Cap and Gowns Is High School Issue

Pros and Cons Thrown as Annual Battle Opened by Clarion Story

The battle of caps and gowns, in the way of coming to an annual affair at Salem high, was being waged again among members of the senior class yesterday following endorsement of the idea of caps and gowns for graduating seniors in a front page editorial in this week's Clarion.

Taul Watanabe, president of the senior class, is the leader of the cap and gown faction and made the original suggestion that that form of graduation garb be adopted.

His suggestion and the Clarion editorial, jointly written by Dorothy Jayes and Ruth O'Neill, stirred up much comment and the seniors will probably slate a special class meeting soon to argue the question pro and con.

Is Annual Issue
Principal Fred Wolf recalled that the argument has come up nearly every year during his tenure and that it has always been voted down heavily by the faction preferring the traditional flowing dresses for girls and dark coats and suits for boys.

Some representative opinion: Taul Watanabe, senior class president: "I think with caps and gowns more people can fully participate in the graduation exercises because it is a more economical plan. This is about time we got away from the white flannel tradition."

Barbara Lamb: "I don't want caps and gowns because I want a graduation dress."

Whifred Hagdorn, Clarion editor: "I think we should be different. If we're going to graduate from a new school I think we should graduate in new attire."

Helen Kealy: "I'm neutral and anyway how many of these seniors are ever going to get to college, let alone graduate?"

Third university fraternity, Sigma Tau, elects officers only once a year.

In addition to Heimsoth as president, Alpha Psi elected Louis Hershberger, Canby, first vice-president; Robert Anderson, Portland, secretary, and Don Collins, Salem, member-at-large. George McAllister, Gresham, was re-elected manager.

Kappa Gamma Rho chose Ralph Gustafson, Portland, its vice-president; Ward Weneke, Portland, secretary; Ellsworth Morley, Salem, member-at-large, and Larry Nunnkamp, Tigard, manager.

Some of the plays that are to be presented are "The Neighbors," "The Advantage of Being a Boy," "All's Vanity" and "The Maker of Dreams."

Students of the drama class praise the work of Clare McFarlane and Audrey Shay and Barbara Lamb for their fine work in "The Advantage of Being a Boy." These plays are under the direction of Miss Burroughs, director of the Salem high school drama department.

Absentee List In Schools Up

Lealie Hardest Hit, More Than One-Third of All Pupils Are Out Now

Absences in Salem public schools reached 17.1 per cent of the total enrollment of 5170 yesterday as the epidemic of flu and colds reached greater intensity, Superintendent Elias Gaiser reported.

Lealie junior high school, which reported 155 of its 442 students or 35.1 per cent absent, was the worst afflicted while at the new Bush school 191 out of 388 or 26 per cent were absent.

Absences at the senior high school, after dropping slightly Wednesday, mounted again yesterday. Principal Fred reported 187 absences from an enrollment of 1593.

Not All Flu Cases
Dr. E. E. Berr, director of the Marion county health department, said in commenting on the large number of absences reported at the schools that not all of them could be credited to the flu and that others probably became panicky and withdrew their children when there is little or no trace of the disease.

Nineteen teachers were unable to report for duties in Salem schools yesterday. The enrollment absences yesterday comprise a percentage absent as compiled by the superintendent's office:

	No. Pupils	Enroll.	Absent	Pct.

Trial of Martin Postponed Again

ALBANY, Jan. 21.—Frank Martin, who has been held in the Linn county jail since May 7, 1936, on a charge of burglary, has again had his trial postponed, this time because Ted Rodman, state police officer and one of the state's witnesses, is ill at his home in Lebanon and could not be present. The case was postponed in circuit court Wednesday by Judge L. H. McMahan.

The case grew out of the alleged attempt to burglarize the Ernest Scholl store at Sweet Home almost nine months ago. Martin pleaded not guilty to the indictment, but was unable to furnish bond, and as a result is still in the county jail.
