Stimulates Interest One of the most important phaes of civic music is that embodied in National Music Week. The concentration of many musical veents into a single week has for its purpose, the awakening of Sparks will report at the April the whole community to the imortance of music in some form.

Although called National Music of the First Presbyterian church portance of music in some form. Week, it is a project which must in Portla talk on munities, and it is left entirely to the judgment of the people and local committees who best know been the the resources, special needs and the possibilities of their city, town or community. It is hoped that schools and people generally will participate in the celebration.

The need for music has grown through the years as machines have increased the hours of leisure, and therein lies a great op-

Week.
In cities and communities from coast to coast, committee workers will concentrate upon encouraging a greater use of each com-munity's assets, making their value more apparent to their Godfrey's Friday neighbors, and also calling attention to their easy availability.
School Programs

Schools have an opportunity to impress upon the public what is being done for children through music in the schools, and to secure the cooperation of parents and the support of the people generally for the further establishment and extension of these ad-
