

Oregon Again on Even Keel, Governor Informs Legislators

Hopes Nobody To Rock Boat

Martin Points Out Budget Based on Total Income Increases Harmful

Following is the text of Governor Charles H. Martin's biennial message to the Oregon legislature:

To the Honorable President and Members of the Senate, and to the Honorable Speaker and Members of the House of Representatives of the 39th Legislative Assembly:

I welcome you to the 39th legislative session, and come before you to make a report on my first year as governor. I wish to express to you my eagerness to cooperate in solving the current problems confronting the state government in the best interest of all the citizens of this great state.

Oregon has come through the depression years with flying colors. As you know, the deficit of $1,304,290.31 which faced the state at the beginning of my administration has been converted into a surplus of approximately $1,800,000. This is the first time since 1925 that the state deficit has been eliminated.

Bonded indebtedness of the state has been reduced to $49,103,020, the lowest in 15 years. Out of this total approximately $46,989,000 is represented by the outstanding obligations of the Oregon state highway commission and the world war veterans' state aid commission. Both issues are self-liquidating, and will be retired on schedule unless adverse action is taken.

Can Be Eliminated
The entire bonded debt of the state can be eliminated under the present program of retirement by 1940 provided no new bonds or obligations are incurred in the meantime.

For the first time in history, the state of Oregon will remove the property tax from real and personal property, except for that portion of the tax outside of the constitutional 8 percent limitation, of which more than one-half is for the elementary school fund which is not properly a state tax in that it is collected and distributed solely within the counties. The tax levy for strictly state purposes for this year is 1.15 mills as compared with 2.86 mills in 1936. This represents a reduction of more than $1,500,000. Due to excellent administration by the war veterans' state aid commission, the 0.5 levy for that commission has been waived for this year.

The state has done its part in lifting the load from the real property taxpayers in accordance with my avowed program. This has been accomplished through a constructive program of economy which has measured actual needs and demands of the state governmental agencies and provided therefor, within reason, instead of an arbitrary and unreasoned cutting. This has been effected through the system of budgetary control which was authorized at my request by the 33rd legislative assembly. It demonstrates anew the wisdom of sound business operation of governmental activities.

It is essential that the tax load be not increased at this time. Then, the people of this state may all the more enjoy the full benefit of the economic recovery and the new era of prosperity upon which we are entering as result of the great developments taking place in Oregon. I refer particularly to the Bonneville dam and the Willamette valley projects. I am sure you will agree with me that it is sound public policy to make the best use of government as little as possible, commensurate with adequate service for the benefit of the entire population.

MODERN WOMEN

Modern women are the most interesting and colorful group in the world. They are the leaders in fashion, in art, in science, in industry, in every field of human endeavor. They are the backbone of our civilization. They are the women of the future. They are the women of today.

In Best Position
Oregon has weathered the recent depression, and now is in the most favored position in the Pacific coast area. Unlike neighboring states, Oregon has no deficit and no warrant indebtedness. She has substantially reduced the tax load of her citizens. She is reducing her bonded indebtedness by sound economic retirement.

This means the people of Oregon can use their money for constructive purposes, including further development of the varied and rich resources with which nature has abundantly endowed our state. The future is not heavily mortgaged for things used or consumed in the past.

As I have said, Oregon rode the storm of the economic depression on an even keel. It would be the part of wisdom not to rock the boat now and thereby risk losing the preferential and favored position we hold and can enjoy.

In the November, 1936, election, the people spoke in no uncertain terms relative to constitutional and statutory changes in our governmental structure and operation. The "no" vote was emphatic. It clearly indicates that, in so far as major legislation is concerned, they desire no fundamental changes. We, as servants of the people, should observe that mandate and impose no unnecessary legislation.

I have submitted to you the state budget for the 1937-38 biennium as my recommendation for legislative enactment to insure efficient and economical operation of the state government for that period. It is a program designed to encompass the growing needs for state participation in various activities that properly come under its purview. It is projected income last night with the announcement yesterday by Senator Curtis D. Stringer that he would introduce a measure in the senate today to repeal the state laws authorizing branch banking.

Stringer said the approval of his bill automatically would prevent national banks from establishing branches in Oregon.

"My bill has received the approval of a large number of persons who are interested in the creation and operation of local banks," Stringer declared.

Another bill concerned with branch banking, not as stringent as Stringer's which would not prohibit them but would give stricter regulation, was being prepared for introduction. It was stated.

Would Block Raise
In the offing was a measure aimed at state employees in the higher income brackets. The measure being prepared would provide that all salaries in excess of $200 be retained at their present level. The old base salaries under $200 would be restored.

The salary reduction law of the 1935 legislative session expires in March. In case of no new legislation all state salaries would be restored to their old base level. The salary reductions ranged from five to 30 per cent.

Governor Martin has recommended that all state salaries be restored to their old base and the necessary funds have been provided in the budget.

Check Upon Bills Urged by Strayer

The need for economy and efficiency in handling senate bills at the current legislative session was voiced Monday by Senator Strayer, speaking under the head of special privilege.

Strayer urged that before bills are introduced they be referred to the clerk of the engrossed and enrolled bills committee to determine whether they are drafted properly.

"If you will observe this rule you will save the state money," Strayer declared.

Senator Duncan, endorsing Senator Strayer's plan, said in such time was wasted at previous legislative sessions in correcting bills which were drafted improperly and not in compliance with the senate rules.

House Creates 2 Committees

Republicans Are Chairmen of 8 Out of 41; Plums Carefully Divided

After the legislation and rules committee had approved a change in house rules providing for the creation of two new committees, those being erosion and flood control and federal relations, Speaker Harry Bolvin yesterday morning started the business of the house of representatives on its way with the appointment of standing committees.

To friend and foe the appointments went with no member having more than one chairmanship. Membership on the all-powerful ways and means committee was considered equal to a chairmanship, Bolvin said. Only two of the ways and means committeemen hold chairmanships. They are Annan, chairman of mining and Rennie, chairman of mining and J. H. McCloskey, chairman of food and dairy products.

Republicans received chairmanships of eight of the 41 committees, heaviest duty going to Fahrner, Marlon, banking and corporations; Thomas, education; Norblad, Gladson, fisheries; Rennie, Benton, mining; Hockett, Wallowa, taxation and revenue.

Attack on Branch Banking Imminent

String Would Bail Setting Up of Subsidiaries in Cities of Oregon

An attack on branch banking in Oregon is expected to start with the announcement yesterday by Senator Curtis D. Stringer that he would introduce a measure in the senate today to repeal the state laws authorizing branch banking.

Stringer said the approval of his bill automatically would prevent national banks from establishing branches in Oregon.

"My bill has received the approval of a large number of persons who are interested in the creation and operation of local banks," Stringer declared.

Another bill concerned with branch banking, not as stringent as Stringer's which would not prohibit them but would give stricter regulation, was being prepared for introduction. It was stated.

Vetoed Bill Sent Back by Governor
A vetoed bill of the special 1935 legislative session, providing for repeal of student fees at Oregon's higher educational institutions, was returned to the senate Monday with Governor Charles H. Martin's veto message.

Governor Martin declared the proposed amendment was unconstitutional for the reason that the student fees law already was under referendum attack.

Legislators Use Facilities of Y

Senator Douglas McKay and Representative T. A. Krosley have invited visiting legislators by letter to enjoy the privileges offered by the Salem Y.M.C.A. without cost during the present session. In doing so, as members of the Y. board of directors, they followed a custom established many years ago by the late Thomas B. Kay.

The legislators took the senator and representative at their word was shown by the arrival of several legislators at the Y. yesterday, asking for use of the swimming pool, lifeguarding outfit and even weight-lifting equipment.

Around the Lobby

passed without opposition or debate. It was a ways and means committee bill appropriating $25,000 to apply toward the costs of the session.

On hand immediately following the opening of the session was Dr. Ralph I. Shaddock, state Townsend manager. A Townsend memorial to congress is expected shortly. He was conferring with members of the house.

Courtesies of the house were extended yesterday to ex-Senator Jack Allen and Mrs. Allen and to City Commissioner J. E. Bennett of Portland who always makes several appearances during the legislative meetings.

The rock workers around the substitute capital yesterday were not the senators and representatives who organized at a short morning session and quit for the day after an equally short afternoon joint gathering to hear the governor. The hardest workers on the substitute payroll, Ervase and hard to find were most of the legislators who had, for the most part, already made arrangements for their hired help.

It undoubtedly was the thoughts of a number of new legislators and many onlookers that the session didn't get anywhere Monday, but the fact is that more was accomplished than on the first day of the 1935 special session when disputes over members' eligibility prevented the completion of organization the first day. These same people will probably have similar comment to make at the end of the first week. It was indicated that both houses might recess from Thursday
