"Oust - Roosevelt" Battle Talk Rumbles But Not Seriously Heeded

Smith Keeps Silence On Attendance Plans

At least one man, Alfred J. Kennedy, alternate delegate from New York city, called upon Smith to come before the convention. The former New York governor tonight had not said yes or no—although few expected him to come. Nor would he reply in New York to a question whether he would speak in behalf of Alf Landon, the republican nominee.

As for the thunder on the left, Farley reiterated that neither the platform nor other plans would be changed to woo supporters from the Lemke-Coughlin union party. Officially, the only business here today was a meeting of the democratic national committee.

Miners Expect to Put Red Shirt on Governor, Baker

BAKER, Ore., June 22.—(AP)—Governor Charles Martin will be appropriately attired in a red shirt during his visit here early in July if plans for the Baker jubilee do not go awry.

John Jenkins, chairman, said he would send the governor the garment and envisioned no difficulty in having the state's executive wear it. The governor and his party, probably including State Treasurer Rufus Holman, will attend the state planning board's regional conference of committees on mining and geology here July 2, and the Eastern Oregon Mining and Mineral association convention July 3. The governor also is scheduled to address eastern Oregon pioneers in the Baker park, July 4.

Pine Lake Camp's Opening July 2

"Pioneer Camp," located at Pine lake, west of Marion lake, will open July 2 for Boy Scouts of the Cascade area council, and last through two camp periods until August 2. About 40 boys are expected for each period, with 21 already signed up for a two-week tenure.

Eagle scouts will act as counselors throughout the four weeks, according to Scout Executive James E. Monroe, who will be in charge of the camp. The advance guard will leave next Monday to begin improvement of the camp site.

Program for the two periods will involve a week of intensive scouting in camp, and a week of "pioneering" in which practical training in Woodcraft and campcraft will be given to boys in the course of hikes and overnight trips away from the main camp. Scout awards will be made at two courts of honor, each one closing bi-weekly period.

Atwater-Kent brought itself up two notches when Gentzkow and Lu Singer singled in the seventh but Paper Mill added another in the eighth.

The eighth inning was the happy one for the Radio gang. Weisner singled to center to score Schwartz after a fielder's choice had put the latter on. Henry Singer drew a pass and scored behind Weisner when Gentzkow's single to left field was booted by Townsend for the winning run.

Sutton, Steelhammer Pull Double Play

The first double play of the season was turned in when Sutton and Steelhammer pulled one in the first inning.

The second game went to the other extreme from the close first contest and was a walkaway from the fourth inning when the Man's Shop batted all the way around for four runs. They did that again in the sixth and didn't let an inning get by without scoring.

Nick Serdots picked out a home run ball for the first circuit clout of the season and Filsinger also hit for four bases.

With no word from Wagner, the field was left open for the platform guessers. But they made up for his silence. If he should lose the platform draft he was assumed to be carrying, there were plenty of delegates ready to offer planks for a new one.

Brief Attacks All Kinds Of Gambling, High Court

All forms of gambling were attacked in a brief filed in the state supreme court here yesterday in the case involving M. P. Schweller, ex-Marshfield dart game operator, convicted of operating a lottery.

The brief rapped pari-mutuel wagering on horse and dog races. District Attorney Flaxel of Coos county asked the court to declare unconstitutional a law enacted by the legislature permitting the licenses of games of skill.

Not more than two proposals for creation of people's utility districts will be on the ballot at the November election, C. E. Stricklin, state engineer, predicted here yesterday. There are the Linn and Marion county districts. Reports on the feasibility of these districts already have been filed by the state hydroelectric commission.

Road Engineers Are Transferred

There will be a general shifting of highway maintenance engineers as a result of the creation of an additional division with headquarters in Portland, R. H. Baldock, state highway engineer, announced yesterday.

C. C. Seely of Klamath Falls will be transferred to Astoria, which will be the maintenance headquarters for that district. Instead of frequent change in occupancy.

George Southman of Redmond was transferred to Klamath Falls while W. S. Hodge of The Dalles will go to Redmond. U. V. Koons of Baker will go to The Dalles. Henry J. Miller, construction engineer at Baker, has been promoted to maintenance engineer.

E. A. Collier of Roseburg will have charge of the new division with headquarters in Portland. K. D. Kyle of Bend has been transferred to Bend while F. D. Eason, assistant division engineer here, will be in charge of the Salem district.

W. C. Williams will remain at LaGrande.

3-Year Term Is Decreed, Coffey

(Continued from Page 1) much as all points involved had been argued in the trial which lasted Monday and Tuesday of last week, except that Burris made a further statement in offering proof of the Marion county circuit court record in the case of Emon Chaloupka vs. O. D. Bower as sheriff of Marion county.

Burris stated that he wished to show by this court record through judgment of the court in this case the police officers were bound to return so-called slot machines to their owners and were advised that right of confiscation of such property did not exist; and that further this showing was made to contradict the testimony of the state that the defendant agreed to accept a bribe for action of returning certain slot machines to Elwood Brown.

Brown appeared as the state's chief witness in the trial. Before pronouncing sentence, Judge Latourette asked Coffey if he had anything to say in his behalf.

Can Prove Innocence, Coffey Asserts "I haven't anything to say, with exception that I did not accept a bribe and can prove my innocence to the public," Coffey stated in a clear voice.

In spite of the early hour, a fair-sized crowd was on hand in the courtroom.

Burris told the court that he had nothing to say before sentence was pronounced except to claim the conduct of the witness on which the state's testimony was based showed the contradiction in evidence.

Prosecutor Moody, the last to speak before sentence was imposed, said he disagreed with counsel for the defense that there was any substantial contradiction in the testimony in the case.

"I feel that the defendant has had a fair trial. A public officer is a public trust; the very foundation of government depends upon honesty in public office. When one permits his public office to be prostituted and debauched the foundation of this government is undermined. The judgment of the court is imprisonment in the state penitentiary for not more than three years," Judge Latourette said.

While the statute gives the penalty under the bribery conviction as from five to 15 years, this is superseded by the indeterminate sentence statute, which makes mandatory upon the court only a prison sentence, with no mention of minimum or maximum years to be served.

Mary V. Charlton Dies in Portland

Mrs. Mary V. Charlton, 69, for many years a resident of Salem, died yesterday in a Portland hospital. She had resided in Portland during the past five years to be with her husband, Charles M. Charlton, federal probation officer in the court of Judge John H. McNary.

Mrs. Charlton had led an active life in politics and governmental affairs of the state and was instrumental in securing Oregon's parole system. She served as Oregon's first woman justice of the peace.

She was born April 22, 1867, in Eugene, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Greene McCarty, early pioneers. She graduated from Monmouth Normal and held two academic degrees. She resided a short time in eastern Oregon, but most of her life was spent in the Willamette valley, a large part of it in Salem. She held a life certificate as a teacher in the Oregon schools.

Mrs. Charlton was a member of the First Christian church of Salem, the W.C.T.U., and was active in the republican party.

She is survived by her husband and four children, Ila M. Foster, Portland; E. C. Charlton, Salem; Harold M. Charlton, Seattle; and Charles M. Charlton, Salem.

Funeral announcements will be made later from the Rigdon's mortuary.

Sportsmen Hear Talks, Measures

Members of the Salem Hunters and Anglers club met last night in the chamber of commerce rooms to hear William L. Finley, co-editor of Nature magazine; E. F. Averill, chairman of the Oregon state conservation council, and E. A. Starvick, executive secretary of the Columbia River Fisherman's Protective Union, speak on the need of game conservation in Oregon and of different initiative measures proposed to further such an end.

Finley, who recently flew to Portland from New Mexico, remarked on having seen the Rogue river and its tributaries, which, he affirmed, were red from mud pollution caused by mines along river banks, in detriment to fish life.

Averill spoke before the local sportsmen in favor of a proposed initiative measure, which, he claimed, would "take the game commission out of politics." The bill advocated would make the game commissioner position one of semi-permanent incumbency, instead of frequent change in occupancy.

Starvick asked support of the initiative measure proposed by his Protective Union which would eliminate all but driftnet fishing on the Columbia.
