License Required—A license governing the manufacture and distribution of bakery products does not obviate the necessity of obtaining a peddler's license, where a bakery concerns prepares its own products and sells them from door to door, Attorney General Van Winkle has ruled. Van Winkle held that the peddler act applies to the sale of all goods, wares or merchandise by peddlers when they are acting in territory covered by the law. The attorney general declared that bread and bakery products are goods, wares and merchandise, and are not exempted from the peddler act as are agricultural farm products. The opinion was asked by Freda Miller, district attorney of Clackamas county.

Redhead Roundup Under Way, Taft

15,000 There For Opening Day; Cherrians Help as Queen Crowned
TAFt, June 20 — (Special) — "Hello Red", the official salutation of the Redhead Roundup, echoed and re-echoed through the streets of Taft today as thousands of visitors poured into that community to attend the opening day's festivities of the unique Lincoln county festival, which is being staged this year for the sixth consecutive time. Perfect weather greeted the huge crowd, estimated by state police to be 15,000, composed of people from all over the north-west. Redheads were the guests of honor, and a "carrot-top" was a pass to any of the numerous Roundup attractions. Nearly 1200 of them registered at the official headquarters in the Pines hotel during the day, and many more are expected to do so before the close of the festival tomorrow night. There was never a dull moment on the day's program which began at 10 a. m. with a street concert by the Tillamook school band and closed in the evening with the colorful queen's ball honoring the titian Redhead Roundup Queen, Marybelle Lapham, and her copper-haired princesses, Whitred Young, Mary Murphy, LaVelle Worthington, Velma Knight and Elva Risley, all of whom are from Portland except Miss Worthington, who resides at Delake.
