

Lipscomb and Elliott Clash

Referee Seeks Vengeance, Meanie Wants to Get Back 50 Iron Men

Not satisfied that his assailant of a week ago is out of pocket $50 for a fine for assault with a dangerous weapon Harry Elliott will meet Jack Lipscomb again next Tuesday night with hopes of getting back with the Indiana villain who bashed him on the bean with a boulder.

Elliott, who apparently has a friends on the force, doesn't think he will need police protection but will probably get it anyway. The blond referee has expressed a desire of meeting Lipscomb minus the presence of a referee. His one condition is that a wire screen be placed around the ring to prevent Lipscomb from running away from him.

Bulldog Jackson will meet Dickie Trout, San Diego, sailor, in the 45-minute semi-windup. It is the first time since his return here that Jackson has not appeared in the main event.

Dilly Davis, Jackson's protegee from Ellensburg, Wash., will meet Noel Franklin, Portland, in the 30-minute opener.

Hop Mart Down As Demand Drops

Pacific coast hop markets ranged from steady in Washington and California markets to slightly weaker in Oregon, during the week ended December 9, according to the Weekly Hop Market Review of the bureau of agricultural economics. Demand for the most part was very slow from domestic buyers, the lack of selling pressure from growers finishing the principal steady market influence. Sales by Pacific coast growers during the period totaled 563 bales, of which $85 bales were sold in Yakima valley of Washington, and 178 bales in Oregon. Prices paid growers were unchanged in Washington and lower in Oregon as compared with a week ago.

Oregon markets developed a slightly easier tone during the past week, reflecting principally the light current demand from domestic interests. Sales by Oregon growers during the period totaled 178 bales, of which 112 bales netted 37 1/2¢ per lb. while 66 bales brought 37¢ per pound. The sales covered 1936 crop clusters of about prime quality. Around two weeks ago this grade netted growers 40¢ per pound. An option at 40¢ per pound during the past week was not taken up by the dealers. Oregon growers for the most part however, were not pressing their remaining supplies.

Washington hop markets were moderately active in the Yakima valley district with sales by growers in that area during the week totaling 385 bales of 1936 crop. Clusters of choice quality, at 40¢ per pound, net growers. One three-year contract covering 30,000 pounds, was reported written in the Yakima valley for 1937, 1938 and 1939, at 20¢, 20¢ and 20¢ per pound, for each year, net to grower.

June Grier Wins Griffith's Award

One of the two Franklin T. Griffith awards for 1936 will be presented to June Grier of Salem, announced W. M. Hamilton, Willamette division manager of the Portland General Electric Co., yesterday.

A plaque and cash prize were won by Miss Grier for her outstanding efforts in improving and expanding service to Pepco patrons. The Salem woman took first place on the non-contact group. First prize in the contact employ group was won by E. J. Bratney of Portland.

Salem runners-up in the contest included J. I. Teed and C. R. Woolery, in the contact group, and W. R. Newmyer, L. D. Howell and R. D. Barton in the non-contact classification.

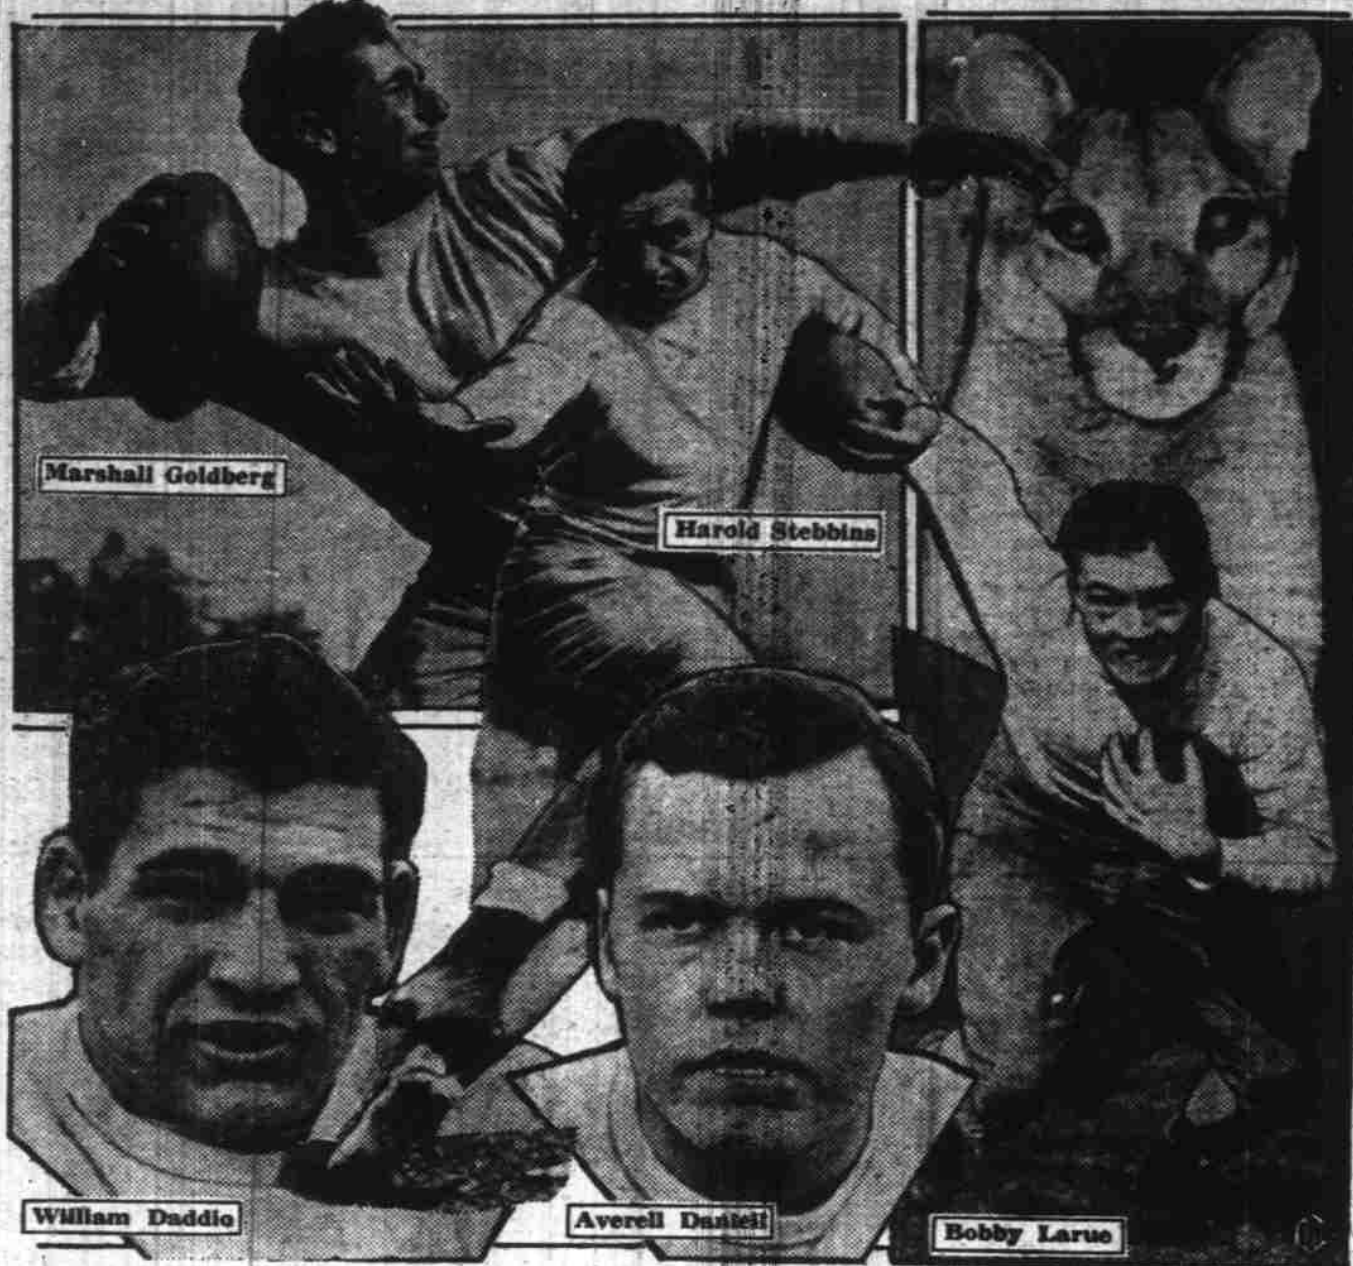

The Salem winners will be honored guests at the New Year's frolic of the Pepco Loadbuilder's club early in January, to be held in Portland.

Top Grid Award

Climaxing his selection on nearly every All-American team in the country, Larry Kelley, Yale coach and captain, was chosen as recipient of the Helmsman award for being "the outstanding football player of 1936."

East Favors Pitt Panther to Win in Rose Bowl

Their claims will be disputed strenuously anywhere within easy driving distance of Seattle, but the eastern sport writers are predicting that the Pittsburgh Panthers will beat the Washington Huskies by two touchdowns on New Year's day in the Rose Bowl. They point principally to Pitt's 20-0 victory over Notre Dame, and to the array of Pittsburgh stars pictured above.

Cutler Re-elected By Missouri Club

The Salem Missouri club Friday night returned J. L. Cutler for a third term as president. E. W. Harland, the other nominee for the office, was unwillingly made an opponent of Cutler, he said, but was not allowed to withdraw.

James Harland was named vice-president, Mrs. Jessie Lucas, secretary, and H. R. McWhorter, treasurer.

The next meeting will be held January 22.

The evening's program included a club supper, music by the Rhythm Vendors orchestra, a male octette composed of Messrs Martin, Cutler, Merryman, Friesen, Craven, Hull and McWhorter, with Alena Bremner at the piano; readings by Mrs. Addie Curtis, Mrs. Bertha Rae, Elvira Smith and Miss Speck; and two vocal solos by Ronald Craven with Miss Bremner at the piano.

McGroarty Club Made Permanent

The temporary $60-a-month pension organization formed at a meeting at Salem High school in November was made permanent under the name of the McGroarty club at a meeting in the city library fireplace room Friday night, Dr. F. S. Schultz, president, reported yesterday. Because Townsend plan advocates attempted to break up the first meeting, no advance public notice was given of Friday night's session.

Other officers of the club include E. M. Hammer, vice-president; Mrs. Lillie Howe, secretary, and V. L. Irish, treasurer.

The group voted to promote passage of the McGroarty pension bill.

They are Frank Hurbets, Liberty, O. L. Davis, Woodburn, and J. H. Hagill, Hubbard.

John Ramage, member of the state agricultural committee appointed by Governor Martin described to the 50 growers present at the meeting the workings of the California Pro Rata law. Problems facing the industry in the coming year were discussed by the members.

Santiam Fish and Game Body Meets

Fitzgerald Is President; Closing of Alea Is Voted Support

ALBANY, Dec. 12.—Election of officers, reports of the summer season, at Clear Lake, and a visit from a committee representing the Benton county sportsmen's organization, were some of the highlights for the meeting of the Santiam Fish and Game group when they met in the city hall here. Elmer Fitzgerald, Lebanon, was elected president and Dent Stewart, Albany, vice president.

Merwin O. Wilkinson was re-elected secretary and Arch Lindsey field secretary, while Walter Scott, Dr. J. C. Gill and Hugh Olds, all of Lebanon, and John Bryant and James Jenks of Albany, were elected directors.

Reports were made on the summer activities at Clear Lake by F. M. Brown, chairman of the lake committee, and G. W. Cronson, who acted as caretaker during the season.

Representing the Benton county club were Dr. Pepper, H. M. Cummings and Mr. Urban of Corvallis. Each of the three men spoke on the proposal to appeal to the next Oregon legislature to pass a law closing the Alea river to commercial fishermen. A discussion followed and the members of the Santiam Game and Fish association went on record as favoring the proposed closing. They pledged themselves to support the Benton county association in the endeavor. In view of this a committee composed of T. W. Munyan and Hugh Olds of Lebanon, E. G. Arnold and Fred Weatherford of Albany, and F. M. Brown of Brownsville were appointed as a legislative committee.

Other matters which came before the association were the liberation of China pheasants and fish, and an earlier closed deer season, but no action was taken on either.

The annual banquet and program of the association will be held at the Riverside community hall on Wednesday evening of next week.

Rich Golf Prize Lures Veterans

Despite a record round of 86 by Lawson Little, former United States amateur champion, and sub-par golf by Horton Smith, defending champion, it was Ralph Guldahl of St. Louis who set the pace at the Miami-Biltmore open golf tourney for the rich prize of $10,000.

Oregon Officials Great Travelers

State officials contributed liberally during the past week to the financial coffers of the railroads and gasoline distributing corporations.

R. H. Baldoek, state highway engineer, and J. M. Devers, attorney for the commission, spent most of the week at San Francisco attending a conference of state highway officials.

Charles A. Howard, state superintendent of schools, is at Chattanooga, Tenn., attending an educational conference. He was elected vice-president of the national organization.

C. E. Stricklin, state engineer, is at Burns where he is conducting a number of water contests.

Governor Martin found time to give an address at Hood River and look after official business in Portland.

Major General White divided the week between Salem and Camp Clatsop.

Both Secretary of State Snell and George Flagg, his chief deputy, are in Sacramento, Calif., attending a conference of motor vehicle and gasoline tax officials.

Solon T. White, state agricultural director, was in Portland and Hood River.

Hugh H. Earle, state insurance commissioner, is in the east attending a conference of insurance officials.

Peril of Fire at Christmas Cited

Oregon's annual holiday fire warning was issued Saturday by Hugh Earle, state fire marshal. "Our records show that almost all joyful occasions have been turned to sorrow, suffering or periods of regret because of some careless practice or lack of serious thought on the part of responsible individuals," Earle said.

"A realization of hazards, even though they are permitted to exist but are handled with due care, will largely remove the chances of serious consequences," Earle said Christmas trees, certain types of toys and the usual holiday decorations were highly inflammable.

N. Y. Rangers Lead
TORONTO, Dec. 12.—(AP)—The New York Rangers regained the lead in the national hockey league's American division from the idle Detroit Red Wings tonight by taking a furious overtime struggle from the Toronto Maple Leafs, 5 to 3.

History has been made, no question about that, in England the past few days. But we wonder how much attention, in future years, will be devoted to this particular episode in histories of England written by Englishmen?

In connection with this great international event, a story came in last night with these extremely important disclosures concerning Eddie Windsor's trip toward Vienna.

The bill of fare included consommé, filet of sole, chicken salad, ice cream and cheese. "After dinner Windsor asked for a 'good, hot cup of coffee.' "There was specially cooked meat for the dog."

Those triumphs of journalistic investigation reveal clearly that Eddie is due to be crowded off the front page soon for a time at least. But, wondering again, . . . supposing that, five years from now, Eddie and Lindbergh should stroll down the street together and part company at some intersection— which one would the crowd follow?

You can always count on Oregon getting around to some Oregon weather if you give it plenty of time, but the copious rains of the past week haven't caused the golfers to duck for cover to any great extent. Most of them lay off a day or two every week this time of year anyway, and when they went forth again they found conditions vastly different, but still highly acceptable.

It's "winter golf" season, with the trees moved up to those winter ones of wind, sand or matting, but so far the turf is still firm enough so it's possible to tee off from a grassy spot just back of the artificial ones. The third and stiffer trees have been moved to their winter positions, providing a different prospect from that of summer golf, and also shortening the number of steps it requires to get around. Your ball doesn't roll so far, but that's a help if it was headed for the rough or out-of-bounds, and some of the boys are scoring as well as they did two months ago.
