

Turkey Demand Steady, Hens and Small Toms Most Popular

Outlook For Industry Is Good Says Leedy at Luncheon Here

PORTLAND, Nov. 25.—(AP)—The turkey market was fairly steady here today with the demand chiefly for hens and very small toms. Few of the latter were available. Receipts were described as "only fair" over Sunday.

The general top for hens was 29 to 30 cents a pound to retailers, with toms quoted at 25 to 29 cents.

The buying price was nominally 24 to 25 cents for toms, and 25 to 26 cents for hens. Live birds, Portland delivered price, were 18 to 20 cents.

Growers of approximately 75,000 turkeys in the Salem tributary are putting from $3 to $4 per bird on their flocks this year. Jay C. Leedy, manager of the Oregon turkey cooperatives, told the chamber of commerce yesterday noon in discussing "Raising Turkeys—A Great Industry." At the $3 figure, this industry will bring $225,000 profit to turkey raisers in this area.

The outlook for the turkey industry is quite good for the experienced and well-financed grower, Leedy said, but he cautioned the inexperienced man against jumping into the business just because the growers are making a dollar this year.

30,000 in County

In Marion county alone, about 50,000 turkeys are being produced this year, with an additional 25,000 in Polk and Yamhill territory close to Salem. Marion county probably ranks about fifth in Oregon turkey production today, with Douglas county still leading and Willamette and Yamhill following, Leedy indicated. Oregon ranks about sixth in national production, with Texas at the top.

Leedy sketched the history of the growth of the commercial industry, until this year an estimated 18 to 20 million turkeys are recorded, about one for every seven persons in the country. The 1935 crop is slightly under the 1934 turkey production. The first large flurry of turkey production came in 1890, when 11 millions of birds were found on the census, but the figure had dropped 30 years later to 3 1/2 millions of turkeys. High prices of the post-war period brought the turkey back, until in 1929, 17 millions were checked up on the census.

Mortality Lowered

The high mortality in growing turkeys helps keep down the number of producers, Leedy indicated, though he added that growers have made excellent progress and are now keeping their losses under 10 per cent. Also a marked increase has been noted in the quality of birds, with the average today a 90 per cent production of No. 1 or prime birds as against 65 per cent a few years ago.

Turkeys require 4 1/2 to 5 pounds of feed to put on a pound of meat, Leedy said, which means about 80 pounds of feed is necessary to produce a 15-pound turkey if the bird runs on green pasture; otherwise, 100 pounds of feed. The bronze turkey still leads the production parade, though the lighter Narragansett and White Hollands are raised in increasingly large numbers.

Progress in preparing the birds more attractively for market and progress in grading are other factors contributing to the increased consumption of turkey meat.

Grain Hurt by Peace Outlook

Oil Embargo Delay Swats Bull Faction; Visible Supply Down Little

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—(AP)—European postponement of moves for an oil embargo against Italy gave a solar plexus blow today to enthusiasts for higher prices of wheat.

The force of the jolt that sent the wheat market reeling was enhanced by disappointment over smallness of decrease shown in the United States wheat visible supply total. Bearish sentiment received impetus, too, from a United States supreme court processing tax decision, looked upon in some quarters here as an expedient significant setback for the AAA law.

Wheat suffered a maximum fall of nearly 2 cents a bushel, and closed unstable 5 1/4 cents lower than Saturday's finish, December 90-92 1/2, corn 3 1/2 down, December 59 1/4-3/8, oats unchanged to 3/4 off, and provisions showing 5 to 17 cents decline.

War Talk Subsides

A quick retreat of postponement of the proposed oil embargo was subsiding talk of a possible European war.

Heavy concentrated speculative offerings of wheat futures and a dearth of speculative demand followed. Pronounced strength of the Liverpool wheat market acted at first as a counterbalance, and led later to rallies but of only a transient character.

Selling of wheat futures in Chicago came chiefly from houses with eastern connections. Much of the selling appeared to be profit-taking for recent buyers. Upturns of the Liverpool wheat market were associated with the fact that world shipment last week totaled but 8,128,000 bushels compared with 10,132,000 the preceding week and 10,111,000 a year ago.

French Monetary Situation Causes Slump in Stock Market; Fast Wave Of Selling at Close Cause of Drop

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Stocks closed under pressure today with losses of around 1 to 3 points recorded in a last-hour selling wave that left the ticker several minutes behind.

During most of the session an irregular tone prevailed, with buying in a number of rails and specialties proceeding side by side with liquidation in other sections of the list.

Wall street quarters again mentioned the uncertain French monetary and political situation as having caused uneasy selling. The precarious position of the franc was emphasized during the day as the bank of France lifted its discount of 5 per cent. The third boost in ten days failed to buoy the exchange value of the franc, which still stayed far below the gold export level from Paris.

Bonds suffered along with stocks in the late selling urge. In the loan market, also, an early buying movement in rails, especially secondary classifications, December 59 1/4-3/8, oats unchanged to 3/4 off, and provisions showing 5 to 17 cents decline.

No Change; Eggs Weak as Public Not Able to Find Fresh Ones

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Butter prices continued higher at Pacific coast points than anywhere else in the country. The chief shortage of supplies is in the east however. Prices here were high enough to bring in New Zealand butter. There was no change in butterfat.

Constantly weakening tone was continued in the market for eggs here with receipts slowly gaining but demand not improving because of the inability of the public to discover where it can get fresh stock.

Conditions within the cheese trade were generally of a strong character during the week.

Live Hens in Demand

There was an extreme call for live poultry here and especially Leghorn hens which are commanding up to 16c.

Idaho dressed ducks of real quality were reported around 22c pound for fancy with geese mostly 20c pound to retailers.

Last of the 1935 Oregon filbert crop was being moved out of graders' hands. Walnut market was active at recently bettered prices.

Most of the hothouse tomato sales were being made below top prices listed with demand not any too brisk.

Spinach market was easier to lower.

Cranberries were a trifle lower again with considerable stock on the docks and the public not buying freely.

Country killed meats were holding steady to firm.

Strong lettuce market was ruling in both San Fernando and Salinas sectors of California. Higher here too.

Good Bosc and Anjou pears are being offered; the former at 90c and the latter 50c for Hood River stock.

Apples continued firmly priced and higher in spots with an active local call.

Onions were about steady with growers holding tight for $2 net in the country.

Idaho Friends Meet

ORCHARD HEIGHTS, Nov. 25.—Mrs. Grace Bliss and daughter, Helen, have returned from a trip of several days in Portland where they were guests of old friends from Fairfield, Idaho, where they all formerly lived. While in Portland they also visited the families of Rev. Alexander Hawthorne and Rev. M. A. Groves, former pastors of the Summit church here.

Conditions within the cheese trade were generally of a strong character during the week.
