Salem Burglaries Denied by 2 Held

Darby and Lowry Say They Weren't Here; Story to Be Checked

Denial that they had stopped in Salem and that they had committed burglary here was made by Lester Darby and Harold Lowry, Captain B. A. Wallman, chief of police of Oakland, Calif., informed Chief Frank Minto in a letter received yesterday. The men admitted they had passed through Salem on a bus but declared they did not get off here, Chief Wallman said.

The two men are under arrest in the California city and are suspected by Salem police of having broken into a number of apartments here early in July. One of the men had a Salem high school class pin in his possession when arrested.

Chief Will Check Lists
Chief Wallman said that the list of stolen property sent by Chief Minto would be checked with the list of mortgages and watch cases in the possession of the men when they were arrested. This list is held by the San Francisco police.

State police had heard no further word on the arrest of Mrs. Clara Larson, a bus driver sought by police here since 1932 on a bad check charge. She also was under arrest in Oakland.

Chemeketas Are Back From Outing

Salem Chemeketas arrived home Sunday night from a two weeks' encampment at Green lakes. Perfect weather accompanied their stay in the high altitudes, the only complaint being high winds some of the late afternoons. These, however, served to blow away mosquitoes.

One ascent of South Sister was made and two climbs of Broken Top. A party of four climbed Middle Sister. Other minor hikes and climbs were made.

Features of the evening campfires were talks by R. W. Sawyer, Bend publisher, and Phil Brogan of Bend, on the history and geology of the area.

A Chemeketan camp reunion will be held at the Burt Cray home this Friday evening, with dinner at 6:30. Pictures of the outing scenes will be shown. Refreshments should be made by calling the Cray home.
