Honor Memory of Evangelist

Moody in characteristic poses

Centenary celebrations in more than a score of cities in United States are being held this month in honor of Dwight Lyman Moody, evangelist, who was born at Northfield, Mass., Feb. 5, 1837. Farm born, Moody was a shoe clerk at Boston when, at 19, he began his career as evangelist. In 1879 he met Ora D. Sankey, hymn-singing collector of internal revenue, and thus started a song writing partnership which yielded the two considerable revenue and much publicity. Moody died in 1899.
