

Common Sense Carson's Plea

Work, Thrift Will Solve Problems Is Message of Portland Mayor

The nation needs a "renaissance in common sense," Mayor Joseph Carson of Portland told Salem Kiwanians yesterday noon at the Quella.

Carson, a democrat, evoked applause which time again he scored "false leaders" who would "array class against class" and make it appear that "something could be had for nothing."

"Jack-leg and tin-horn politicians stir up the people," Carson declared, saying the public was kept in a state of discontent when the remedy for their troubles lay in work, thrift and self-reliance.

The mayor pleaded with business men to "stand with leaders who think rightly."

"We need an honest leadership, not afraid to take a licking," Mayor Carson declared. "If there is anything provoking to me today it is men who give lip service to a cause and behind their hands tell friends the cause is futile and unsound."

Debt Chief Cause

Mayor Carson said the principal cause of depression was debt. "We have reached a sorry state when obligations of individuals are not considered good and obligations of states and of the federal government are considered the only good investment," he averred. "Governments do not reach a higher state of morality than the aggregate level of the individuals who compose them."

"I would like to see Oregon take the lead in being the first state in the union to say 'We can take care of our needy without federal help. We do not have to go to Washington with our hat in our hand for help. We are not political mendicants.'"

Carson cited at length a variety of statistics revealing the pyramiding of debt in Portland. He said the aggregate of state, city and school district debts in the assessed valuation of Portland was $72,000,000 with assessed valuation shrinking $10,000,000 annually since 1929. He cited several instances where Portland had paid far more in interest on a bonded debt than the entire principal sum of the obligation.

No Overproduction

The mayor said he refused to accept the idea that there was overproduction of needed goods. He said mankind had never had

Elderly Men Die, Oregon City Fire

OREGON CITY, Ore., March 10—(AP)—John Anderson and William Wells, both about 70, died today in a fire which broke out at a private home at which they were supported by the county.

Jasper Kidwell and Ferdinand Pahl incurred painful but not serious burns. Ed Surtis, fire chief, was overcome by smoke in attempting to rescue the inmates. He was dragged to safety. Several other persons received minor injuries.

The chief said the fire started from a match used by a boarder in lighting a pipe.

Land Possession Case Is Decided

Plaintiffs in the suit of Elgin D. Soules, et al. against Ella Soules, are not entitled to possession of two parcels of land in Woodburn and defendant has a life estate in the lands, but they have an eight-ninths interest in the property, according to circuit court ruling this week.

The suit also involved title to 90 acres in Clackamas county, in which the court ruled the defendant has no interest and ordered that possession of the Clackamas county property pass immediately to the plaintiffs.

Speeder Agrees To Forfeit $25

When James W. Russell of Seattle came roaring down South Commercial street late Monday night at 65 miles an hour, he forgot to reckon that the car following him might be piloted by an officer. Anyway, he informed Officer Farley Mogan that he was "just playing" after the officer's siren stopped him.

Officer Mogan charged Russell with reckless driving after he had barely avoided striking another car. Russell, on his way north to take a boat Tuesday morning for Alaska, put up $25 at the same time writing to Judge Hayden here that he would enter a plea of guilty and suggesting the $25 be accepted as the fine.

Elks Club Bridge Season Is Ending

Final contract bridge play at the Elks' club this season under the direction of George Ketchum will come this afternoon when a group of women will play at the Elks' temple here. Mr. Ketchum, who has been conducting tournaments and bridge classes since last fall, yesterday expressed his appreciation for the cooperation and support given him by members of the lodge.

"There has been much improvement among the play of most of the persons playing at the club," Ketchum said. "A number of the players could become very expert with some more practice."

Bridge will be played at the club this spring but it will be without the direction of a special supervisor.

In Monday night's play Mr. and Mrs. Max Gunter won first place, north and south. Second place went to Mrs. Victor Boveille and to Mrs. Frank Prime. Mrs. L. S. Rankin and George Ketchum won first east and west and Max Jones and L. S. Rankin took second.

George Peck Dies, Funeral Is Today

Salem Resident 40 Years, Was One of Oldest Men in Community; 97

Funeral services for George D. Peck, aged 97 years, will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Clough-Barrick chapel. Interment will be in Belmont Memorial park. Death came yesterday after a brief illness from influenza.

Mr. Peck was born June 3, 1839, in Great Barrington, Mass., where he spent his childhood. He attended a little red schoolhouse and in early manhood moved with his parents to northern Illinois.

From Illinois, he settled in LaPort City, Iowa, where he spent the greatest part of his life. February 22, 1863, he married Clarissa L. Eaton. Five children were born to them, the youngest, Fred, passing away on their silver wedding anniversary. Surviving are Prof. Morton E. Peck of Willamette university; Henry S. Peck, Mrs. Alice M. Prescott and Mrs. R. D. Cooper, all of Salem; two grandchildren, Gerald Prescott of Albion, Mich., and Ward Prescott of Salem, and three great-grandchildren.

Was Nature Lover

The Pecks moved to Salem 40 years ago and built his home south of the city in which they made their home down to the present time. Mrs. Peck preceded her husband in death three years ago.

Mr. Peck comes from old American stock and was fond of relating experiences which his great-grandfather had told him of the Revolutionary war. He was a great lover of nature and collected and mounted birds, skins and eggs for museums.

His natural history research took him all over the United States and into central America. Mr. Peck was one of the oldest men in Salem and surrounding communities and although naturally shy, had a host of friends. Dr. W. C. Kantner will officiate at the services today.

For centuries the world has gone to the Near East for its flavors and aromas and spices.

...and today Chesterfield imports thousands of bales of tobacco from Turkey and Greece to add flavor and fragrance to Chesterfield Cigarettes.

Turkish tobacco is expensive. The import duty alone is 35 cents a pound. But no other place except Turkey and Greece can raise tobacco of this particular aroma and flavor.

This Turkish tobacco, blended with our own American tobaccos in the correct proportions to bring out the finer qualities of each tobacco, helps to make Chesterfields outstanding for mildness and for better taste.
