Title Tucked Away At Close of Half

It was almost a repetition of last year when Jefferson, after fighting to the finals, was swept into the runner-up position by an Astoria attack that couldn't be checked. The Spartans, as well made a piece of basketball machinery as the tournament has often seen, couldn't be stopped last night. They had the championship safely tucked away at the end of the first half when they led 22

To the victors belong the spoils and to Corvallis' valuable Captain Pflugrad smiling Dr. Bruce Baxter presented the gleaming trophy that goes to the champions after presenting the four winners of lower places with their trophies while the crowd roared its approval.

To Merle Kruger, the lithe limbed little sniper whose long range howitzers were a great factor in all of the Spartan victories, went the KXL trophy for the outstanding player.

To Ted Sarpola, whose one-man rally saved fourth place for Astoria yesterday and who took tournament scoring honors with 59 points, went the trophy for the man most valuable to his team.

To Harrison Wallace, who captained his little Bellfountain team to a state B championship and to third place among all the state's basketball teams, went the award for the outstanding sportsmanship of the tournament. Well-Rounded Team

Earns State Title Corvallis won the championship by being ace ballhandlers and sure fire shots and by being defensively as fine as they were great offensively. The way Corvallis whipped that baskettall around last night was a revelation. If they had played good basketball before, and they certainly had, they were playing their finest ball last night. Hardly an error could be chalked up against them.

For only one brief moment at the opening of the game when Hansen dropped in a field goal to counter Kruger's opening free of the lead and Franklin never of 9.28.1, 10:53.2 and 11:57 for throw did Franklin have a smell had a smell of a chance.

Kessler, who scored nine points. and Captain Wallace, who dropped in 11, were hitting the basket too fast and too often for Mc-Loughlin high, its scoring punch lost, to keep the pace.

Bellfountain, flashing across the floor like so many hornets, took the lead in the first period which ended 3 to 2, and was never headed. They led 14 to 8 at halftime. Astoria Takes Fourth Place

Sarpola Pops Five in Row to Overcome Big Lead of Cheesemakers

You can't keep a good team down and Ted Sarpola was the factor that kept Astoria from being held down yesterday as the Fishermen came from behind in a whirlwind last quarter to beat out Tillamook 43 to 36 for fourth place in the final tournament stands. Tillamook, as the losing team, took seventh.

The game, following right on the heels of the Salem - Benson thriller, was one of the bright spots of the tournament and showed Astoria in its old fashion of not being beaten until the last whistle.

Behind 30 to 25 at the half, it was Ted Sarpola that grabbed the terch and by sinking five straight shots gave his team the lead and the game and did a great deal to win himself an all state position. It was the Sarpola of yore that went to work in that last quarter to race the Fishermen shead and keep them there.

The five straight baskets from Sarpola's famed hook shot were just part of the nine he scored during the game. It made him easily the highest scorer of the tournament with 59 points in four
