Columbia Firm Buys Brick Plant

Announced Wednesday was the lem Brick and Tile company by the Columbia Brick company of Portland, long established in the brick manufatcure business in the state, with plants at Sylvan and Gresham near Portland. Phil Corbett, for 15 years manager of the Corvallis Brick and Tile works at Corvallis, has been appointed local manager and assumed his duties yesterday. The plant which has been shut down after the summer run, will be started up again with a small crew as soon as the weather permits, and former employes will be absorbed as fast as possible, it being the company policy to continue to use local labor.

Due to financial difficulties the plant was taken over by bondholders on December 1, with W. R. Kane in charge. With the plant passing into the hands of a firmly established company, steady expansion of its operations is expected.

Corbett, the new manager, litoperated the Corvallis plant before him. He is thoroughly ex-perienced in brick manufacturing and intends to devote his time at first to improving the plant and its processes in order to turn out the finest grade of finished product. The plant's products include brick, hollow tile and drain tile.
