FIFTH ANNUAL STATESMAN

The Happiest Record of the Year » » »

NEWSPAPERS record through the swift passage of the years all manner of events. They tell of births, of marriages, of deaths—the bright events and the tragedies of the days.

No recounting of the record is so pleasant as the presentation to Statesman readers of bright faces, of the cute poses and of the irresistible charm of little boys and girls.

They come on, these happy new members of our community, with a vigor and cheer which sweeps out gray thoughts that the times are evil. The miracle of life is in these youngsters; they reveal each passing year that life is good, that smiles abound, that life revives from its own strength and will continue.

In this 5th annual edition of The Statesman, photographic work has been excellently done by the Jeston-Miller studio which has gathered photographs from babies from Salem and all of the area tributary to it. Extra copies of the edition are available at The Statesman office.
