Temporary Space For P.O. Required for their support.

Need for temporary quarters for and wish to express my sincere the Salem postoffice was definitely thanks to them," Holman said. determined yesterday when Postmaster Henry R. Crawford was informed that the new building would occupy 125 by 140 feet of ground and will be located 50 feet east of the Church street property line.

The dimensions as given will bring the east side of the new building to the middle of the old one now in use. It is expected that bids for the construction will be called by June 1 with building getting underway around July 15. D. G. McCully, engineer and P. L. Neil, inspector, are expected in Salem the last of the week to make arrangements for temporary

Possible space for the temporary quarters might be found in the old Capital Journal building on Commercial street or in the Chambers building on North High street, where several of the state relief committee offices are still maintained. It was considered possible, though unlikely. that the staff might be housed in the back portion of the old building during construction.

in the limitation, Director Frank Neer proposed that estimated receipts from the county school fund be raised from $60,000 to $74,-000. This would enable the district to make the proposed increase and still be under the limitation. "That is money that we will get eventually and we have a right to put it in the budget," Neer said.

The district receives $10 for the 7400 pupils each year from the county fund. This fund is now about a year behind in payment. Finance Committee Chairman Opposes Percy A. Cupper, chairman of the finance committee, opposed the move, declaring that the estimate was made on the basis of what the district would actually Cupper declared that the district would not receive all the money during the year and that in order to cover the shortage created, the district would have to pay interest on warrants. No action was taken by the board. The board approved an increase of $400 in the library book fund as recommended by Fred Wolf, high school principal, to bring the library up to accredited standard. Decision to submit the salary question to the budget committee came after informal discussion by the board members. Directors Neer and Wright declared themselves in favor of the six per cent Need of Equipping

Thomas B. Jones Called by Death

Native of Marion County Dies at Age 79; Led In Hop Industry

Thomas Bent Jones, 79, pioneer Marion county native son and well known hop grower, died early yesterday in Portland, where he had been seriously ill for some time.

He was born October 26, 1856 on the donation land claim of his parents, Silas and Nancy Jones. pioneers of 1850 and 1852, who settled in the Mission bottom area. He was married at the age of 19 to Olive Coonse on the Viesko place. They lived on the farm where they made their home until shortly after the turn of the century, about 28 or 30 years ago. when they moved to Salem, where hey since resided. The family home at Center and North Commercial streets is a familiar Salem landmark.

Oldest Hop Grower Mr. Jones was said to be the oldest hop grower in Oregon. The Jones ranch, where all of the children were born, is now known as Jonesmere and is operated by grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs. Jones celebrated their 50th weding anniversary ten years ago. He had been active during the past two years until shortly before the time of his

the bituminous coal industry, imposed a 15 per cent tax on all operators, 90 per cent of which would be refunded if they abided by prices, wages and hours of labor fixed in a code under supervision of the coal commission.

In his decision, Justice Sutherland, speaking for the majority, held that the labor provisions of the law were an invasion of state powers and an improper delegation of authority. While it did not rule on the constitutionality of price fixing, it did hold that it was invalid because it was inextricably related to the remainder of the act.

Constitutionality of the price fixing provision was upheld by the minority, which contended section should stand.
