"No Favor Sway Us; No Fear Shall Awe" From First Statesman, March 28, 1851

THE STATESMAN PUBLISHING CO. CHARLES A. SPRAGUE - - - - Editor-Manager SHELDON F. SACKETT - - - - Managing-Editor Member of the Associated Press

The Associated Press is exclusively entitled to the use for publication of all news dispatches credited to it or not otherwise credited in

Three TVA Opinions

THE three opinions in the TVA case are interesting. Chief Justice Hughes wrote the opinion which prevailed; Justice Brandeis wrote an opinion concurring with the Hughes conclusion but asserting the case should have been thrown out for lack of jurisdiction; Justice McReynolds concurred with Hughes in the propriety of the court's taking jurisdiction but denied the constituionality of the TVA proceedings. In this comment we do not discuss the argument of the three learned justices, but other phases of the opinions.

The narrowest view (as to the question involved) was that taken by Brandeis, with Stone, Roberts and Cardozo joining him. That view was that the preferred stockholders of the Alabama Power company had no right to come into court against the directors and the common stockholders and attack the deal made by the directors in selling transmission ed them to send "Jimmie" as a lines to TVA. It was distinctly a legalistic opinion, consist- delegate to the Democratic coning chiefly of citations from previous decisions. Naturally vention where the Roosevelt man- have read, "being graduated in there is scant room for literary style in such an opinion.

The Hughes opinion is broader,-though not much. It holds (with the customary citations from preceding decisions | Democrat takes his much-adver- | successful pioneer physician. He to support the view) that the preferred stockholders have a right to sue where they think the directors have failed to protect their interests "in yielding, without appropriate resistance, to governmental demands which are without warrant of law or are in violation of constitutional restrictions." But on the issue Justice Hughes set sharp limits: "We limit our decisions to the case before us, as we have defined it." While his argument is clear and his logic convincing his style is rather labored.

In his single dissenting opinion Justice McReynolds, whose home was in Tennessee, takes into consideration not merely the TVA-Alabama Power company contract, but the literature of TVA with its expansive plans for remaking the Tennessee valley. He says he finds no serious difficulty in granting the power of the United States to dispose of surplus electricity "honestly developed in connection with permissible improvement of navigable waters"; but as he views the record it "leaves no room for reasonable doubt that the primary the Government initiated an inpurpose was to put the federal government into the business of distributing and selling electric power throughout certain large districts, to expel the power companies which had long ed as indefinite. serviced them, and to control the market therein." To prove the purpose fo TVA he quotes from its own reports: "no less a goal than the electrification of America".

When he throws open the question in its broad implica- had been dropped. High Tamtions there is room for some forceful writing, and while his many officials were quoted a few dissent is not so brilliantly chiseled as were the lone opinions days ago as saying that his declaof the late Mr. Justice Holmes, McReynolds does write with a refreshing lucicity.

The middle-of-the-road view as to jurisdiction represented in the Hughes opinion is presumably correct (it had a ma- Mr. Farley. It cannot, of course, jority in its favor, which settles the matter); but the broad be proved that the Administration issue defined by Justice McReynolds remains unsettled. How has "let up" on Mr. Walker. The far can congress authorize TVA and kindred agencies to go with the objective "no less a goal than the electrification of were altogether unfounded. And it

Dark Politics in Washington

THOSE who think that civic virtue was so regenerated in 1933 that the powers of darkness have been put to flight, keep low-minded people from are altogether too trusting. In the atmosphere of change thinking there was a certain and upset the need was greater for the manipulator, the fixer, the lobbyist, the wire-puller. This gets proof in the letter Farley's request not only think it written by the Washington representative of the Boeing Air- but openly voice the thought. craft corporation to the president of the Aeronautical chamber of commerce, explaining that Max Gardner, former democratic national committeeman from North Carolina, had a time ahead of his home-coming been retained on account of his political influence. The letter flop for Mr. Roosevelt was just

"Max Gardner, special counsel employed shortly after the cancellation of air mail contracts, was paid $75,000.

"This year he will remain for $25,000, which item is included in the budget. Personally I feel that Gardner can be of more help during this session of Congress, in order to get proper air mail legislation, than he has been to the industry during the past

"He came into the picture after the damage had been done. He is a politician of the first water and my observations tell me that in this administration, in order to get things done, resort simply has to be made to the use of politics.

"Therefore, Gardner, as counsel for the chamber, I feel, will be more valuable during the present session of Congress than he has been since the cancellation of air mail contracts last February.

While Gardner charges high for his services, and there is nothing to prove the use of methods particularly heinous, the comment of the author reveals the true color of affairs in Washington, even under this administration: "my observations tell me that in this administration, in order to get things done, resort simply has to be made to the use of politics." The word "politics" may cover a wide area. In the case of Mr. Gardrer he made it spread to $100,000 worth.

With all the money to distribute, all the jobs to give out, all the contracts to grant the administration has provided a field day for the lawyers and lobbyists with real or reputed political influence. For them, at least, the depression is over.

Ten Principles

CONFUCIUS outlined the following "ten principles of political development"; 1, Ching Tien, or distribution of social wealth; 2, attention to technical invention; 3, eugenics, meaning here the choice of mothers; 4, benevolent government; 5, criminal justice; 6, Li, which seems to mean a type of balance or moderation; 7, music, including under that term art, poetry, rhythm, appreciation of beauty of nature, recreation; 8, religion, familial and divine; 9, education; 10, faith in progress.

The ten principles are still vital, particularly the first,-"distribution of social wealth".

Many folk who are keen for new schemes to circulate other people's money through the method of taxation do not realize that they help to bear the burden. The cost of the present adventure into vast deficits is being borne by the masses to a greater degree than is realized. The processing taxes were 30 per cent sales taxes on the very necessities of life. The proportion of federal taxes raised by indirect taxation has risen from 27.5 per cent to 66 per cent in 1934 and 61.5 per cent in 1935. In the higher cost of living is buried the increased burden. It is there; it is felt; it is not identified. Add a dose of inflation and the poor are robbed of the abundant life which has been a glittering phrase to them.

Senator Borah devoted most of his initial speech as a candidate to scolding Great Britain, Is the distinguished Idahoan tearing a lead out of the political guide-book of ex-mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago, who won office on his platform of punching King George on the snoot?

The Oregon City Enterprise says there's a limit to PWA patience on Oregon's getting started with its capitol program. Offhand, we'd say the inside limit is November 3.

Plenty of candidates announcing themselves with declarations that they support the Townsend plan; but what has become of the crop of two years ago that endorsed the new deal?

Some wonderment is expressed because Walter Johnson could throw a dollar across the Rappahanock river. It would be remem- Stayton school and teacher of bered however that it was only a 59e dollar,

The Great Game of Politics

By FRANK R. KENT Copyright 1935, by The Baltimore Sun

Things That Breed Fear Washington, Feb. 24. WHEN politicians fall out, begin to charge, counter charge, assert, wholly truthful part: it wouldn't be politics and be politicians.

Frank B. Kent vised that Mr. Farley had request- of 1867." 'wise crack" at Alfred E. Smith, many leaders declared, they had rejected. On behalf of Mr. Farley it was denied that any such request had been made.

IT IS an interesting controversy. Back in 1932, Mr. Walker's resignation was forced after a sensational hearing before Mr. Roosevelt, then Governor of New York. The "Play Boy" Mayor, badly discredited and bitterly angry, went abroad. His feeling toward Mr. Roosevelt was one of intense hostility. Mr. Roosevelt profited politically by the Walker incident because he conducted the inquiry with great skill, dignity and fairness. But the friends of Mr. Walker did not think so. They felt he had been "sacrificed" and when vestigation into his income tax, he became practically an exile. His stay on the other side was regard-

BUT NOT long ago return he did. It was widely stated that the internal revenue case against him ration in favor of Mr. Roosevelt 'is part of his gratitude to the Administration for not pressing the investigation into his income tax." Treasury Department may just have discovered its suspicions cannot be proved that Mr. Walker is now for Mr. Roosevelt out of "gratitude." He may just realize that Mr. Roosevelt at that Albany hearing could have done nothing else and his hat have changed to love. However, it is impossible to amount of undercover fixing. The Tammany men who rejected Mr.

PERHAPS the abandonment of the Walker investigation so short a coincidence like that of the publicity given the suit alleging that Mr. Raskob, and Mr. Du Pont were a pair of conspirators, just ahead of Mr. Smith's Liberty league speech. However, these coincidences are sufficiently striking to have a considerable effect Coupled with other little things. they are responsible for the idea which has percolated rather genrally in business and banking circles that it is "unwise" to get "in bad" with the administration.

NO matter how meticulously honest a man may be, the point is made that the Internal Revenue Department, if it desires, can cause him an immense amount of costly trouble. The power to punish is there, even when not used. Not many want to take the risk. Accordingly, somewhat the same sort of disposition is being evinced by business men and bankers, strongly hostile to the New Deal, noted in certain Democratic Senators, equally hostile. They are against it. They feel it vital to them and to the country that it should be defeated. But, individually, they would rather not be too conspicuous in the fight at the moment. Their fear is easy to understand.

THOSE suits against the Messrs. Mellon, Raskob, Du Pont and others may have been entirely free from any trace of the punitive spirit. And the Tammany people may be all wrong about the reason the Walker investigation was dropped. It may all be very meritorious, indeed. None the less, it is impossible not to note that the cases being pressed invariably appear to be against men active as advice that you consult with your leaders in th eanti-New Deal fight, while the one not pressed affects a politician who declares himself in line. In brief, these coincidences breed a species of fear of the Government heretofore unknown. It isn't a pretty thing to contemplate.

West Stayton Pupils Make Fine Record in County Spelling Test

WSET STAYTON, Feb. 24-In the county wide spelling test given by County Superintendent Mary L. Fulkerson, the West Stayton pupils of the sixth, seventh, and eighth grades ranked first in the three room group.

The seventh grade is exceptiongrade was first in the county wide test given in October of this school year as well. C. D. Chorpening is principal of the West thest three grades.

Bits for Breakfast

By R. J. HENDRICKS

Dr. McAfee was one 2-25-36 | first term) in attendance was 20. of founders of medical (As noted heretofore, three graddepartment of Willamette: uated.)

"Twenty - one students were in

"The attendance in the session

"One feature of the last session

The institution was a pioneer

since such a person as a woman

Another paragraph in the Waller article: "We refer to the 27 dence of the adaptness and suc-

S. C. Simpson at that time held dence. He was a brother of Sam

Simpson, poet laureate, author of managers and editors of The Statesman. They were graduates

5 5 5

then called "the new university building," the cornerstone of which was first occupied in 1867, said hight and not height), inis about two-thirds finished. The first floor contains the chapel, about 600 persons. . . . The second floor contains four rooms, and is occupied by the preparatory, young ladies' and academic department, the latter being under the supervision of two teach-

"The third floor contains six

rooms-TWO BEING OCCUPIED

BY THE MEDICAL DEPART-

MENT, three by the societies connected with the school, the Hesperian, Alka and Young Ladies

Literary Society, and one as the

He had said: "West of the chapel are the ladies' reception room, or parlor: the library which contains between five and six hundred volumes; and the ladies' hall. East of the chapel are the gentlemen's reception room.

at present used as a recitation room for the classical department,

The medical department of Wil-

It was moved back to Salem in 1895, and in 1905 the brick building now known as Science hall was erected for its use with mon-lamette university was moved to Portland June 8, 1878.

by the people of Salem.

the apparatus room, and the gen

painting room."

tlemen's hall.'

. . . and will comfortably seat

"It is five stories in hight (he

In describing what is now

of Willamette university.

Edmund Waller said:

"The Beautiful Willamette." The

doctor was never imagined.

cess of our efforts."

attendance, nine of whom graduated," wrote Mr. Waller of the of 1868-9 was 17, nine of whom

(Concluding from Sunday:) The Bits man has before him a biographical sketch of Dr. W. A. second term, commencing on No-Cusick, one of three members of vember 4, 1867. He wrote: accuse, alibi and deny, it is a pret- the first graduating class from ty sound rule the medical department of Wilnot to believe lamette university - the sketch graduated. either side. If being in the Chapman book, pubeither were lished in Chicago. It reads in

* * * "In 1860 he matriculated in the number was still further rethey wouldn't Bethel college, in Bethel, Polk duced. county, Oregon . . . In 1864, having determined to make the practice of medicine his life work, he the course of medical instructions are indu- began studying under the direc- tion." ced by the re- tion of Dr. McAfee of Salem, with cent controver- whom he remained for two years, sy between and then entered the Toland Med-"leaders of ical college at San Francisco, the Tammany" and course of which he completed in Mr. James A. Farley, the great 1867. He then became a member name caller, over the ex-Mayor of of the first class in the medical New York, James J. Walker. The department of Willamette univer- graduates that we have thus far Tammany authorities publicly ad- sity, being graduated in the fall presented to the state as an evi-

The Bits man thinks it should agement wanted to use him to June, 1867," not the fall of 1867. Dr. Cusick, as all Oregon old if and when that anti-Roosevelt timers know, was a prominent and tised walk. This request, the Tam- commenced practicing at old Waconda, and continued at Gervais, when the railroad put the overland stages out of business, and nearly all of old Waconda moved to the then boom town of Gervais. Then, for many years, in Sa-

The whole of the biographical sketch on Dr. Cusick would be interesting now, and it will appear in this column at a later date. * * *

The 1871 Salem Directory shows that Dr. McAfee then had his office in the Griswold block (now Murphy block southwest corner Commercial and State), and his home on Liberty between Marion and Union.

The 1874 Directory showed his office south side of State between High and Liberty, and his home northwest corner High and Trade, 5 5 5

The 1871 Directory, the first issued for Salem, contained an article on Willamette university by Edmund J. Waller, who was a son of A. F. ("Father") Waller, for whom Waller hall was namedappropriately, for without his efforts the institution would not have had such a building, if, indeed, it had survived. Edmund Waller had, under a sub heading, some pertinent matter concerning the medical department of Willamette, including the quoted words that follow: 5 5 5

Health

By Royal S. Copeland, M.D.

LOW BLOOD pressure, known to the doctors as "hypotension", is a condition too often neglected. In my opinion it should be given more con- cal department of the University sideration. It is responsible for much of Oregon, Portland. discomfort and may prove to be very

It is like "hypertension", high blood pressure, in that it is not a disease. It is a symptom indicating some disorder within the body.

Hypotension may be associated with ill health. While some persons with low blood pressure appear to be in perfect health, most of them are under par and easily fatigued.

I am often asked to explain what is the usual blood pressure and what is meant when pressure is said to be "low". The normal, or average, blood pressure varies with age, sex, weight, occupation and the state of the general health. As a rule, the figure one hundred added to the patient's age will give some idea of what the blood pressure should be. For example, the average man of 40 years will have a blood pressure of about 140.

If it is found to be somewhere between 100 and 110 it is regarded as low. Yet it is probable that 20 per cent of the population have blood pressure below 110.

Various Causes

There are various causes for low pressure. The reasons for some cases cannot be determined. Usually it can be traced to some glandular disturbfrom diseased teeth, tonsils, nasal sinuses or adenoids. It may accompany stomach ulcer, tuberculosis or Addison's disease.

Sufferers from low blood pressure tire easily, lacking "pep" and energy. They are listless, complain of digestive disturbances, and are subject to colds and infections. Usually they have poor health and may complain of dizziness and fainting spells at frequent intervals.

Not every case of low blood pres sure need be considered alarming. Indeed, many who have it are totally unaware of its presence because they enjoy good health. But if you have some physical disability and are subject to various complaints, it is my

Answers to Health Queries

E. M. Q .- Can adenoids and tonsils cause eczema? A .- Any underlying infection may be a disturbing element, For full particulars restate your question and send a stamped, self-addressed enve-

A. N. Q .- What can be done for excess acid in the stomach? 2: Will properly-fitted support relieve a fallen stomach?

A .- Proper diet should help to overcome the trouble. For full particulars restate your question and send a stamped, self-addressed enveope. 2. A properly-fitted support will give increased comfort. For full particulars restate your question and send a stamped, self-addressed en-

Dr. Copeland is glad to answer inquiries from renders scho send addressed stamped envelopes with their questions. All inquiries should be addressed to him in care of this neurapaper. (Copyright, 1956, K. F. S., Inc.)

A Speed Governor for This Car

OF VENUS" By Robert Terry Shannon

SYNOPSIS

In the dining room of a Los Anproached by Denton Terhune, well known San Francisco lawyer. Attracted by Indias's have a stonishing institute. known San Francisco lawyer. Attracted by Juliet's beauty and aloofness, he asks if he might char with her. Terhune introduces Mary to Madame Hubert, wealthy beauty expert, whom he describes as the oddest and most interesting woman in Los Angeles, and her handsome, young manager, Thomas O'Hara O'Hara is worried over the case of a Mrs. Gottlieb who is in a serious condition at the beauty institute due to her heart being too weak to stand the ether administered during the performance of istered during the performance of a facial operation. Madame Huhowever, appears uncon"it's an established fact that three- fession and I charge the highest cerned. She compliments Juliet on her beauty and offers her a position. O'Hara objects strenuously, saying: "Take my advice and keep out of it. I don't like you and you don't like me-we would never get on together." Madame claims O'Hara fears Juliet is after his job. He leaves in anger. Juliet won-ders why O'Hara affects her so strangely. Then it dawns upon her that he resembles her dead sweetheart. Madame takes Juliet to the longer. Juliet hears the dying woman calling her erring husband for whose love she had undergone the dangerous operation. Juliet sends for Gottlieb and upbraids

CHAPTER V

Gottlieb gave his face a circular mopping. The smell of perfume from his handkerchief reached Juliet and, at the same moment, he became aware of it himself. With a look of mingled surprise and disgust he dropped the scented thing into the moderne wastebasket.

"Where," he asked, with a grotesque little touch of dignity, "is my wife? Please take me to her at once."

Juliet went down the corridor with Gottlieb trotting at her heels.

At the proper door she stood aside and let him enter. The nurse, who

But Gottlieb already was in the room--more, he was on the side of the bed and his short arms were trying to embrace the still form under the white covers.

"Liebchen . . . liebchen . . . lieblieb-at the sound of that loved voice-opened her eyes. Juliet and the nurse, both watching, saw a could do to aid the stricken couple.

Already she had done more than Von Guerdon with all of his Heideldown the corridor and moving to-

Evidently this was O'Hara's

reled at him unceasingly in a gloomy

Hostility glared out at her from under O'Hara's black brows. "Well?" he demanded.

berg training and science.

matters now."

was reading a book, jumped up.
"He can't come in here!"

him for his conduct.

ey subscribed for the most part As indicated, it closed its doors in 1913; merged with the mediinstitute with the vague hope that she may be able to help her with Mrs. Gottlieb. Dr. Von Guerdon, the house specialist, tells them Mrs. Gottlieb cannot live much

Pauline B. Smith Called to Beyond

MONMOUTH, Feb. 24-Mrs. Pauline Blodgett Smith, 24, died this morning at the family home here following a long illness. She was born April 19, 1911, at Airlie, and had lived all her life in Polk county. She was married three years ago to Charles E. Smith, who survives.

Surviving also are her parents Mr. and Mrs. Harry Blodgett, three sisters, Bernice, Mary and Helen, two brothers, Leo and Leonard, all of Monmouth. Funeral arrangements the incomplete, but the services will be held at the Catholic church at Independence.

Lawrence Brown Takes Over Alfred's Business As Silverton Attorney

SILVERTON, Feb.24-Attorney Lawrence Brown of Salem has taken over the law practice of Attorney Frank Alfred of Silverton, who with Mrs. Alfred left the last of the week for Heppner to make his home. Alfred has been at Silverton for the past five years since his graduation from the law school of Willamette university.

Twenty Years Ago

February 25, 1916 Col. and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt are en route to the United States from the British West In-

Rain does as much damage to the front line trenches in France as bombardment from heavy artillery, a dispatch from Paris

An editorial points out the "new" danger of poisoning from automobile exhaust fumes.

Ten Years Ago

February 25, 1926 Iowa is compiling a list of persons unfit for marriage which will be on file at all county clerk's offices. They will be denied licenses.

Residents of South Salem will meet the week to discuss a locaschool.

A show girl bathed in a tub of wine before guests at a party last night given in New York by Earl Carroll.

alized there was a tension between Even the noiseless elevators con-Von Guerdon and O'Hara. Again trived to resemble the interior of she was astonished at the inhar-

Von Guerdon smiled slightly.

"My dear O'Hara," he said coolly, "I pay the best wages in the pro-ter of salary her generosity was surprising.

jewel boxes. Wherever possible, daylight had been rigidly excluded and substi-

The white uniformed nurse appeared in the doorway. Von Guerdon's brows lifted a trifle. "Dead?" chen ..."

It was not, strictly speaking, a miracle but undeniably Mrs. Gotttenths of one percent of all women prices," she explained. "My people over fifty under general anaesthet- are all the best, clients and employics fail to recover. That is a uni- ees both. O'Hara told you I was a versal fact and no odiom can pos- miser, but that was only his irritasibly attach to the surgeon." tion speaking. He gets a thumping The tall, blonde physician, with good income and so will you if you faint tide of color creep back to the ashen face. The lips moved stiffly, but a faintly malicious for the lips moved stiffly, but a faintly malicious for the lips moved stiffly, but a faintly malicious for the lips moved stiffly, but a faintly malicious for the lips moved stiffly, but a faintly malicious for the lips moved stiffly, but a faintly malicious for the lips moved stiffly, but a faintly malicious for the lips moved stiffly, but a faintly malicious for the lips moved stiffly, but a faintly malicious for the lips moved stiffly, but a faintly malicious for the lips moved stiffly, but a faintly malicious for the lips moved stiffly, but a faintly malicious for the lips moved stiffly.

smile.

"Don't take too seriously what So Juliet's trim figure slipped in Mr. O'Hara says," he remarked, and out of divers suites and departenough to hear what they uttered. "If it's her husband I suppose he has got the right," said the nurse guardedly to Juliet; "not that it with a veneer of pleasantness. "It ments, upstairs and down and was he, I believe, who selected me around strange corners into a beas surgeon-in-chief-out of two wildering existence of facial creams Juliet, without a reply, left the hundred applicants." room. There was nothing more she come at once." The voice was agi- tea-trays, magazines and expensive There was the sound of voices and go home. Her husband keeps Juliet was, of course, familiar wards them Juliet came to a partly talking to her—and the pulse is almost normal!" with beauty parlors but nothing so enormous and impressive as Maopen door, which revealed a sump-tuous office. The furniture inside was lavish but masculine. Madame Hubert's black eyes sud- dame Hubert's. denly became so alive that they seemed to snap and crackle. Von Guerdon, slim and meticulous, beside a long open window with a rich Egyptian cigarette in his fingers. Juliet entered.

Senting that that Miss Rankin was couldn't; brainy women and stupid women; young, middle-aged, and old women; debutantes, brides, widows, and sweethearts.

And, strangest of all bordes of der O'Hara's black brows. The next day, and for many thereafter, the Institute was a world of fascination for Juliet. "Well, if Mrs. Gottlieb has to die it's going to be in her husband's arms, because that's where she is now," said Juliet quietly. She included the three of them in her steady ironic gaze. "I don't know whether I've saved you any money or not."

"I don't know either," returned O'Hara, "but I wanted to get Gottlieb here myself in the first place."

"Well, you've had your own way and you should be satisfied," Madame Hubert told him, shrugging. "I hope your idea turns out all right—for once."

world of fascination for Juliet.

In the first place Madame Hubert in a mauve-tone office on the top floor. Not a skimpy business cubicle but a palatial room with silk curtains stirring in the breeze, a velvet carpet, a small feminine desk and a settee with graceful chairs to match, all done in expensive and subdued fabrics and lacquered design. In the ordinary world of business no such offices exist; they are to be found joined the firm. Juliet was welforted by the fertile dreams of interior decorates.

-for once."
"Certain to!" chipped in Von Guerdon, with a flick in his voice.
This was the first time Juliet reoffice, but to the whole Institute.

and ointments, reducing cabinets, The white uniformed nurse ap- masseuses, hair-cutters, manicurpeared in the doorway. Von Guerdists, wavers, cosmeticians, and an don's brows lifted a trifle. "Dead?" army of uniformed hostesses mov-"Oh no, Doctor, but I wish you'd ing about with a procession of silver

By noon, more than a hundred sanctum, for he was planted at his desk while Madame Hubert quar-cried shrilly. "I knew from the becould afford it and women who women were being creamed, ginning that that Miss Rankin was couldn't; brainy women and stupid young and lovely women who had emerged from their morning baths triumphant with all of Nature's unimprovable beauty, flocked here in the firm faith that some mysterious because she was from that kingdom of heaven called the Front Office.

(To Be Continued) 1822, by King Features Srndl