Utter Tells Plan For Fixing Terms

Judges Still to Sentence Offenders, Explained in Kiwanis Talk

Explanation that the indeterminate sentence law which has been recommended by the parole board, would not take the sentencing power away from circuit judges, was made by Dr. Floyd Utter, Salem member of the board, in a talk before the Kiwanis club Tuesday.

Judges would continue to sentence offenders but would set maximum and minimum terms, 1 to 5, 1 to 10 years or some other limit. Dr. Utter said, and then went on to explain the great volume of revealing and exact information the board would have at its disposal in setting the definite release date. Dr. Utter said this system was highly successful in Washington and California.

The first purpose of the parole board is to protect society, Dr. Utter said, mentioning the extremely cautious viewpoint the present board has adopted, resulting in few paroles out of the many prisoners interviewed.

He mentioned the Mattson kidnapping, evidently the work of a pervert type criminal, as one of the occurrences which cause dissatisfaction with parole systems. On the other side of the picture he mentioned the pleas of relatives for release of men whom the board knows are not safe to be released upon society.

Better supervision of persons on parole is needed, and the board is recommending that more help be given Parole Officer Duffy, whose work the speaker praised.

Hughes Sets New Record in Plane

Movie Man Speeds Across Continent in Less Than 7 1/2 Hours

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—In-haling oxygen through a rubber tube held in his teeth, Howard Hughes, millionaire sportsman pilot and former movie producer, flashed across the continent at an average speed of nearly 5 1/2 miles a minute today to set a new west-east air record.

The lanky, 24-year-old amateur flier drove his specially constructed, bullet-shaped monoplane from Los Angeles to New York in 35 hours, 25 minutes, 25 seconds by official clocking. The previous record, which he set January 14, 1936, was 9 hours, 25 minutes, 10 seconds.

Tired, oil-splattered and "a bit shaky" after rocketing non-stop across the country, Hughes climbed from his cockpit at Newark airport and smiled as he told of escaping near-disaster when his inhalator failed at an altitude of 30,000 feet.

"Suddenly I found that my arms and legs were practically paralyzed," he said. "I was not getting enough oxygen. I could not even get my hand up to my face. I knew that in a few minutes I was going to sleep. It was a helpless, hopeless feeling."

"I crossed the ship slowly downward to an altitude of 15,000 feet and full consciousness came back to me. It was the closest I ever got to being in a real jam."

"I jacked the oxygen tube out of the nosepiece and stuck it in my mouth. After that I couldn't eat."

De-seeding will be completed by the middle of February, it was thought.

Work on the plant, being done under WPA project, is progressing and it was expected that the building would be completed early in the season. The Mt. Angel association is leasing the building from the state. Twenty-six persons are continuously employed at the plant.
