Style - Smiles - - - by Gretchen

I'm sure you ladies are going to enjoy Mr. Hessler's fearless talk on hydrangeas.

The girls in your garden club will cast an appraising and authoritative eye on the foliage blooming so riotously on this redingote ensemble. The blooms may defy strict classification but there's no denying their beauty and smartness. The simplest of simple dresses, a blouse with a riot of blossoms beneath a lightweight woolen coat is enhanced immeasurably with tuxedo revers of the same exciting stuff. With admirable restraint Madam Chairman resists the temptation of a flower laden hat and wears the simplest and severest of sailors!

Colors Arrive in Full Assortment for New Spring Footwear

EVERYBODY is looking down these spring days—down at the brand new colors and styles in shoes. It's the very-very to have toes showing through the tips of sandals, although the style has been a long time getting here. The sandal borders on the oxford style with plenty of ankle support but with an open toe, suitable for street wear.

But the big attraction is the variety of color offered in shoes for spring and summer. "Multi-colored" they call them, and many colors they are. Oxfords or sandals are made with sections of many hues, as many as 6 shades such as green, tan, brown, blue, wine and grey. Some are only two colors.

Materials run to either suede-finish leathers, gabardine, linen and white patent leather. The latter bids fair to be one of the more popular leathers in mid-summer shoes.

Now take gabardine for instance, the shoe man assured me it wears well, keeps color, is cool in summer and warm in winter. (I didn't believe quite that!) and is comfortable to wear. All colors in gabardine are good except grey, and it's recommended that suede is better to buy if that's the color wanted.

Leading colors in the order of their favor are blue, gray, brown, the more unusual hues such as reds, and multi-colors, and greens.

Pennsylvanians Give Good Recipes

Scrapple is one of those dishes, like Scotch shortbread and Italian spaghetti, that brings forth a storm of individual recipes from the good cooks who specialize in these dishes. Every maker of scrapple has her own formula and each section of the district puts in a different seasoning. Scrapple is a special dish appreciated mostly by descendants of the Pennsylvania German colonies (we used to say Pennsylvania Dutch).

Here is a recipe for scrapple, a good dish to have for winter breakfasts or suppers. It makes a large recipe and may be cut down. It isn't, I'll admit, a typical Pennsylvania recipe, but it has been adapted for wider use.

SCRAPPLE
Boil 1 1/2 pounds liver in water. When done remove it and add enough water to broth to make 1 quart. Bring broth to boiling point, slowly add cup cornmeal and cook until mixture thickens like mush. In the meantime chop meat in cubes and when cornmeal is done add meat, salt, thyme and other seasoning. Pour in dripping pan and when cold slice and fry in fat.

Rye meal is an ingredient in the regular down east recipe, and might be added to your next batch.

Sunday Morning Meal Includes Bananas

Sunday morning breakfast, or some other day when there's time to enjoy something more than a piece of toast and a cup of coffee, could easily include such dishes as:

Banana balls in bran
Coffee crumb cake
Fried apple rings
Sautéed kidneys
Kidneys are sliced thin, mem-

Markets Offer Abundance of Fresh Fish

SALEM families can go a good way many Fridays without a repetition of fish-main dishes in the present supply of (finny treasures remains in market. Off-hand the only thing I didn't see was shrimp in the shells, but shelled shrimp are abundant.

Spanish mackerel is less usual than many of the other offerings. Lobster in a colorful shellfish displayed in local stores; ling cod, sole, flannel-haddock and salmon are abundant.

Columbia river smelt is another specialty, inexpensive and popular in early spring, and seen abundantly in the market today.

Fresh herring is in the fish-man's windows and makes an excellent fried supper dish.

Clams, Olympia and eastern oysters, crab meat, are the shellfish available.

Bloaters, to soak overnight and heat through in a cream sauce are ready for the breakfast table.

Today's Menu

Fresh or canned clams are on the menu for today in a pie recipe. Here is the meal.

Asparagus salad
Clam pie
Buttered broccoli
Banana custard pudding

BOSTON CIAM PIE
2 onions
2 cups minced clams
1 small onion sliced
1 cup water
1 cup diced potatoes
1 tablespoon butter

Salt, pepper and celery salt
Cook potatoes and onion in the water until soft. Add drained clams, and juice that has been thickened slightly. Add butter, seasoning and mix lightly. Line a pie pan with plain pastry, put in filling and top with another crust. Bake in a hot oven about 15 minutes or more to cook crust. This serves about six persons.

Some cooks prefer to mash more potatoes and use a crust for the top of the pie. In that case, there is no under crust and the pie is made in a deeper dish.

brance removed and dipped in flour. Frying very quickly makes the meat tender.

Dumplings Go In

Mashed potato dumplings are good cooked with stew or other gravy-like meat dish.

POTATO DUMPLINGS
2 cups mashed potatoes
3 eggs
salt nutmeg
6 tablespoons flour

Mix, stir well and drop by spoonful in the gravy. Cover tightly and cook until done. Especially good with chicken fricassee.

Chicken Livers in Sandwiches

Canned chicken livers are good mashed and used for sandwich spread, excellent alternated with bacon and a mushroom on a skewer and broiled under a flame, or creamed and served in patte cases for a very dressy luncheon.
