The defendants allege in their answer that O'Neill was careless and negligent in the operation of his car and that he failed to keep a proper lookout and that he did not take proper measures to prevent the accident.

"Hey, kids, lookie! Gee, it's Santa Claus! Free candy and everything!"

These, and other remarks will be shouted through smiling little lips as eyes are widened in amazement by Shell's annual Christmas show, with Jose Concha, headlined in a feature performance of mysticism, with his comical helper, Joey.

Tricks of magic that will even thrill "mum" and "dad"; ray music; fancy skating by those two funny birds, the Shell Penguins; and Santa Claus in person passing out free Christmas candy to the kiddies are all scheduled here Wednesday morning, December 2, according to Jack Puhliman, local manager for Shell.

Candy in Magic Box
"The troupe is traveling in a big gold, red and green car complete with folding stage and equipment for the magic show and Santa's Christmas party. The hundreds of kiddies who have enjoyed Shell Christmas shows before, have even a bigger and better treat in store for them," said Puhliman.

This year, the candy will be presented in a magic box, so designed that all youngsters attending will be able to perform a trick just as the magician does, he added. Children and their parents are invited to witness the free show.

Itinerary of the Christmas truck here calls for visiting several of the grade schools during the morning.

Soy Bean Culture In Oregon Sought

Demand for Use in Paints and Oils Mentioned to Board of Control

Planting of soy beans in certain parts of Oregon as a stable and annual crop, was urged by George E. Merwin of the Empire Oil and Food Products company, Portland, and a number of other persons who appeared before the state board of control Monday.

The proposal was referred to the state agricultural department and extension division of Oregon State college with authority to carry out the program through county agents.

Merwin said the soy bean had more than 50 different uses and was considered a permanent and profitable crop in many sections of the United States. He particularly mentioned the use of the soy bean in the manufacture of oils, soap, paints and varnishes and wallpapers.

Malheur county and parts of the Hermiston irrigated district were said to be well adapted to the growing of the soy bean.

U. S. Aid Suggested
Merwin requested that the state use its influence in having the federal government father the program and advance part of the funds required to purchase seed. He said his mill would purchase the entire soy bean crop at the Chicago market quotation.

Twelve oil mills on the Pacific coast were reported by Merwin to be virtually closed because of the present duty imposed on importation of the soy bean and oil. He said the planting of the soy bean in Oregon would not only prove a boon to these mills but would provide the farmer with another profitable crop.

Experts from Oregon State college sat in at the meeting and endorsed the program. They stressed the need of research and conservative plantings until the value of the crop was assured.

Seal Sale Funds Come in Rapidly

Mail Response Is Claimed Satisfactory; Supplies Gone at Two Schools

Returns up to Monday night on the mail sale of Christmas seals—funds from which go to fight tuberculosis—totaled about $300, according to information from the Marion county public health association which is sponsoring the seal sale. The early returns are gratifying to the sponsors.

A large percentage of the funds received since Friday morning, when the seals were distributed through the mails, have come from Salem residents who never before contributed to the cause, and this is taken by the seal sale workers to indicate a wide sympathy with the cause to which the money is put.

Two schools, Brooks and Highland, reported Monday that they had already disposed of all their seals and wished to sell more.

Situation Viewed
As the seal sale campaign gets under way, the sponsors here call attention to the statement of Dr. Kendall Emerson of the national tuberculosis association, in which he says:

"The frequently reiterated fact that while tuberculosis has taken sixth or seventh place as a cause of death in the whole population, it still leads in the deaths between 15 and 40 years, proves the need of a continued campaign."

"Although diagnostic methods may have steadily improved, it still may be true that only 13 per cent of sanatorium admissions are found to be in the first stages of the disease. This means that far too many unrecognized cases in the community are still threatening their neighbors with infection. Refinements in our technique are needed all along the line. There is no phase of our work where effort can be relaxed or actual elimination of the disease."

Loux' Death Due To Heart Attack

SILVERTON, Nov. 30.—A. J. Loux, about 75, passed away Sunday suddenly, apparently from heart failure, while cutting wood on the farm known as the Francis Danigan place ten miles out from Silverton on the Abiqua trail. The land now belongs to Will Hets.

Loux was working with his son, R. E. Loux, at the time. The body has been brought to the Ekman mortuary here.
