

Lindberghs Maintain Silence in Quiet British Country Home

Condon Makes No Statement

Principal Victims Trying to Forget; No Effort Made to Question

WEALD, Kent, Eng., April 4.—(Saturday)—(AP)—The first April snow fall in five years was falling today over the rambling two-storied house in which the family of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh live here when Bruno Richard Hauptmann's life ended.

The Lindberghs—Charles, Ann and their young son, Jon—were half through their night's sleep when Hauptmann paid the death penalty at 1:47 1/2 a. m., British time.

To the very end the Lindberghs were true to their resolution never to discuss the Hopewell tragedy after the trial at which the German carpenter was convicted. Since that day, close friends of the family said, no word concerning the subject has ever been heard from them.

They had been trying to forget the cruel past in this Kentish hamlet, attempting to forge a new life among the simple country folk. The only excitement in the quiet village of Weald during the evening was a football match, played by schoolboys, workmen, farm laborers and delivery boys. London newspapers, carrying out an informal agreement with newspaper proprietors association, made no attempt to get comment from the Lindberghs in connection with the execution of Hauptmann, although they printed thousands of words describing the last scenes at Trenton.

It was understood the Lindberghs planned to stay at Weald at least throughout the summer. A swimming pool in the garden at their cottage is already being prepared for their use.

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP)—Dr. John F. "Jafsie" Condon maintained silence tonight after he was informed of the electrocution of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, whom he identified as the cemetery-ransom taker in the Lindbergh kidnaping case.

His son-in-law, Ralph Hacker, received the news for him. "There will be absolutely no comment from Dr. Condon," Hacker said.

A friend who was present said the Condon family spent the evening much as they had other evenings.

Dr. and Mrs. Condon, their son, John, and Col. George Whitten, a friend, were at the home as well as Hacker and Mrs. Myra Hacker, the Condon's daughter.

There was no reference or comment in the family circle to the execution and the delay that attended it up until tonight.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., April 3.—(AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's sister, Mrs. Emma Gloeckner, lay exhausted in bed tonight as her brother was electrocuted at Trenton.

Only her eyes seemed alive when a man came into the room and said: "Mr. Hauptmann's gone. I'm sorry."

For half a minute she lay there, repeating over and over, her lips barely moving:

"Poor Richard! Poor Richard!"

Then her face twitched and she gasped:

"He's been murdered!"

Burt to Withdraw as Delegate Candidate to Seek Treasurer Votes

U. S. Burt, Corvallis, who filed for both the democratic nomination for delegate to the national convention from the state at large, and state treasurer, will withdraw the former filing he declared Friday.

"I don't think it would look well to have my name on the ballot for both state treasurer and delegate," Burt said.

Highlights in Lindbergh Tragedy for Which Hauptmann Died

The kidnaping of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., on the night of March 1, 1932, shocked the world.

A ladder was used by the kidnaper to enter the baby's nursery.

The empty crib showed the stealthy intruder had slipped the child out without unpinning cover guards.

The crime was discovered by Nurse Betty Gow, when she entered the room about 10 p. m.

On the window sill Col. Lindbergh discovered the first ransom note with its mysterious symbols.

"Red" Johnson, sailor sweetheart of Betty Gow, was arrested and released.

Shortly after Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon entered the case as volunteer intermediary through letter he sent Bronx, N. Y., newspaper.

Two weeks later "Jafsie" talked with "John", admitted member of the "kidnap gang," at this abandoned refreshment stand in the Bronx.

On the night of April 2, 1932, Dr. Condon passed $50,000 in ransom bills to "John" over St. Raymond's cemetery wall.

John H. Curtis, Norfolk shipbuilder, entered case as "intermediary." He later confessed hoax.

Mongolians Deny Poison Gas Story

Associated Press Licensed Wire Service

MOSCOW, April 3.—(AP)—Officials of Outer Mongolia denied a report tonight said to have reached Tokyo that Mongolian planes dropped bombs filled with poison gas during fighting early this week.

A Tass (Soviet) News agency dispatch from Ulan Bator, capital of Outer Mongolia, said the opinion prevailing there is that Japanese spread the report to justify use of poison gas in further attacks being planned against Mongolians.

HSINKING, Manchoukuo, April 3.—(AP)—The government of Manchoukuo warned the Outer Mongolian peoples republic today that "repeated Outer Mongolian attacks on the border oblige Japanese and Manchoukuo authorities to proceed with protective measures to safeguard Manchoukuo's frontiers."

Her attorney, Samuel S. Leibowitz, contended she shot and killed him justifiably after he lured her to his room and attacked her.

A college graduate who met Gebhardt on a cruise and then went to work as a $19 a week file clerk in his trade promotion firm on Fifth avenue, Miss Stretz admitted she conducted a liaison with him throughout the summer of 1935 but then sought to break it off when he told her he could not marry her.

room below the feet of the silent sentries kindled memories of all the protracted entanglements, the confusion of the case.

Until the last there was the feeling something would happen, and all had approached the night with the suspicion that it would be a repetition of Tuesday night's broken date with death.

At twilight state troopers in sky-blue tunics, dark-coated city police and prison guards moved ominously into the district, a depressing neighborhood of brick and frame houses, factories and vacant lots.

Prisoners shout at Police Derisively
In the lighted cell blocks convicts, looking down on the streets, shouted derisively at the police.

Newspapermen, photographers, sound truck men swarmed about the entrance where everybody waited for news.

In the cell blocks as the hour of death drew near the clamor of voices ceased.

As the hands of the clock reached the appointed hour the air was filled with conjectures.

Some still thought of an executive reprieve.
In the press headquarters, set up in a big bare garage made of cement blocks across the street, a host of other newspapermen and telegraphers waited tensely.

Minutes slipped by, a delay had obviously ensued.
The telegraph keys clicked listlessly. Sometimes men would cry out in voices taut with excitement.

Everybody was uneasy.
They had no long time to wait when at last the guards moved to the gate, and those who had seen Hauptmann die came out at last with the news.

Then the crowds did nothing. They simply melted away, talking among themselves.

nervous. When news of the execution arrived, she became hysterical.

"Oh, God, why did you have to do this?" moaned Anna Hauptmann. "Oh, my poor Richard. I don't want to live."
A few minutes later she fled from friends who were trying to comfort her by saying, "Anna, sit down. Anna, try to be strong," and locked herself in a room alone.

Fearing a suicide attempt, friends in her room battered at her door.
"Anna, please don't do this! Please open the door!"
Then they pleaded, "Come out, Anna. We'll take you back home to the baby. We'll take care of you Anna."

Fifteen minutes later, after a hotel clerk had been summoned to get the door open, Mrs. Hauptmann came out on the plea of her former pastor in the Bronx—the Rev. D. G. Werner, who came with the Rev. John Mathiesen to comfort her after seeing Hauptmann die.

United States Attorney Carl C. Donagh, on behalf of Chief Niles of the Portland staff invited the association to the northwest convention of police officers for the Pacific coast and Canada and Alaska to visit that gathering in Portland this spring. Royal Mounted Police will be special guests. Former Chief Jenkins also extended an invitation to the convention.
Roy R. Hewitt, probation officer for Marion county, said a concise statement of laws would help in their enforcement. He urged officers to discuss law in expressions which every-day people can readily understand.
Entertainment numbers included a solo by Lieutenant Max Alford of the state police, accompanied by these Helen Burgh, and a tap dance by Helen Smith.

Mickey Mouse Club Notes

DO you sit pen in hand staring at a sheet of paper, trying to think of something to write? Then you make writing hard by trying to write the way you think some one else might. Instead of just talking on paper. Take the time and the care to make your letters the charming and valuable missives they deserve to be.

M.M.C. THERE you are! And it only took me fifteen minutes to figure out a lead for our column.

M.M.C. IF a few of you would send me an original poem, I could publish it, and then would I not only fill up space, but you would receive a pass to Mickey Mouse.

M.M.C. BRAD Collins is building himself a beautiful, modernistic music studio. As soon as it's completed, he will invite all you nice up to see it.

M.M.C. REMEMBER — Before a c.h. broadcast—a contest. So come to the matinee early. Winners last week were, Jean Victor, 236 Oak street, and Billy Lane, 889 Oak street.

M.M.C. QUITE a program last Saturday. Such an ovation I've never heard, was given Harold Jepsen and Betty Red, tap dancers. Others on the program, were: Bethel MacMillan, Betty Vandawarka, Ted, Ed, and Ramona Ward, Monk Alley, Eldon Foster's "Rats", Betty Pierce, Lois Pierce, Betty Jean Winegar, Dione Perry, Patty Jensen, Joan Hotchkiss, and Betty Annunnen. Brad Collins accompanies all numbers.

M.M.C. RANDOLPH Scott in "Rocky Mountain Mystery," is the special feature this afternoon. Also—swell comedies, and chapter ten of "The Adventures of Frank Merriwell."

M.M.C. ONE o'clock—we're off! So long.
