"Mobilization for Human Needs" Hears Federal Aid Reduction Hint

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Sounding a keynote for America's "1936 mobilization for human needs," President Roosevelt said today that "returning prosperity" heightens the obligation of every individual to aid the distressed in his community.

Before an assembly of community chest leaders planning their annual fund-raising effort, he added that "the cooperation given by the federal government in social welfare activities extends rather than contracts the responsibility of private activities for local relief."

Gerald Swope, president of the General Electric company and chairman of the mobilization, later announced the president had suggested a 10 per cent increase in community chest goals this year.

The mobilization will begin November 6, after the presidential election.

Need Private Work

Sentiment for continued private welfare work pervaded the conference, which Mr. Roosevelt addressed from the south portico of the White House.

From the lawn below this White House "back porch," women delegates went to the executive mansion's state dining room, where they adopted a resolution stating the "voluntary and unofficial" welfare agencies should be carried on.

Mrs. Roosevelt, who had expected to receive the women and to participate in the conferences, was confined to her room by what the president described as "a slight touch of flu."

He expressed regret that he could not be at his side, and then he read his prepared speech:

"Returning prosperity," he said, "means that you have a right to expect greater assistance for your splendid work in every community."

"Returning prosperity means, however, that a vast amount of important work which all of us had to defer during the depression years, can and must be taken up anew."

In Better Position

"As I told you in former years, when human distress reaches the point that government assistance is necessary, government up to the limit of its local, its state and its federal resources must and does act."

"Happily, private organizations are now in a better position to accomplish greater things than for many years past. Increase in prosperity heightens the obligation of every individual to aid in the relief of distress in his or her community."

Mr. Roosevelt asserted the national income soon will be double what it was at the low point of the depression, and that confidence had returned to all "except a small minority who seek to profit from the preaching of fear."

Huge Plans Here Saturday, Sunday

The largest all-metal Ford trimotor airplane ever built will be at the Salem airport Saturday and Sunday, it was announced yesterday by W. L. Phillips, of the Valley Motor company.

The plane has a wing spread of 80 feet and weighs seven tons. It is powered with three 425-horsepower Wasp engines, and consumes 90 gallons of gasoline per hour. It carries 14 passengers.

Fred Kane, veteran pilot with over 10,000 hours flying time to his credit, handles the big ship. In the party also is Bessie Stanton with his Butler-Hawk stunt plane, offering "thrill rides."

Mr. Phillips said courtesy tickets will be given to persons calling at the Valley Motor company, entitling the bearer to a free ride when accompanied by a paying passenger.

Research Society Meets, La Grande

Dr. and Mrs. O. L. Scott have returned from La Grande where they attended a meeting of the Oregon Chiropractic Research society, of which Dr. Scott is president. A discussion of x-ray technique and the new "hole in one" chiropractic by Dr. F. L. Tribe of La Grande was a highlight.

The next meeting of the association will be at McMinnville Sunday, October 25. On the trip to La Grande during which the party stopped at Pendleton to attend the roundup, Dr. and Mrs. E. J. Fagan of McMinnville and Dr. J. Myers of Oregon City accompanied the Scotts.

Migration to Oregon from Midwest Not Being Advised Says Reclamation Chief Page; to Meet Governor Today

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 17.—(AP)—John C. Page, national reclamation chief, said today regarding the midwest drought that he observed many migrators in southern Idaho, and eastern Oregon and Washington but commented that "no efforts are being made to direct persons west."

Page left tonight for Madras and an inspection of the irrigation projects on the Deschutes and Crooked rivers.

The commissioner said "the drought committee report made to the president Aug. 27 in Bismarck, N. D., stressed the need of guiding aimless migrators," but he also commented that few of them have the minimum of $2,000 and the required experience for filing on public lands such as the Owyhee project in eastern Oregon.

Page commented that Senator Charles McNary misinterpreted his (Page's) statement that congress is not interested in reclamation.

"I know the west is well represented in the senate, largely because McNary is such a strong figure there, but the west is submerged in the house of representatives by congressmen from eastern and mid-western states who opposed reclamation," Page said. He envisioned no huge influx of drought settlers in the far west. The commissioner visited Bonneville dam today.

Six Independents File for Offices

Six independent candidates for office at the November election filed certificates of nomination in the state department Thursday. They are:

Floyd E. White, Nyssa, for state senator from the 22nd senatorial district, comprising Grant, Harney and Malheur counties.

J. P. Thomsen, Hood River, for state representative from the 20th district, Hood River county.

George A. Cobb, Cascade Locks, for district attorney of Hood River county.

Grace Wick, Portland, for representative in congress from the third congressional district, Multnomah county.

W. Yawter Parker, Heppner, for district attorney of Morrow county.

Henry Gustafson, North Bend, for state senator from Coos and Curry counties.

Louis E. Hammer, democratic nominee for state representative from Tillamook county, withdrew from the contest today.

The time for filing independent candidates for the November election expires at 5 p. m. today.

Early Civilizations Are Linked

Further discoveries establishing a definite link between the civilizations of ancient Greece and still more ancient Babylon, have just been reported to the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago by Dr. Henry Frankfort, field director of the college's expedition in Iraq. Most important of the new discoveries links the one-eyed Cyclops of Greek mythology to ancient Babylonian religion, and proves, scientists contend, that the Greeks copied many ideas from the Orient. The Cyclops of the age of Abraham, 2100-1900 B. C., was found on a relief at Tell Amur, near the Persian mountains. Other discoveries included two cauldron-shaped pots with designs glorifying the power of snakes over human beings, and a well-preserved temple built of sun-dried bricks. The temple was discovered at Ischall, northeast of Baghdad. Photos of the discoveries are pictured above.

Lower Gas Rates For Certain Uses

Refrigeration and Water Heating Cost Reduced Company Announces

Reduced gas rates for automatic water heating and refrigeration were announced here yesterday by Leif Bergsvik, Williamette valley district manager for Portland Gas & Coke company. Gas cooking customers are also offered a new combination rate, which is supplementary to the company's existing low rates for combined cooking, water heating and house heating service, he said.

Promotional in character, the new rates will mean a substantial saving to customers immediately affected and will open the way to large additional savings to those who take advantage of the offer, said Mr. Bergsvik.

"The new schedules make gas in every way the most economical fuel for automatic water heating," Mr. Bergsvik stated. "This holds true whether a gas automatic water heater is the only appliance used or whether the customer has also a gas range, gas furnace, gas refrigerator or other gas appliances."

"Calculations under the new rates show that a customer now using only a gas automatic water heater can use on the average 40 per cent more gas for the same money he has been paying." Added Cost Slight

The new combination schedule makes it possible for a gas automatic water heating customer to add gas for cooking and refrigeration at a small monthly cost, according to Mr. Bergsvik. Customers having only a gas refrigerator also will get their gas on the new rates.

Two new types of rates covering the services affected have been filed with the Oregon public utilities commissioner and the Washington department of public works. They became effective yesterday.

One of the new schedules offers reduced operating costs to customers using gas for automatic water heating or refrigeration, or both, on a year-around basis. In the Williamette valley district this rate is $1.05 for the first 1000 cubic feet used per month and $5 cents per 1000 for excess use. Radiant fires and other incidental space heating equipment may also be served on the schedule where a gas automatic water heater or gas refrigerator is in use.

For a year-around automatic water heating or refrigeration in combination with cooking, customers in the Williamette valley area are offered the first 1300 cubic feet of gas used in a month for $3. The next 2700 cubic feet per month is 90 cents a thousand and excess use is at 80 cents a thousand.

Teaching Problem Is Gentle's Topic

Courses of study are merely guides, and teachers must use their own resources in finding material which will strike a responsive chord in the pupil's mind, Thomas H. Gentle, for many years connected with the Oregon Normal school, told members of the Salem Lions club at their luncheon Thursday.

The "born" teacher knows how to reach the pupil's interest, and the others must learn this secret or pupils will become soured on school work, Prof. Gentle said.

The school system has become a "museum" of courses because little has ever been dropped from the course of study since there are always objections, while at the same time new curricular material is readily adopted.

PROGRESS REPORTED

An authoritative source reported negotiations had been going on during the day, and that "progress" had been made but that no announcement could yet be made.

Lindeman, who said in yesterday's formal announcement that a "group of business men had asked we defer action on the permanent closing" of the paper, pending their conferring with the "conservative labor elements" of the community, made no amplification of the statement today. The matter was not brought formally before the weekly meeting last night of the Seattle central labor council which a month ago placed the paper on the unfair list, precipitating the suspension of publication.

Late yesterday afternoon, Smith also abruptly halted the board's hearing on the American newspaper guild's complaint that members, Frank M. Lynch and Philip Everhardt Armstrong, had been discharged for guild activity, in violation of the Wagner labor relations act. The action was at the request of Woods, who had an "important telephone call" from the east.

against a proposal to reduce gasoline freight rates between Klamath Falls and Portland.

The new development came into the session when D. J. McGanney, general freight agent of the Southern Pacific, proposed the uniform rate. Portland now has a two-cent-a-hundredweight differential as compared with the Klamath Falls-San Francisco haul.

A. J. Clineh, Great Northern attorney, opposed the uniform rate proposal and said the Southern Pacific raised no argument for such a rate prior to the advent of the Great Northern into Klamath Falls from the north in 1928. He said at that time there was an eight-cent differential in favor of the Portland-Klamath haul.

Track men were on hand to protest proposed rail rate reductions.
