

McMahan Court Docket Upset

Scolds Attorneys, Then Sets Fifth Case on List Thursday

Circuit Judge L. H. McMahan yesterday schooled his jurymen in their duties in anticipation of re-opening action in his department but again his trial program toppled in a jumble of out-of-court settlements, and postponements.

Fifteen minutes after the first case, Kattel vs. Industrial accident commission, was to have been started yesterday afternoon, attorneys announced they had agreed on a settlement of plaintiff's claim.

Then it developed that counsel in the Cadie vs. Crandall suit, third on the list, was tied up in court in another county and counsel in the fourth case, Turner State bank vs. Davis, reported the defendant was ill.

A telephone call to Portland brought the word that the plaintiff's counsel in the fifth case on the docket, Ringwald vs. McKay, could not appear here before Thursday morning. And a call for the sixth case, Freeman vs. Campbell, disclosed only the plaintiff present.

So Judge McMahan, scolding at the upset of his announced plan of trying one case after another in rapid succession without definitely scheduling any but the first, told the jurymen to go home, dropped his previously announced plan of dismissing all cases in which the attorneys were not ready when their turn arrived, and set the Ringwald vs. McKay case for 3 a. m. Thursday.

Yon jurymen can now go back to your farms and work until Thursday morning to get together enough money to pay the extra taxes caused by these attorneys' not settling this case sooner," the judge said, referring to the Kattel case.

Docket Rearranged
The docket as rearranged now stands as follows:
Ringwald vs. McKay; Freeman vs. Campbell; Snyder vs. City of Salem vs. Doughty; City of Salem vs. Lightfoot, Turner State bank vs. Davis.

Rural School Has Enrollment Boost

CLOVERDALE, Feb. 23 — Three new pupils were enrolled at the Cloverdale school last week, William Cox, grade 7, Clarence Cox, grade 3. The Cox family have moved onto the place where Fred Brown lived. This brings the enrollment to 41.

The Boys' Handicraft club held its regular meeting in its workroom in the basement of the school Thursday afternoon. Two new members were enrolled, Wilbur and Clarence Cox. Arthur Kunkis is the instructor of this club and A. W. J. Bestvater is the leader.

The health club had its regular meeting Friday afternoon. The club is attempting to get Dr. Thome of Salem and Turner to hold a clinic at the school early in March.

New Architects' Contract Planned

The contract for architectural services in planning Marion county's proposed new courthouse will be entirely rewritten to eliminate sections to which PWA authorities have objected, it was learned from an official source yesterday. It was stated the new contract would be written here, signed by the county court and sent on for the signatures of Whitehouse & Church and Knights & Howell, Portland architectural firms, and the old contract discarded.

The same source said the 1 1/2 per cent surcharge on a maximum base expenditure of $20,000 for electrical, plumbing and engineering, would be omitted from the new contract and provision would be made also that the construction project clerk would be responsible only to the county court.

Kiwanis Hears of Socialism Theory

Communism, Fascism Also Described by Student Speakers of U. O.

The meanings of the terms socialism, communism and fascism were explained in detail to members of the Salem Kiwanis club at its Tuesday luncheon by speakers representing the University Forum of the University of Oregon.

John Luvaas, discussing socialism, said its aims were: Public ownership of utilities and the instruments of production of wealth, including the large industries, but not to the total exclusion of private enterprise; partial compensation to the present owners, but a gradual leveling of wealth through big inheritance taxes; economic planning to prevent surpluses or shortages; taxation reform to relieve home owners, and high income taxes to level wealth, but not complete equalization or distribution of wealth; equality of opportunity and security; accomplishment of all this through education and democratic processes, not by force.

Communism, Similar Communism, Luvaas explained, is described as "socialism in a hurry;" advocacy of these reforms by revolution.

Edward Robbins listed the characteristics of fascism as nationalism, militarism, dictatorship and modified capitalism. Believing they live in the best of nations, fascists must protect it with a strong army capable of defeating all foes at once; such a military organization must have a strong, iron dictatorship.

Want Signature, Every Pensioner Grazing Contract Parley Held Here

Delegations from a number of eastern Oregon counties gathered in the executive department Tuesday and discussed the proposed contract between the state land board and the federal government involving lease and purchase of grazing lands belonging to the state.

The lands are included in the eastern Oregon grazing district. It has been proposed that the government lease these lands for the year 1937 at one cent per acre, in 1938 at two cents per acre and in 1939 at three cents per acre. Purchase would be optional at $2.50 an acre.

Decision was made to withhold action pending a federal appropriation and approval by the federal attorney general.

Due to the nearness of the grazing season the land board secretary was directed to advertise for bids to lease the state grazing lands.

The bids will be opened March 12.
