Oregon-Developed Tractor Is Shown

Kultur-King, Being Built in Portland Plant, Is to Be Displayed

An advanced new garden tractor, developed on an Oregon farm, is making its appearance on truck gardens throughout the Pacific northwest, reports Nelson Bros., Salem dealer.

Named the Kultur-King, it is enjoying an enthusiastic reception from farm residents in this region.

It is being manufactured by Kultur-King, Inc., in its plant in Portland. President of the company is G. Spencer Hinson, a prominent business man. The forerunner of the present Kultur-King was built five years ago by James Gourley on a ten-acre truck garden he was farming near Myrtle Creek, Oregon. It was a crude affair, consisting of a gasoline motor, automobile transmission, automobile differential, a clutch, and two wheels—all mounted on a couple of two-by-fours.

But, with all its crudeness, the machine outperformed any other garden tractor Mr. Gourley had ever seen! There are several reasons for this. One is that automobile differentials are of the positive type, and permit easy turning of the tractor from any position. Another is that automobile transmissions are built for many times the power generated by the garden tractor motor, and therefore there is a wide margin of safety. And, use of automobile transmissions gives Kultur-Kings three speeds ahead and one in reverse, compared with the usual one speed ahead and no reverse in most garden tractors. A chain drive is used, instead of the conventional troublesome belt drive.

Develops Own Clutch
 Mr. Gourley developed his own clutch, of the single dry plate type. The clutch housing serves as a belt pulley. Connected by pulley, the tractor will operate washing machines, feed grinders, corn shellers, milking machines, hay choppers, spray plants, ice cream freezers, concrete mixers, saws, lathes, water pumps, light plants and other devices.

The tractor pulls regular horse-drawn implements. It will plow a ten-inch furrow, eight inches deep, in unbroken ground as well as cultivated ground. Its 800 pounds of weight and special lug tires provide ample traction on hills.

Livestock Judging Program to Open Tuesday Morning for 4-H Boys and Girls; Club Exhibits Exceptional

The 4-H boys and girls livestock judging program at the Diamond Jubilee state fair here the next seven days will start Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock on beef cattle, with sheep and goats to be judged that afternoon.

Dairy cattle in the club barns will be judged Wednesday morning starting at 9 o'clock and judging hogs will start Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock.

The livestock showmanship contests will start Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, with cattle, sheep, goats and hogs to be shown in order.

Four-H boys and girls will fill four large barns with livestock, with about 800 head expected this year for the largest show on record.

The large 4-H club exhibits building on the south side of the fairgrounds will also be filled to capacity with handicrafts of boys and girls of the state. As in the past, a number of 4-H boys and girls will be on the grounds throughout the entire fair week.

Open Knife Rides Tire 6000 Miles

Another item for the files of "Believe It or Not" Ripley and other collectors of odd facts has been reported to H. M. Baker, district manager for The B. F. Goodrich Tire company.

Baker said that an authenticated case had been reported by E. Baker of Portland, Oregon, of a regular riding impaled inside a Goodrich tire between the Goodrich tube and rim well for 6,000 miles without a puncture.

The car owner said that last fall he had lost the knife while repairing a rear tire on his car. He drove the car until July 24 when the knife blade finally penetrated the tube causing a puncture. It was then he discovered the knife.

"The sturdiness of Goodrich tires and tubes is thus more effectively demonstrated than could have been done by a planned test," the district manager said. "We have had requests for reports of the incident from all over the country."

Arabian Ridden by Film Star Is Here

King John, one of the famed Kellogg Arabian horses to be shown nightly as a feature part of the horse show at the state fair, has a movie career that many a cinema addict might envy.

The stately white stallion was the mount of Marlene Dietrich in her portrayal of Catherine the Great in the photoplay "The Scarlet Empress" and also performs in Miss Dietrich's latest picture, "The Garden of Allah," which has not yet been released. He also was seen in the picture "Lives of a Bengal Lancer." King John is of the Seglari family and was bred in the desert of Arabia. He is one of the few horses in the Kellogg group that have come direct from the Arabian desert. He was first trained as a polo pony by the 12th Royal Lancers and was played in all the tournaments in Cairo for a year.
