Amended complaint for $15,700 damages was filed against John Albert Langtree and W. H. Langtree by Carrie Trudgen as guardian ad litem for William Trudgen, Jr. in circuit court yesterday.

Study Equipment For New Schools

Final determination of equipment which will go into Salem's new school buildings will be made within a few days, Superintendent Silas Gaiser said yesterday. Present contracts and the numerous orders for changes already made are being checked over carefully in an effort to make certain that no desired item is missing.

While Gaiser and Lee S. Ross, building program assistant, are compiling lists of equipment and fittings to be purchased with the $2,600 additional grant of federal funds promised, the architect is at Gaiser's request preparing lists of items they believe should be included. Gaiser said it now appeared that no important piece of equipment originally planned upon would not now be possible to obtain.

Ross was planning to confer in Portland today with architects and PWA officials regarding plans for the high school shops, which will be housed in a separate structure behind the main building. Until the additional federal grants were allowed, school officials feared there would not be sufficient money available to build the shops at this time.

16 Arguments on California Prune Bills Submitted

Measures, Candidates to Be in Same Pamphlet For Fall Ballot

Seven affirmative and nine negative arguments involving initiative measures and constitutional amendments on the ballot at the November election, had been submitted at the state department when the time for filing expired.

The arguments will cover 18 pages for which the state will receive $2700. The measures' and candidates' pamphlets will be combined this year and printing will begin September 15. It will require 475,000 of these pamphlets to supply the registered voters.

One affirmative and one negative argument was prepared by the Portland Better Business bureau and others.

Two arguments also were filed in connection with the initiative measure changing the tax base for the Portland school district. The affirmative argument was filed by directors of the school district and others and the negative argument by the East Portland Taxpayers league.

A negative argument was filed by sponsors and opponents of the grange power bill. The affirmative argument was filed by the Oregon state grange and the negative arguments by the Oregon Business and Investors, Inc.

A negative argument was filed in connection with the compulsory military training measure. Other measures and constitutional amendments which attracted affirmative and negative arguments follow:

Prohibiting use of gears, traps and other net fishing equipment in the Columbia river and tributaries.

Statewide tax limitation amendment, filed by F. N. Derby of Salem and others.

Hydroelectric administration power bill, by Oregon state grange. State bank bill by Oregon state grange.

Calliope to Sound Here on Thursday

Red Wagons Will Trundle on Salem Streets as Circus Comes Here

The calliope will sound in Salem Thursday, August 27, when the great Cole Bros.-Clyde Beatty Circus arrives for its engagement. The red wagon is an American institution. Its coming is hailed with delight and each year thousands of schools are suspended for the day that the students may revel in the delights of circus day. To many, especially business men and captains of industry, the physical side of the circus elicits a great deal of interest.

They marvel with the machine-like precision by which the great show is transported from city to city. Here today and tomorrow perhaps 200 miles away in another state. Frequently a large circus goes for several years without missing a single performance.

More than 400 performers take part in this season's Cole Bros.-Clyde Beatty circus. They hail from 18 foreign countries. Almost every nation has contributed its stars among them being Miss Jean Fisher, famous Iral Mountain elephant trainer. This season a gorgeous and fantastic spectacle, "The Serenade of Spain" filled with charm, romance and gaiety, opens the big show.

An immense and spectacular street parade with a congress of the various nations of the earth will be seen on the downtown streets at 11 a. m. It is nearly three miles in length; upwards of 1000 men, women and horses will be seen in the parade along with 20 elephants and two caravans of camels. Five trumpeting bands and two calliopes will be heard. Doors to the Clyde Beatty menagerie will open at 1 and 7 p. m. The big show will start at 2 and 8 p. m.

Late Hop Picking Crews Are Short

The rush for early hop pickers has ended but late hop growers still have hundreds of jobs yet to be filled. Manager D. D. Dotson of the state employment agency here reported yesterday. He said 200 pickers had been assigned from his office in the last two days with but one grower order unfilled.

While growers were reporting their signing of crews for late hops was far from complete, Dotson declared "there is no scarcity of pickers yet in sight." He predicted many pickers would wait until two or three days before the picking of late hops begins to register at the various yards. The late harvest is expected to start September 1.

Pools Are Opened To All Swimmers

A slackening in demand for class instruction yesterday led Vernon Gilmore, superintendent of recreation, to open the Olinger and Leslie pools to all swimmers during the hours 10 a. m. to noon daily except Sunday. Swimming lessons will still be offered to persons interested.

The pools are closed Saturdays and open from noon to 9 p. m. Sundays. The closing hour on other days also is 9 p. m.

Corn Breaks All Botanical Rules

Seems Determined to Grow Seed; New Tassels Are Coming On

DES MOINES, Ia., Aug. 20.—(AP)—Charles D. Reed, government meteorologist, said today "corn is breaking all botanical rules in its fight to produce at least seed in spite of the drought."

"New tassels," he explained, "are coming on in many fields to furnish an abundance of pollen capable of fertilizing any silks that are receptive in the cooler hours."

"New ears are continuing to shoot on stalks that are not dead." "Of course, it's too late in the year now for such desperate efforts to produce results, but they show the terrific fight many fields of corn have made to adapt themselves to the heat and the drought."

"And," said the meteorologist, "the peculiar part of it is, Iowa's corn is going to produce at least a seed crop in nearly every township, while in part of the state it will make a fair crop, considering the fight it has had to make this year even to exist."

"Should Be All Dead"

"Yet, judging by all weather standards, this drought, the worst by any measurement the Midwest has ever experienced, should have killed virtually all the corn by now."

"I'm convinced that the drought of 1934 enhanced drought resisting qualities in many strains of corn."

"Reports now indicate that fields planted with 1934-produced seed carefully bred corn such as hybrids are standing the drought better."

"Nature works in marvelous ways," Reed reflected. "I sometimes think her right hand doesn't know what her left is doing."

"But plants and animals and humans always have found some way to perpetuate themselves."
