and had then gone home with their son, about 16, whose full name police withheld. The youth told police that his father had informed him after they arrived at the Center street house that he planned to shoot Mrs. Grant when she came home. Told by the boy that "they'll hang you for it," Grant replied "they won't get a chance to," according to the story given officers by the youth.

The boy fled from the house and telephoned police from a house nearby.

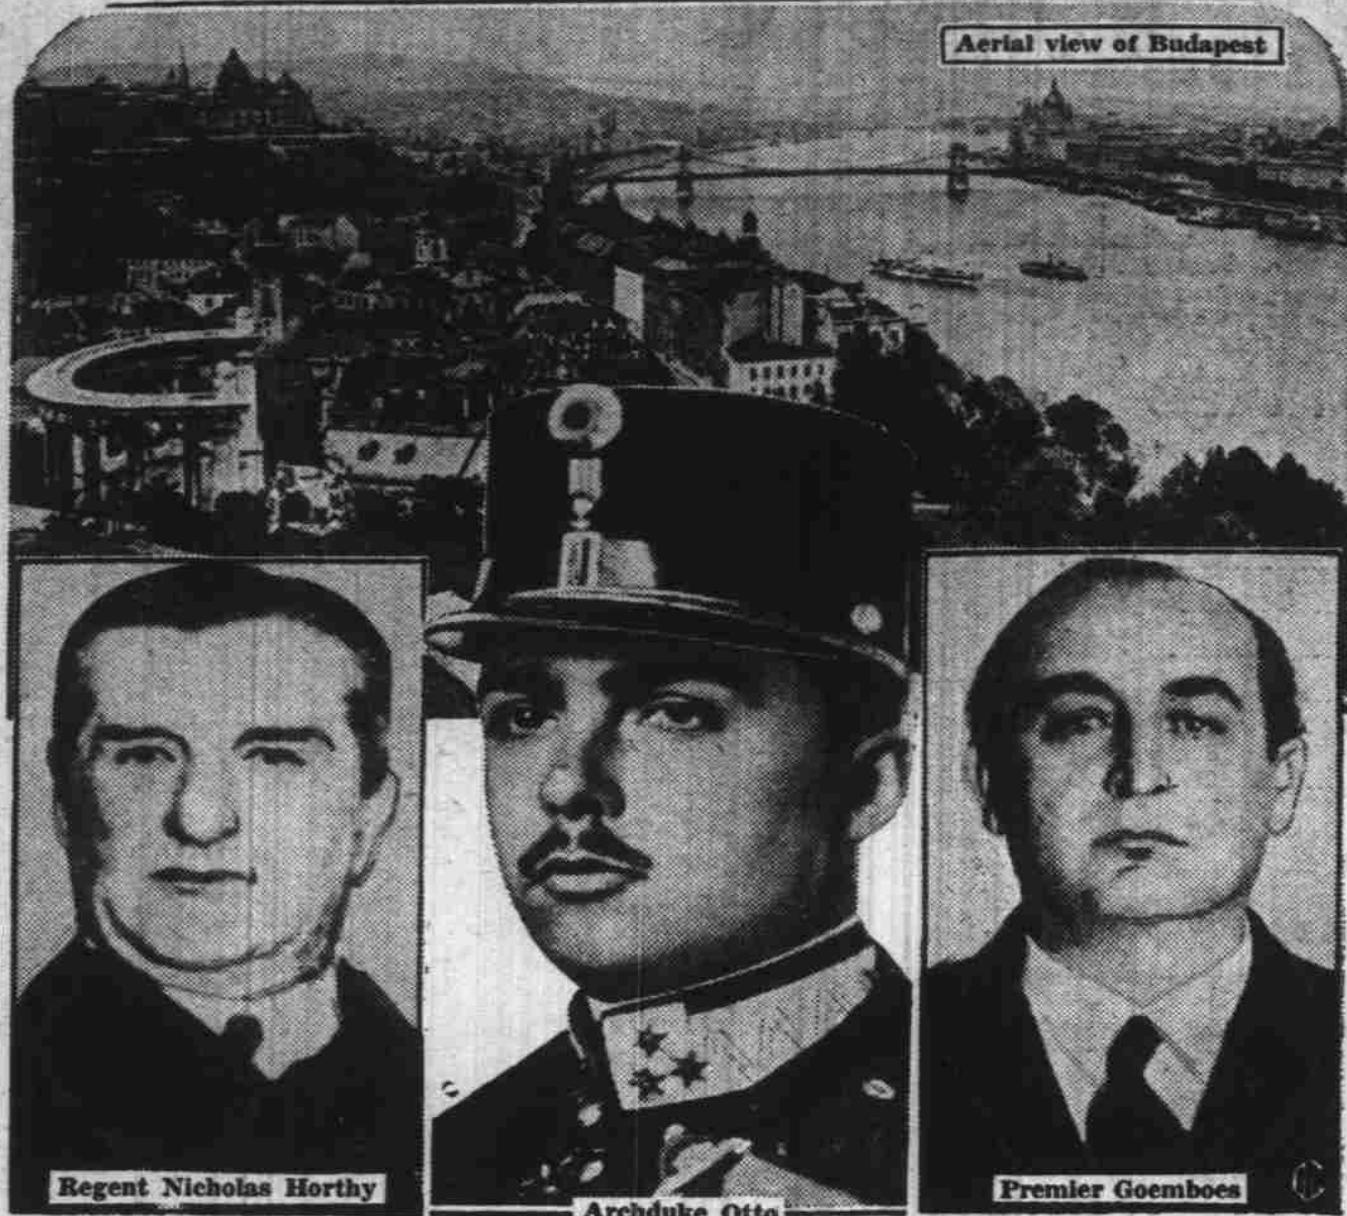

Grant was in a bedroom packing a suitcase when police reached his wife's house. On the bed were a coat guard uniform and cap and a few other articles of clothing. His new automobile was parked in the alley at the side of the house. That he is a crack pistol shot was indicated by eight marksmanship medals found among his possessions.

A tall, quiet-appearing man, Grant said little at police headquarters. Locked in a jail cell, he asked for cigarettes and then disrobed and went to bed.

Police said Grant had come to Salem three weeks ago to see his family but had not stayed at the Center street house, of which his wife and three children occupy the east half of the first floor.

Grant's coat guard station is located on Golden Gate in the San Francisco harbor.

Premier's Death Revives Royalist Hopes

Death of Premier Julius Goemboes of Hungary, who thwarted the return to the throne in 1921 of Emperor Charles and Empress Zita, has revived royalist hopes of placing their son, Archduke Otto, in power. Regent Nicholas Horthy, left as sole head of the state, figures importantly in the situation which all Europe is watching with tense interest. Budapest, capital of Hungary, seethes with excitement as the nation's political future hangs in the balance.

—were carried on with unusual secrecy. Several treasury officials followed newsmen to the conference to get their first information on the accord.

Few American business men will be directly affected by the new system, Morgenthau said.

Previously gold could be shipped out of America by any individual or corporation obtaining an export license from the treasury. Actually few such licenses were sought, because gold has been flowing steadily into the United States for many months.

Knox Applauded In "Solid South"

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Col. Frank Knox, republican vice-presidential nominee, carried his party's campaign into the "solid south" tonight to meet prolonged applause.

Knox spoke at a meeting sponsored by the Virginia state republican organization in Richmond's Masonic temple. He drew cheers and whistles when, in territory traditionally democratic, he appealed to Virginians to "do your duty regardless of political affiliations."

He was repeatedly applauded and there was a noisy response when he charged the Roosevelt administration "is not democratic."

Juvenile Stars Try Out Plane

Pengra Resigns; Takes Radio Job

Resignation of Marshall Pengra, English instructor, was announced at Salem high school yesterday. Pengra has accepted a position as announcer for a Roseburg radio broadcasting station. Before teaching English and coaching golf at the senior high, Pengra was a member of the Parish junior high school faculty.

The school board employment committee has chosen Norborne Berkeley, Pendleton senior high school instructor, to fill Pengra's position here. Berkeley taught at Salem high from 1927 to 1930. He probably will be assigned here to coach the forensics squad. Berkeley is a graduate of University of Oregon and former graduate student of University of Southern California.

Gym Teachers of County Organize

Marion county physical education teachers have formed a district organization to function as a subsidiary of the Oregon State Physical Education association. Vernon Gilmore, of the Salem schools, announced yesterday. Gurnee Flesher of Leslie junior high school, is president and Muriel White of Woodburn is secretary of the new group.

One of the main reasons for starting the district organization is to assist physical education instructors in developing their programs toward standards newly established by state law which must be met by 1940 according to Gilmore, who heads this work in the city schools. Salem high school, he said, already has been brought up to the new requirements. The new program requires four-year physical education training, instruction in hygiene and physical examinations for students.

The county association will hold its next meeting on or near November 26 with members of the Willamette university physical education staff on the campus.

Arts League Will Hear L. Fairbanks

"For 15 years the Salem Arts League has been presenting programs for the benefit of the Salem general public," said Miss Grace Gilliam, president, yesterday. "We are commencing the sixteenth year with a talk by Leo N. Fairbanks, head of the art department of the Oregon State college, in the auditorium of the Salem Chamber of Commerce, tonight at 8 o'clock. As president of the arts league I hope every person in Salem will attend. The program is free."

Artist Leo Fairbanks will illustrate his talk by means of lantern slides. There will be a short business session of the league at 7:30 o'clock in a side room. Members of the league are requested to be present.

Artisans Going to Portland Meeting

Artisans from Woodburn, Silverton and Salem will go to Portland Wednesday night to attend the public installation of officers of Al Azar pyramid No. 1 of Portland, to be held at Al Azar temple, Third and Columbia streets, starting at 8:30 o'clock.

For the first time in the history of the Al Azar organization, a man outside of Portland, Ed Robey of Salem, will head the organization. Following the public installation a dance and entertainment will be held.

Salem Artisans plan to leave the Fraternal temple, 447 Center street, by bus at 6:45 o'clock. Some will go in private cars.

Thursday night at 8 o'clock the local Artisans will hold a business meeting in the Fraternal temple with Master Artisan Tom Burton presiding.

Kelly lauded R. H. Baldock, state highway engineer for Oregon, as "one of the finest in the country."

The Californian has charge of all state construction work.

Dedication Plans Are Taking Shape

A committee headed by Salem Lions club members is laying plans for the formal dedication of the new state blind school dormitory here to B. F. Irvine, blind Portland editor, on October 25, according to Ralph Kletzing, district Lions governor. Wallace Bonesteel is chairman of the dedication program committee.

The three members of the state board of control, other state officials and Lions from all parts of Oregon are expected to attend the ceremonies. At that time a bust of Mr. Irvine, made by Mark Shoemaker, blind sculptor at University of Oregon, will be unveiled.

Lions club members were instrumental in impressing the last legislature with the blind school's need for a new, fireproof dormitory. The grounds about the new building are being landscaped with money donated by Lions clubs.
