

Holly Inspection on; No Disease Found So Far by Van Trump

Shipment Will Be Begun Soon

No Scale Found So Far in District; Quarantine May Be Avoided

The holly inspection season has started for County Horticulturist S. H. Van Trump, who spent yesterday visiting several of the largest holly holdings in this section. He reports that he found practically no scale, the disease which caused California and Arizona to clamp quarantines on importations from this area, several years ago.

The largest holly bearing in the valley is the three-acre orchard at the E. N. Gillingham place on the Pringle road, where cuttings are already being made for shipment to Utah. While the heavier shipments go to the Christmas period, holly is coming in fair demand for Thanksgiving decorations, Van Trump finds.

Average Is Large

The Gillingham holly acreage is nearly 25 years old and bears heavily. Other plantings Van Trump inspected yesterday included the half-acre at each of the J. F. McKinlay and Mrs. S. A. Davis Bean, both in Polk county, and the half-acre planting at City View cemetery.

The commercial plantings are largely of the holly which bears the berry or the "female" holly. The holly which grows without the red berry is the male holly and bears the pollen.

All holly shipments, and especially those through the post-office, must bear a tag showing the approval of the county inspector before they are sent to other states. With holly an increasing favorite for holiday shipments to friends and relatives in the east, this brings many December requests for inspection.

group returned to Portland to talk to the governor there when it was learned he was in that city.

Wife and Children Mentioned in Plea

The visitors said they were convinced Baer should not be deported for crimes committed 14 years ago. They said the governor should temper his decision with mercy and consider that Baer had a wife and three children.

Baer is scheduled to leave Portland this morning under custody of Roy Norene, district immigration director. He was twice convicted of forgery and it is mandatory under the law that aliens twice convicted of a crime of moral turpitude shall be deported. Governor Martin refused to pardon Baer and thus to wipe out one of the crimes from his record.

ment at Nanking and seek to promote cordial relations among North China, Japan and Manchoukuo.

A spokesman for the foreign office admitted the possibility of Japanese military intervention should the Nanking government send troops to suppress the North China autonomy movement.

The dispatches were from Peiping and Tientsin. Their unanimity of detail indicated they sprang from a common and well-informed source.

Five projects, with a population of approximately 35,000,000 people, apparently would become a "second Manchoukuo." They are Hopeh, Shantung, Shansi, Chahar and Suiyuan.

with the Chinese national government among the growers without assistance from the government.

It is understood that Robert M. Kerr, Portland attorney, will be called into consultation on the establishment of the cooperative group as well as other experts on such organizations.

It is estimated that to be successful a cooperative organization would have to have in its membership at least 80 per cent of the growers. Unless such a membership could be obtained it would not be possible to control production to any appreciable extent, one grower said.

The problem of over-production is a serious one is recognized by all the growers but they do not agree as to the solution of the problem.

Think New Growers Should Be Favored

Some growers feel that the men who planted the hops when repeal came in should be forced out of the business and that those who have been raising hops over a long period of years should not sacrifice their yards to aid the growers who established themselves in the last few years.

The other group feels that in order to save the growers from a long period of disastrous prices all should plow up a portion of their yards in order to save themselves.

Any attempt to seek aid from federal sources seems to have been abandoned under the move taken yesterday.

Student Head at High School Out or at least stated, before a special assembly next Monday afternoon.

"He was lucky he didn't get fired from school," Principal Wolf stated last night. "I didn't want this to get into the papers; that's why I didn't say anything about it. Things that he (Draper) did down at Eugene were unfortunate. I notified him last Wednesday that he was through."

Intoxication Is Not Charged, Declared

Wolf declared there was no truth in student reports that Draper was charged with having been drinking on the excursion train Armistice day. He believed, however, to state what Draper's offense had been.

"Draper last night expressed a belief the action had been taken against him because he had been seen drinking 'Singapore Sling,' a commercial non-alcoholic mixer, at the game.

"That is not the truth," he said to insinuations he had heard to the effect that he was drinking liquor at the game. "The fact is we were drinking in a Singapore Sling mixer—sort of a ginger ale stuff sold at wine stores, which contains no alcohol. But nobody can prove it was a mixer and nobody can prove it wasn't."

Draper declared that "if I were permitted some sort of trial before anyone, my star witness would be Mr. Wolf."

Dorothy Kibbe, as vice-president, automatically succeeds Draper as student president. A new vice-president will be elected.

Morris said he wanted to band together Roosevelt supporters on the committee, get them to agree to stand solidly for a primary and if the majority of the committee out-voted them to hold another meeting and call a primary "regardless."

Willamette Grads Gather, New York

Marcy and Moser Provide Up-to-Date News for Older Group

Seven newcomers to the metropolitan area were greeted by a group of about 30 older graduates of Willamette university at the first fall meeting of the Willamette university Metropolitan club on October 25 at the Union Methodist church in New York City.

In response to an avid interest on the part of the alumni who have been away from the W. U. campus for several years, Carl Marcy, '34, and David Moser, '35, each gave a summary of recent events in Salem and at the university from his own supply of first-hand knowledge. Margaret Bowen Story, '23, who was in charge of the program, decided to systematize the isolated bits of information which other members of the club brought to the meeting, and dedicated the latter part of the evening's program to an impromptu revival of the days of Collegian reporting and composition. The result at the end of the evening was four complete editions, each of which contained one or two authenticated facts.

Plan Later Meets

A program for the club for the remainder of the academic year was proposed. It provides for six more meetings, the last of which will occur in June. Also, the officers of the club are preparing a directory of alumni who now reside in the east. This will be distributed to all members of the club. Information from this directory about any alumnus may be secured from F. D. Leamer, 463 West Street, New York City, who is the president of the club for the current year.

Among those present who will be remembered by the present generation of the student body were Elizabeth Clement, Donald Clark, Lowell Eddy, Loraine Sheldon, Mildred Kester Marcy, Carl Marcy, Ross Knotts, Fred Harris, David Moser and Margaret Notson.

19th Street Vacation Hearing Scheduled

The council set January 6 as time for a public hearing on the vacation of the south 20 feet of 13th street from Ferry south to an alley to make way for construction of a new city shops building. Plans for the structure, which may be built as a WPA project, are now being drawn in the office of Building Inspector E. C. Bushnell and City Engineer Hugh Rogers.

The Oregon Motor stages' request for permission to operate city buses over State street between 19th and 23d streets was granted after a representative had told the council this action would improve service on the State street line.

Parking on bridges having a roadway as wide as the approaching street was made legal in the only other ordinance adopted last night.
