Speed is One Theme Paul Streicher of Portland spoke on "Speed on the Highway." He called speed the executioner of death and finished with the startling sentence, "One minuate gained at the cost of an accident is no bargain for you."

"The American Liberty League" was the topic of Ercole Battilege's speech. In forceful and masterful language he strove to show that the individualism which is the keynote of the league is only that cunning philosophy that converts selfishness into one of the cardinal virtues. Jack Goodrich of Portland, the contestant, upheld the 'Adaptability of the Constitution" in his speech, marked both by eloquence and knowledge of his subject.
