in the office of the county clerk, settled the entire estate with the exception of the endowment fund, which according to the terms of the will, was to be loaned at 12 per cent interest if possible and if this could not be obtained then at 10 per cent. According to the records Morgan Kees died in 1866 and some three years later, Jacob Kees was named administrator, the estate at that time consisting solely of the endowment fund of $1847.

For 14 years Jacob Kees continued to administer the fund, then the board of trustees seemingly became dissatisfied with his methods of doing business, called for a report and according to their claims, found him to be short in his payments to the academy some $167. Claiming that his books were in such a condition that it was impossible to find just what disposition had been made by him of the funds, the board asked for his removal by the county court. Kees, however, made restitution to the amount of $120, explaining that it was impossible to keep the money out continually at interest and that he was money out of his own pocket at times in protecting the endowment against loss, and as a result of the trouble he resigned as administrator.

Mercer Thompson replaced Jacob Kees as administrator, being recommended to the county court by the board of trustees for the position and held the office from 1881 until 1887. Following Thompson a number of persons administered the fund, until finally J. M. Burtenshaw became the last administrator. According to Burtenshaw's final report, in 1931, when he made his ninth report, the fund consisted of $3,110.84. Since then he has spent all but $212 in improving the old campus, adding a water system and in other improvements to beautify the grounds. A monument has also been erected to mark the site of the old academy.

V-8 LEADERSHIP

ON OCTOBER 31 of last year, Henry Ford announced his intention to build a million Ford V-8s in 1935. We are pleased to report that this goal was reached in exactly ten months instead of a full year.

One million cars and trucks is an impressive total. But figures by themselves mean nothing. It is what they represent that counts. Selling a V-8 at a low price has brought a new kind of automobile within reach of the people. Producing it has provided steady work for hundreds of thousands of men in the Ford plants, in associated industries and on the farm.

These million Ford V-8 cars and trucks have helped to make things better all around. In the first ten months of 1935 the Ford Motor Company paid out in the United States alone, $140,119,326.00 in wages and $523,111,389.00 for materials.
