World-Famous Mickey Mouse Motif For Club of 3000 Children Here; Sage Gives Idea of Its Success

(Editor's Note: In this article, D. H. Talmadge visits the Mickey Mouse club and appraises a program. For many years The Statesman has cooperated with the Elsinore theatre in its Mickey Mouse program of which Zolzie Voichok has been the guiding genius.)

The "guy" who first declared this to be a world of surprises certainly knew what he was talking about when he talked. Probably Walt Disney had the greatest surprise of his life when his Mickey Mouse cartoons took hold of the public as they did. One day they were just another comic strip, and the next day they were evincing all the animation of a prairie fire.

The figure of Mickey, coupled with that of his partner in meeting the vicissitudes of life, Minnie, caught the favor of the entire nation. Eventually, they became world figures. Muscogli and the shah of Persia, among others, are on record as being of the opinion that Mickey Mouse is the world's greatest movie star.

This statement is not made on the authority of clip-sheets from Hollywood. It has come along in the course of the day's news and has the endorsement of the great news associations.

Mickey Liked—That's Point. It is quite useless to attempt to account for such things. Even if one were to account for them, nobody would care. The public likes Mickey Mouse, and that is enough. In the course of time, and not a very long time, either, Mickey Mouse took on definite character. He became the personification, or manification, of helpfulness and good company. He took life with a laugh and met its problems, serious and otherwise, bravely. When he undertook to do something, he had an advantage over ordinary mortals. He was only a cartoon, and a cartoon can do anything.

Following the comic strips in the newspapers and the animated cartoons in the picture shows, Mickey Mouse clubs were organized in all parts of the United States. In the list of such clubs Salem stands very near the top, both in point of membership and quality.

That this is a fact is due in a great degree to the talent and efforts, both as an organizer and program builder and director, of Zolzie Voichok. The membership of the Salem club members some what more than 3,000 boys and girls. From its beginning, the regular Saturday afternoon program has been featured at the Elsinore theatre. The seating capacity of this theatre is 1200.

Potato Control To Be Discussed

Meetings to Clarify Law Scheduled; Exemption Quotas Important

Oregon potato growers will be given opportunity in the next month and a half to file application for tax-free quotas under the federal Warren Potato Control act, according to arrangements announced by the Oregon State college extension service.

A state potato committee consisting of G. J. Hilliard, Klemath Falls; E. B. Eby, Redmond; and Robert Warren, Forest Grove, growers, has been appointed. Serving with them will probably be a member of the bureau of crop estimates staff in Portland and a member of the extension service.

Under a recent ruling the exemption has been raised from five bushels to 50 bushels. This means that any grower whose average annual potato sales for 1932 to 1935, inclusive, were not more than 50 bushels, may apply for and receive exemption stamps for such an amount. It does not mean that every grower will have a 50-bushel quota, but that if he can show average sales of 50 bushels or below, he will not need to make any reduction in order to sell all his usual crop, tax free. It is emphasized, however, that every grower who intends to sell any potatoes will need to apply for such exemption.

All other growers will apply for a quota for which they will be issued tax-free stamps. A national sales quota has been established which is still considerably above the total required to supply all of America's needs. In holding sales of table stock to this level, the growers will merely be removing the pressure from the market of excess potatoes which in years of large crops only rot in cellars anyway, according to those who have sponsored this means of adjustment.

Will Not Curtail. There is nothing in the law to prevent any grower from planting as many potatoes as he wishes, according to J. L. Maxton, principle field officer for the potato section, who was in Oregon recently helping set up the plan here. It is quite probable, he said, that efficient growers in specialized potato growing sections will want to plant their usual acreage. Then in case their production of first grade potatoes exceeds their quota, it will still be profitable for them in many cases to dispose of this excess by purchasing tax stamps from other growers who have been issued them but who, through crop failure or other reasons, have not filled their quota.

Dates for community potato meetings in nearby counties are: Clackamas, Dec. 31, Jan. 2 and 3; Yamhill, Jan. 13, 14, 15; Benton, Jan. 16, 17; Polk, Jan. 18, 19; Linn, Jan. 21, 22, 23; Marion, Jan. 24, 25, 27, 28.

Pair of Twins in Employ of State

The state department, through Earl Snell, secretary of state, today reported the employment of twin girls, for the first time in many years.

The girls are Mary Alice and Mary Katherine Foster, 1825 S. W. 16th street, Portland. They were assigned to employment in the motor vehicle division. "We'll have to watch out and not get these girls mixed," Snell told the state department time keeper. These are the only twins now employed in the state departments, the records show.

Cow Scared by Bear and Calf Inherits Her Fear Says Owner; Can't Tame

ROCKAWAY, Ore., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Otto Shearer, dairyman, doesn't know whether he needs a bronco buster or a psychoanalyst. At least, he would like advice about taming a calf which so far is unapproachable. He said the calf's mother was frightened in the woods by a bear and that her resultant nervousness is manifest many times over in her offspring. Shearer said the calf "would make a fine cow, too, otherwise."
