Deacon Ousted As Policeman

Patrolman Announces He Will Demand Hearing; Minto Takes Action

Minto. He was assigned to the downtown foot patrolman's beat between Commercial street and the river and Patrolman Frank Winslow was transferred from that beat to the one formerly in Deacon's charge, between High and Liberty streets.

Joseph W. Marcroft who ranked above Simpson on the civil service list following examinations last April, had disqualified himself for police service by having moved outside the city. Moore stated Marcroft is now operating the Bazaar Visiting Club.

Deacon entered the police department in September, 1930. He had served as night sergeant on Friday nights during the past year.

The watch thief apparently broke the jewelry store window with a "jimmy" after trying unsuccessfully to unscrew the metal frame around the glass. Through the hole, barely large enough for him to reach through with one hand, he got at the watches by pulling the cloth from which they were hung through the opening.

The loot was the largest of all the downtown burglary cases in recent years here. It consisted of men's and women's wrist watches valued from $10 to $65. Six were Walthams, seven jewels, two Helbrogs, two Hamiltons and four Elgins. They were not insured, the proprietor, R. C. Alken, said.

The police department has sent out circulars listing the stolen watches to other departments in the north west. Further copies may be obtained at police headquarters. The store window was intact at 11 p. m. Saturday night, Harry Rowe, merchant's patrolman, said. The burglary was discovered shortly before a o'clock Sunday morning by Deputy Sheriff Bert Smith, who notified city police.
