Texas Governor "Nation's Foremost Young Man"

Gov. James V. Allred

Mr. and Mrs. Allred

As work speeds toward completion for the Texas centennial which opens June 6, the spotlight turns with increasing intensity on the governor of the Lone Star state, James V. Allred, the man who is due a major share of the credit for making possible one of the big events of 1936 for the southwest.

When Allred left the navy after the war to return to his home in Wichita Falls, he had little to qualify him for the executive mansion except determination and perseverance. A clerk's job yielded him enough money to finance a law education at Cumberland Law school in Tennessee. Returning to Wichita Falls, he began practicing law, was defeated for attorney general in 1926, won the post in 1931 and was re-elected in 1932. He became governor on June 15, 1935, and was named the "nation's most outstanding young man" last year by the U. S. Junior Chamber of Commerce.
