Expected Bumper Crop of Royal Annes Will Not Materialize

Some of Fruit Is Shriveling

Last October's Freeze Is Blamed Since Blossom Period Was Ideal

The Royal Anne cherry crop won't be the bumper harvest predicted a few weeks ago, dealers and orchardists now say, but just where it will stand in relation to a normal crop some won't attempt to estimate at this time. Others assert the crop will be at least 25 per cent off the average yield. First price offers for Royal Annes have been made this week by Hunt Bros. at 5 cents per pound guaranteed with a match for the highest market price offered. As the growing season progresses, observers are finding that cherries are not developing in anything like a uniform manner, with some shriveled fruit in evidence both in occasional trees in family lots and in orchards in the country. Some orchards are exception to this situ-

Blacks Hurt Less

Black cherries are reported by some to be affected also by this condition. However, reports from the biggest black cherry planting in the valley, Lamberta orchards. east of town, are that the crop has set on fine there looks splendid for an excellent harvest unless hit by severe weather conditions between now and ripening.

This dismal strain in the cherry picture has come pretty much as a surprise, for weather conditions were ideal during the blooming period and the apparent loss to the crop can't be blamed on this phase of development, but rather is now considered to be due to the unusually early and severe freeze of late October which hit the trees before the sap was entirely run

Work Sheets For Soil Plan Simple Mohair Wood Wood Wood

Work sheets being filled out for the 1936 soil conservation proernment to replace AAA, are much standard Medium standard Mixed extras ployed in the latter project. Only one side of a piece of paper the size of a letterhead is used to report the data the federal government seeks from farmers who intend to comply with the provisions Stags, the of the soil conservation program. Principal data the farmer must show is the total acreage of crops which will deplete the soil and the total acreage of crops which will conserve the soil. He must also report the 1935 acreage he raised in each of these classifications and the estimated 1936 acreage he will put into crops of these two groups. Hundreds of farmers have made out work sheets at the county agent's office this week. The farmer signs no contract with the government. If he complies with federal requirements in soil conservation he receives an acreage payment; if he does not he is not penalized save for the fact that he loses any benefit payments he otherwise would have received.

Tilton, Orville White and Harry Kester, Monmouth fishermen, spent the weekend in upper Alsea territory and brought out 50 fine trout. Their catch is one of the first in a sizeable number made by local sportsmen.

Charlene Giles has joined her parat Reedsport. Mr. Giles is installing machinery in a fish cannery to Alaska to do similar work.

Prune Outlook Here Brighter

Yield Here to Be Heavy, California's Lighter Than Usual, Word

Oregon prune growers are slighty encouraged in outlook for the 1936 crop because the prospects for the yield here are heavy while California, by far the largest producer of prunes, foresees a much smaller yield than last summer. J. F. White, manager of the North Pacific Cooperative Prune exchange, brought word here yesterday that all trade reports indicated 175,000 tons as the maximum California production for 1936 compared to a 245,000-ton prod iction last season. The shrinkage in California's yield is due to a severe dropoff after the blooming season. The blooming period was excellent and blossoms were never more plentiful, White said, but the prunes did not set well. Official government reports on the California yield are expected within a few days.

Oregon prunes bloomed unusually well this year and the young fruit is setting very well. White reported. He said the cooperative had disposed of all its 1935 crop save for 400 tons. The carryover of independent dealers remains large with the trade hopeful the government will shortly purchase a large percentage of the surplus prunes

Revival of Dust Peril Is Bullish

CHICAGO, May 6 .- (AP)-Spurred by reports of high temperatures and dust storms antagonistic to crop welfare southwest, wheat values went strongly upward late today, contrasting with earlier weak-

Helping to stimulate the rise of the wheat market were estimates that yesterday's export business in Canada totaled 2,000,000 bushels, the largest single day's aggregate in some time. After a maximum rally of 1% cents a bushel, wheat closed firm at the same as yesterday's finish to 1 cent higher, May 96 1/2 - %. July 87 % - 88; corn % -% up, May 62%, oats 14-% advanced, and provisions unchanged to 10 cents decline.

Soaring of wheat prices accompanied word that the mercury had climbed to practically 100 in parts of Kansas.

more points were conspicuous at the close, the trading pace, except for a brief brisk flurry in the early afternoon, never pressed the ticker tape.

Analysts derived encouragement, however, from the fact that prices, generally, pointed upward throughout the session. Mining is-sues started the ball rolling in the first hour as interest was attracted to this group by an increase in the price of bar gold at London. The oils then joined the procession on reports of expanding gasoline consumption, although storage of the motor fuel last week was up contra-seasonally. The steels got a late start, along with the rails, but these groups soon assumed leadership of the forward push. Transfers amounted to only 1.
