

Local News Briefs

Three Cars Crash.—When W. J. Lyons, Portland visitor with Homer L. Smith here, stopped at Commercial and Kearney streets yesterday afternoon to permit a woman to cross the main thoroughfare, a three-way auto crash resulted. A city bus driven by George Elliott, route four, ran into a car operated by Mrs. C. E. Gunther, 1890 Fir, and shoved it into the rear of Lyons' machine. Damage to the three vehicles was slight. The bus was stalled, holding up traffic, for several minutes because the front bumper was bent back against a tire.

Mundt Better.—Alfred Mundt, acting city treasurer, was able to return to his office for a few minutes yesterday after being kept in bed for three days by influenza. City Treasurer C. O. Rice also spent a short time at his office yesterday afternoon. He said he was gaining steadily but still felt the effects of his serious illness following a heart attack in January.

Knox Liquor Plan Declared Success

Operation of the Knox liquor control law is attaining temporary success in the state of Oregon, the state liquor control commission declared in its annual report.

Consumption of beer and wine increased in 1935 which is an indication that drinking of hard liquors is on the wane, the report said.

Increased sales in 1935 were attributed to a decline of illicit-dealer patronage and not to increased individual consumption. "The aim of the commission is to supply the demand for alcoholic beverages without encouraging increased consumption of them."

The report indicated that bootlegging has been made unprofitable. Earning of profits were declared secondary.

"Another favorable factor has been the apparent revulsion against law violation which followed the repeal of prohibition," the report continued.

Arrests for liquor law violations last year numbered 376, with fines of $24,940.

Trouble was confined to less than one per cent of the beer and wine dealers in the state.

Nudist Couple Brought Here

Intent Not Quite Clear; Pair to Face Mental Tests, Announced

Nudists for the space of an hour late Tuesday, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Burgess were at the state hospital last night explaining to attendants why they had doffed their clothes after an accident near Holley and started down the road in Adam and Eve costumes.

Dr. John Evans, assistant superintendent of the state hospital, said he would examine the pair thoroughly today to determine their sanity.

The Burgessses were found on a by-road near the Linn county city. They apparently had been in an auto wreck, accidental or planned, and thought their lives were going to end.

"We entered the world nude and we want to leave as we came," Mrs. Burgess told hospital attendants. "We thought the world had come to an end."

The Burgessses gave their address as 445 Hyde street, San Francisco. They were en route to Olympia, Wash., apparently to visit the parents of Mrs. Burgess, Mr. and Mrs. George Tarbell.

The Burgessses were seen going down the road by several onlookers and state police were summoned. Temporary clothing was provided, the pair was loaded into an auto and brought here for investigation.
