

Second Successive Week of Outstanding Pictures is Marked

'Adverse' Epic Is at Elsinore

Hervey Allen's Literary Classic on Screen Is Elaborate Affair

"Anthony Adverse" is the last word in magnificent screen entertainment. This truly awaited Warner Bros. production which had its local premiere at the Elsinore theatre yesterday, held audiences in a spell of breathless suspense as reel after reel unfolded the vivid story of Hervey Allen's monumental literary classic.

The picture follows the romantic adventures of Anthony Adverse through five countries, across the seas and over three continents. For mammoth sets, for colorful and picturesque backgrounds, for dynamic action, for the unusual characterizations of its tremendous cast from Fredric March, the star, down to the smallest bit player, for the glamor of its romance, its human interest and sheer, unadulterated entertainment, this picture is unsurpassed.

Warner Bros. have again accomplished the apparently impossible. It has a tremendous cast, with ninety-eight speaking parts and 2,500 bit players and extras. But all this, while full of color, is but the background for a drama of human life, its loves and hates, its hopes and its disappointments; its desires and its passions; its vain and futile stragglings and its vast achievements.

Fredric March has given the screen some wonderful portrayals in the past, but never has he risen to the heights of dramatic fire as in the title role of this picture. His Anthony is a living, breathing person, stepping out of a book into real life on the screen. He is ably supported by Olivia de Havilland, who came to screen prominence with her work in "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and "Captain Blood." This is Miss de Havilland's first great emotional role and she rises to it with true artistry.

'Ramona' Film Now at Grand

Technicolor Well Fitted To This Classic of Early America

In the presentation of "Ramona," which opened yesterday at the Grand theatre, 20th Century-Fox has added another great triumph to its already imposing roster of cinema successes. Flashing action on a far-flung scale combined with its production in the new perfected technicolor, make "Ramona" one of the most important pictures of the year, an exciting pictorialization of Helen Hunt Jackson's immortal love story.

Loretta Young is featured as Ramona, with Don Ameche as Alessandro, and the splendid supporting cast includes such players as Kent Taylor, Pauline Frederick, Jane Darwell, Katherine De Mille and John Carradine. In addition, hundreds of persons were recruited from the Mesa Grande district representing settlers and local characters.

The technicolor is tremendously effective because it is absolutely, indisputably true to life. Since a large part of the picture called for out-of-door scenes, the main location for the filming of "Ramona" was a 55,000-acre ranch in the Mesa Grande area of the beautiful San Jacinto Mountains in California, 140 miles southeast of Los Angeles, where the natural beauty of the region made a perfect setting.

"Romona" is a picture that fairly teems with big romance, fiestas, fandango, songs, roses, secret trysts, mission bells, stolen kisses, tears, love and laughter. It is one of the greatest love stories ever unfolded on the screen. All the rainbow beauty of adventure-crowded California of the early days has been recaptured and again as old Ramona goes to meet love in the purple dusk.

Loretta Young is superb in the title role, playing the part with deep feeling and understanding. Her highly artistic performance should further her career tremendously. As Ramona, Miss Young will undoubtedly win a host of new admirers.

Broadway Nights

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The Baltimore Association of Commerce sent a delegation to New York to induce producers to include Baltimore in more road show routes. The committee went at its task as if it were after a new million-dollar industry. Nor was this an isolated example of the interest being evinced by cities large and small in the restoration of the "road." Six cities bid for the premiere of Miss Katherine Cornell's new play, "Wingless Victory." It has become a matter of civic pride for a city to have first-rate theatrical attractions, and the chambers of commerce are leaving nothing undone to obtain them. It is a condition that speaks volumes on the question of whether the talking picture and the radio are going to dispose of the living theater.

This season more than 60 companies will tour, and the biggest of Broadway stars will be in them. Besides the perennial "Tobacco Road," which will go forth with Taylor Holmes as a new Jester, "Blossom Time" and "Three Men on a Horse," these are among attractions which will be seen either before or after their Broadway engagements.

Also to tour: Also the D'Oyly Carte Grand Opera company in Gilbert & Sullivan repertoire. Alla Nazimova in "Hedda Gabler" and "Ghost." Emily Williams, young British actor-author, in "Night Must Fall," a London hit.

Clark Appears Alone "Dead End" This will not have the original New York cast. "Jumbo," an abbreviated version of the New York Hippodrome extravaganza, now at the exposition in Ft. Worth. "The Night of January 14." This will not have the original New York cast.

The Morris Gest novelty, "Lady Precious Stream." Nor will this be "The Children's Hour." The producers are sending this out with the original cast after a three-year run in New York, despite censor trouble in Chicago, Boston and perhaps other cities. In the meanwhile, the movies have already done it as "These Three," without objections.

"Moroni" by Edgar Lee Masters, a dramatization of the life of Joseph Smith, founder of the Latter Day Saint's church. And finally, but not least, "The Ziegfeld Follies," with the cast headed by Fannie Brice and Bobby Clark, which reopened in New York only a few nights ago.

'Ride, Ranger' Is Capitol Feature

Gene Autry Star; 'Murder With Pictures' Is on Sunday Bill

A veritable musical festival set against the most exciting background of American history, briefly describes Republic's "Ride, Ranger, Ride," which opens today in a double feature bill at the Capitol theatre with Gene Autry starring in his most gallant role in pictures.

The story revises the historical era when Texas Rangers and blue-coated U.S. cavalrymen were endeavoring to pacify Indian savages who for years halted the westward trek of U.S. Pioneers.

His role as officer of the Rangers and lieutenant of the U.S. Cavalry provides Gene Autry with opportunities for riding, fighting, singing and love-making galore.

Of special interest is "The Song of the Pioneers," written especially for Autry by Stept and Mitchell, authors of "All My Life," "Laughing Irish Eyes," and many other song hits during the past year.

Features Wirephoto The first use of the new Wirephoto system as an important part of a motion picture plot will be seen today when "Murder with Pictures," a mystery drama starring Lew Ayres and Gail Patrick comes to the Capitol theatre.

The new equipment, which makes it possible to transmit photographs by telegraph, plays an important role in solving a "perfect crime" in the picture and demonstrates what may be expected soon in the endless war on crime as the use of the equipment becomes more widespread.

Through arrangements with Wirephoto executives, the laboratory and equipment in the Los Angeles "Times" were used by Paramount to film some of the important scenes in the picture.

Aurora Editor Enjoys Visit to Former Home, Now Hill Castle Site

Mitchell, editor of the Aurora Observer, together with Mrs. Mitchell and son, William, recently took a motor trip up the Columbia highway to The Dalles where they crossed the ferry and continued up the Washington side to the town of Maryhill. The trip was of special interest to Mitchell because of his having lived there when it bore the name of Columbia and large peach orchards then flourished and bands of sheep grazed on the scenic slopes where now stands the late Samuel Hill's deserted dream castle Maryhill, desolate and fast falling into decay.

'King Steps Out' Is at Hollywood

Grace Moore Sings Again Of Love; Tone Plays Riotous Emperor

To the hauntingly beautiful melodies of Fritz Kreisler music, some new, some mellowed by the passing years, Grace Moore sings again of love. Now showing at the Hollywood theatre, the screen is filled with the beauty of her new Columbia picture, "The King Steps Out," a proud successor to the "One Night of Love" and a "Love Me Forever" which so endeared her to the hearts of the world.

This time there is no backstage story, no climb to the Metropolitan, but a charming tale of a royal romance in Imperial Austria. It is fitting that Miss Moore's third film should dash so wildly in the opposite direction of the other two. The result is a lyric love story of rare loveliness.

When a love story is involved, there must be a lover, and in that enviable role one finds Franchot Tone, as a reckless, merry monarch, Emperor Francis Josef. Keeping pace with so talented and glamorous a star as Grace Moore is no mean job, but Tone does exceedingly well.

A grand performance is also contributed by the faultless Walter Connolly, as Duke Max of Bavaria. Excellent too are Raymond Walburn, Victory Jory, Elizabeth Risdon, Nana Bryant and Frieda Inescort in important roles.

But of course it is "a Grace Moore picture"; this young lady gets more beautiful as months go on, and her voice, has never been more glorious.
