Fasnacht Named
Bandon Manager

John H. Fasnacht, who was graduated from Willamette university in 1926, has accepted appointment as manager for the town of Bandon, Ore., according to word received here yesterday. He will take over that position, which includes supervision of the municipal water and hydroelectric systems, Wednesday.

For the last nine years Fasnacht has been superintendent of schools at Bandon. The school board there has released him for one year to enable him to serve as city manager and reorganize the city's finances. As school superintendent he has been instrumental in reducing the Bandon district's budget by approximately 33 per cent.

Fasnacht is a son-in-law of Edward Rostein, chairman of the Salem water commission, and a member of Kappa Gamma Rho fraternity here.

Conway National Highway Adviser

Touring Board; Oregon Association Active in Promoting Travel

Oregon takes a leading role in the national program of travel development, with announcement that Ray Conway, Oregon State Motor association manager, has been appointed to the national touring board of the American Automobile association. Announcement of Conway's choice was made this week by Thomas P. Henry, president of AAA.

Conway, with 11 other members of the board, will advise in policy matters affecting motor travel; a national touring board advisory committee will handle details such as maps, tour books and travel services.

The Oregon association, under Conway's direction, has engaged in many activities designed to promote travel. Among them was the sending of members, Claudia Benson, to San Diego to represent Oregon and the northwest. Her work, it was believed, was instrumental in the improvement seen in the 1935 touring season.

The club also was active in a movement which resulted in legislation making the new Coast highway toll-free. Its highway signs, erected in cooperation with the state highway department, have given Oregon a reputation of having one of the best marked road systems in the United States.

Beamishes Hosts At Holiday Party

JEFFERSON, Dec. 30.—Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Colgan and daughter Barbara attended the Christmas eve party at the home of Mrs. Colgan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Beamish near Salem. Star Coming Grete Stueckgold, who will be soloist Monday night, January 6, with the Portland symphony orchestra. She is a prima donna star of the Metropolitan opera company.

This amusement device takes its name from the resemblance, through extension of eight arms from a central pole, and movement to the Octopus. On each of the arms is seated small cars, seating two to four persons, depending upon size of the car. The cars rotate about the center of the pole, and also can move up and down, traveling as high as 20 feet in the air.

Prima Donna Will Sing at Portland

An unusual musical opportunity is afforded Oregon music lovers Monday night, January 6, when Grete Stueckgold, prima donna soprano with the Metropolitan Opera company, sings with the Portland symphony orchestra, Willem van Hoogstraten, conducting.

Madame Stueckgold is a leading concert, recital and radio star, born in London of English and German parents. She was educated in Germany, made her concert debut in Bremen when only 16 and her first opera appearance at 18 in Nuremberg.

In New York, among other roles, she sang in Verdi's "Aida," and in Wagner's "Lohengrin," "Tannhauser" and "Die Meistersinger."

In the season of 1933-1934 she made eight appearances as soloist in the philharmonic-symphony orchestra. Her first New York recital took critics and public by storm. "As distinguished in concert as in opera" was the verdict.

Tickets are now on sale for the concert in Portland and a number of Salem people plan to attend.

Clearing of Farm Land Carried On

SHELBURN, Dec. 30.—G. C. Miller is having a number of acres cleared this winter. Nick Braun is doing the work. Sam Burdick is cutting wood on the Al Ewing farm. A number of farmers are taking advantage of the open winter and are clearing and otherwise improving their farms.

Harry Sturm, Shelburn school teacher, is spending part of his vacation in Seattle. The school will be in recess until January 6. By that time it is hoped the community will be free from chicken-pox and all of the children will be able to be back in school.

Shelburn friends of Mrs. W. H. McLain remembered her with a shower of small gifts on Christmas. Mrs. McLain has been bedfast for the past year and is only up at intervals in a wheel chair.

Eyerly Invention Being Built Here

'Octopus' More Elaborate Than Precursor; to Be Popular, Claim

Manufacture of a second amusement device, the Octopus, designed by Lee Eyerly and his associates, is getting under way at the Eyerly Aircraft shops here. The third Octopus is now under construction, and though the machine is still in the experimental stage a number of tentative orders were booked by Eyerly and Robin Reed recently while they were in attendance at the eastern showmen's convention.

This amusement device takes its name from the resemblance, through extension of eight arms from a central pole, and movement to the Octopus. On each of the arms is seated small cars, seating two to four persons, depending upon size of the car. The cars rotate about the center of the pole, and also can move up and down, traveling as high as 20 feet in the air.

The New Year's eve midnight matinee at the Elsinore theatre tonight, starting at 11:30 p. m., promises a lively bill of both stage and screen features.

There will be five vaudeville acts, including the feature, several of these have been delivered this winter, and several orders were received at the showmen's convention. Construction on the Loop-o-plane is still going forward, with 105 of these turned out to date.

Advanced in Meat Prices Reflected in Bids Upon State Supplies, Stated

Meat prices are steadily advancing, Dan J. Fry, state purchasing agent, informed the board of control yesterday. The next quarter's supplies of meats will cost the state eight per cent more than the last three months in 1934 and 15 per cent more than the third quarter of 1934.

State Treasurer Holman commented that rising prices of foods were adversely affecting white collar workers. While Governor Martin commented that eastern Oregon should be pleased by the greater income available for livestock growers. The state will spend $25,000 for meat in the forthcoming three months.
