

Organized Labor Wins Victory Upon Union Registration Bill

Fight Is Made On Disposition

Labor-Industry Committee Gets It After Measure Is Greatly Changed

Labor forces in the house won a major victory yesterday morning when they engineered a new union registration measure through first and second reading under suspension of the rules and sent the bill to the committee on labor and industries. The bill, by a 34 to 25 vote, was introduced by the committee on reorganization as a substitute for house bill 55.

Yesterday's action reversed the vote of 19 days ago when the companion labor measures 56 and 57, came from the labor committee on divided reports. At that time the bills were re-referred to the administration committee.

Representative Hannah Martin, Marion, took the lead in sending the bills to the committee. She moved suspension of the rules and Representative Hyde moved that they be sent to the labor committee.

Move Is Opposed
Representative Fatland, a member of the administration committee objected to sending the bill to the labor committee.

"This bill was drawn by the committee on administration and reorganization and should be sent back to them. There's no sense in chalking it to death in committee. Let it come on the floor and be decided. No one who is interested will be denied a hearing on the bill."

Representative Jack Wagner, Multnomah, took issue with Fatland. "To hear Representative Fatland talk, you would think the committee was going to kill the bill," Wagner said. "It will not be chucked to death. For your information there are more members on the labor and industries committee not connected with labor than there are men who are interested in unions."

The vote on the motion to refer the bill to the labor and industry committee was:
Aye: Alber, Allen, Antrim, Barnes, Bevans, Bood, Brady, Bull, Cady, Carter, Delch, Eckersley, Esson, Friede, Harrison, Higgs, Hogan, Hosh, Hyde, Jeanmet, Jennings, Jones, Laird, Leach, Mahoney, Martin, Miller, Norblad, Norton, Olen, Roth, Wagner, Waller, Bolvin.

No: Bennett, Dawson, Duerst, Engda 1, Fatland, French, Fuhrer, Grant, Hockett, Hughes, Kimberling, Livesley, Magruder, McAllister, McCloskey, Munroe, Reese, Riddle, Semon, Staples, Stephenson, Thum, Turner, Wilkinson, Young.

Absent: Erwin.

Committees Near Windup of Tasks

A survey of the senate committees Tuesday indicated that most of the important bills of the current legislative session have received consideration. A large number of these bills probably will not be reported out.

The agricultural committee of which Senator McCormack is chairman had only one bill for consideration.

Other committees reported that they could see the end of their work provided a flock of new bills are not introduced.

Session Radio Review Given By Statesman

Each night promptly at 9 o'clock while the legislature is in session, The Statesman is presenting over radio station KSLM a summary of the day's activities in the two houses. These broadcasts will not be presented Saturday nights unless there are sessions of the legislature on Saturday.

Both The Statesman and radio station KSLM have received many expressions of appreciation of these broadcasts.

Senate Saves Kerr Position

U. of O. "Crowd" Defends Him Now; Abolishment of Job Voted Down

The senate saved the position of Dr. W. J. Kerr, former chancellor of the state system of higher education, when it indefinitely postponed, 18 to 11, H. B. 40 to abolish the office of director of market research. Oddly enough the rescue was led by the "universally crowd," which in former years had fought Dr. Kerr when he was president of the state college, Angell and Walker, both U. of O. graduates, and Wheeler, senator from Lane county, speaking against the bill.

Johnson and Lessard also spoke against the bill. Favoring the bill on the floor were Stringer, Burke, Kiddle, Balentine, Graham.

Angell voiced high praise for Dr. Kerr, saying: "I admire him for his ability. He took the state college when it was a weak institution and built it up until it is one of the outstanding institutions in the United States in agriculture. His services in the present work are very desirable. Dr. Kerr is giving dollar for dollar and we should not interfere with the state board."

Wheeler made a warm defense of the ex-chancellor's position, declaring: "I guarantee he will do more in help of agriculture than all the agricultural agents of the state. He is now working on marketing of prunes and apples but has not gone far enough to make a report. The prejudice was against the pension; but now he is hired as a worker and part is paid by the federal government."

Says Farmers Oppose
Senator Burke in support of the bill said there were many resolutions of agricultural organizations against the Kerr office but none for it. Kiddle said the position had no business with the system of higher education but belonged with the department of agriculture. Graham said his conclusion was based on the fact that the advocates of the position did not persuade him that anything had been accomplished.

In closing Sen. Walker pleaded for support of the board of higher education which had brought the schools from turmoil, operated them at reduced cost, taken care of more students. He asserted it was not the province of the legislature to interfere with the administration.

The senate passed 28 bills Tuesday, most of them being appropriation bills brought in by the ways and means committee, having previously passed the house. H. B. 361 to prohibit use by any public body of U. S. flags not manufactured in the U. S. A. was indefinitely postponed when senators argued that it would create friction in foreign relations.

Senator Angell requested information from the ways and means committee as to the totals of appropriation bills as compared with available revenues. Sen. Walker replied that the information had been tabulated from time to time and was available.

In support of the committee bills Walker said that the total appropriation would not materially exceed the income if the estimated revenues are realized. The committee left the minimum age for pensions at 70, and Walker warned that a substantial deficit would result if the legislature lowered the age. The committee thus far has done nothing regarding a building program, Walker reported.

One Re-referred
One appropriation bill, a minor one relating to administering log boom fund, was re-referred to the committee. Four votes were cast against the appropriation of $1,087,000 for the state police; Ross, Burke, Stringer and Chaney. Walker said he would move today for reconsideration of this vote.

The senate passed the Angell bill making Washington's birthday a school holiday. The Hyde bill changing law on absentee voting was killed, also the Grant resolution to require members introducing measures "by request" to give the name of the sponsor of the legislation.

Around The Lobby

Happenings Around the Legislative Halls, Including Some That House and Senate Spectators Missed.

SPRING is coming. The windows of the army were opened yesterday for the first time since the session opened. The sun shined filtered through the smoke that rolled to the ceiling from the cigars and cigarettes of the law makers.

At the same time the warm days made the members just a bit restless. They are getting to the stage where temporary arrangements are getting short. Cognissance was taken of the fact yesterday when Representative Hannah Martin warned them that they were "keyed up" and should go a little slower in the passage of laws by giving cool and calm deliberation.

It amounts to almost a whispering vote on some measures in the house. On some measures, the representatives act as if by speaking softly they may not be heard by their fellow members—or perhaps lobbyists. And then they object when the reading clerk inadvertently records a vote wrong or asks them to re-register.

Representative Bood doesn't like to waste time. He is always willing to move the previous question in order to get bills voted on without lengthy debate.

Fair Trade Act Is Up in House Today

Planning Board, Education Appropriations Given Final Approval

Going into the home stretch of the seventh week of the session, the house ground out 19 bills yesterday but passed only one senate measure, leaving 24 senate measures on the calendar. Bills continued to be introduced though members admitted they believed the end to be getting near.

Much contested in the ways and means committee, the planning board appropriation of $30,000 passed the house without debate and only three dissenting votes. They were Representatives Hogan, Riddle and Staples.

Scheduled for airing today on a divided committee report is senate bill 103, known as the fair trade act. Representative Walker further brought in the minority report from the revision of laws committee that the bill do not pass.

Opponents of house bill 402 which would place a 2 1/2 per cent tax on annuity contracts succeeded after an hour's fight to have the bill re-referred to the committee for taxation and revenue. They charged that a fair hearing had not been given on the measure.

College Bill Scanned
The ways and means appropriation for higher education went under close scrutiny when Representative Hannah Martin objected to the continuing appropriation in the bill.

"This practice is wrong in principle," Mrs. Martin said. "The legislature should have some control over the higher education board. I am not opposed to the amount of the measure. I think it is reasonable but I do not approve of making the levy permanent for the board."

The attack failed after Representative Olen's motion to refer the bill to committee lost.

"The taxes to be raised for higher education are based on the 1929 inflated levy on real property," Olen said. "We should make the appropriation but find other sources of revenue instead of putting an additional burden on real estate."

Mrs. Elbert Bede came to town to spend a week and that's news. Mrs. Bede is as sensible as she is smart, and looks fine in spite of many years of hard work trying to fatten Elbert.

Many legislators look a night off Monday and attended the reserve officers' ball in the Crystal Gardens . . . and seemed to have a very good time.

Hard Liquors Tax Brought in Again

Levy Cut in Half But Beer Dispensers' License Is Added to Revenue

Portland police pension supporters won their first floor victory in the house today when they succeeded in having house bill 404 to levy a 10 per cent tax on hard liquors re-referred back to committee for amendment.

Representative William McAllister, Jackson, moved for the reference. He stated that the proponents wished to amend the bill to place the tax at five per cent instead of ten. The judiciary committee late in the day reported it in again with this change and with a beer dispenser's license of $50 added.

Representative Fatland opposed the bill and objected to it being sent back to the judiciary committee.

"How can you amend it to make it satisfactory when the foundation of the measure is rotten," Fatland shouted.

Representative Ronald Jones, Marion, declared the measure would take $700,000 from relief and pension funds.

Takes Nothing, Claim
This was denied by Representative Ray Alber, Multnomah, who said the tax would be in addition to the profits already made by the liquor commission for relief. He said that the 10 per cent tax would raise around $700,000.

and the five per cent tax half that amount.

Representative Barnes took the floor to urge that the bill be sent back to the committee for amendment.

"We in Portland are facing a difficult situation," Barnes said. "We can't retire our policemen because the pension fund is broke. There is nothing unfair in this bill. It just gives us an opportunity to work out of a bad situation."

The motion to re-refer carried by a 41 to 19 vote.
