Chain Burglaries Occur, Jefferson

JEFFERSON, Jan. 29.—Eight burglaries in one night is the Tuesday night record for Jefferson, with the places entered including the postoffice, where entrance was made through a rear door. No loot was taken at the postoffice, and at all other places the search was apparently for money chiefly.

Places entered and articles taken included: Sam Pease home, purse with $4 to $5; Jasper Main home, $8, ransacked house; W. L. Cobb, billfold containing $33 taken from pants pocket with knife and watch ignored; William Vanderveen house, ransacked but nothing missing; Rex Cobb, $5 from pocket and some valuable papers.

The burglar was frightened away from the Glenn Cobb residence by a dog and he was frightened away from the W. S. Halderman residence after he had entered it. Halderman, S. P. agent here, lives next to Pease.
Nothing missing; Rex Cobb, $4. Some money was also taken from the Christian church on Main street. They also tried to gain entrance to the garage on Mrs. Sallie Tandy's property, but failed.

Bonneville—One of Uncle Sam's Big Jobs

These photographs assembled by the Travel and Information Department of the Oregon State Highway Commission give one an idea of the gigantic scale of the great power and navigation project of the Columbia. Photograph No. 1 shows where an army of workmen with giant machinery is building a section of the main spillway dam between Bradford island and the Washington shore. Cofferdams keep the river out while the work goes forward. Picture No. 2 gives some conception of the heavy machinery used in moving the thousands of tons of rock and earth. Picture No. 3 shows a group of the buildings constructed on the Oregon shore near the dam to house permanent employees. Landscaping and architecture are exceedingly attractive. The site of the dam is 42 miles east of Portland on the Columbia River Highway. Thousands stop to gaze down on the herculean job every week. It is one of the great construction projects of the nation worth going a long way to see.
