

House Speeds Up; Plans Night Session, Gag Rule Is Invoked

Security Bills Upon Calendar

Changes in Knox Law Are Voted; Pinball Bill's Revisions Oked

With the controversial old age assistance act out of the way the house put on the so-called "gag" rule, limiting debate, yesterday afternoon and swung into action on its 192-bill calendar. By working until 5:30 o'clock 46 house and senate measures were passed. Today there will be 64 bills and resolutions up for final action. In an effort to clear the calendar the house will hold its first night meeting of the session tonight.

The resolution limiting debate was adopted without debate and the rule put into immediate effect. Under its members are entitled to speak for only five minutes on a measure and may have only one five-minute period yielded to them. The resolution stated that the rule was necessary in order to speed the enactment of legislation and to bring an early end to the session.

An echo of the debate on the old age assistance bill will come up in the house this morning as the house takes up consideration of the balance of the social security bill. They are also to take up and blind assistance measure together with administrative bills and appropriations and are not expected to stir much argument.

Road Fund Bill Up

Scheduled for a special order of business at 10:30 o'clock is the adverse report of the committee on the bill by Representative Thomas to provide for diversion of $2,600,000 from highway revenues to the use of cities and counties.

The blanket amendment bill to the Knox liquor act which was recommended by the Oregon liquor control commission passed the house after short debate by a 59-9 vote.

Most important changes in the law are those to permit entertainment in establishments where beer is sold and to permit the sale of alcoholic liquors on trains. The rest were administrative changes.

Animals Objects

Representative Antrim, Washington, was the only member speaking against the measure.

"I could not go home without raising my voice against the liquor traffic," Antrim said. "The liquor interests told us when they were seeking repeal that they would clean house. Have they done it? No! They have not only failed to clean house but they have a dirtier mess than ever before."

"This is not a question of prohibition," Representative Barnes said. "These amendments are made with the approval of the commission and of every business that I know anything about."

"They are vast improvements over the original act which was passed in 1933 as an amendment."

Hospital Addition

Approval was given to a measure providing for the construction of a 50-bed addition to the Eastern Oregon tuberculosis hospital. A bill was also passed to make it unlawful for any person under 21 years of age to misrepresent his or her age.

The bill was said to be necessary as a curb on minors who seek to buy beer and wine by misstating their age when applying to purchase the alcoholic drinks.

Final action taken by the house before adjournment was to concur in the senate amendments to Representative Martin's anti-slot machine bill and to re-pass the bill. The bill now goes to the governor. At the same time they laid Representative Barnes' good-time bill on the table to study the senate amendments to it.

Also laid on the table was senate bill 48 which had been re-passed by the senate over the veto of the governor. It is the first bill which has been vetoed during the session.

Goat Aids Refugees From Flood

Their goat proved of assistance in more ways than one to this pair of refugees when they hitch-hiked from the flood district near Fayetteville, Ark., to Kansas. Not only did "Nanny" provide milk for the hikers, but she also attracted the curiosity of motorists and aided her owners in getting "lifts".

Around The Lobby

PEACE—or at least an armistice—settled over the house yesterday afternoon after the passage of the old age assistance measure in the morning. All the members, both for and against the age reduction, were glad to have the bill out of the way and went to work sawing wood on the very full calendar.

To speed things along a resolution limiting debate to a maximum of 10 minutes was adopted with no opposition. The same attempt last week stirred a storm of protest from the pension advocates.

Then to move things along still faster, the speaker adopted the method of signing bills before the session and then merely making the announcement that he was about to sign and then that he had signed certain bills, without making the members wait while he actually signed the measures. This method has been used by the president of the senate all during the session.

Students of the Woodburn schools were visitors at the session yesterday while the debate on the old age pension reports was being held.

Incidentally the debate yesterday was the longest of any that has yet been held, the house giving the whole morning to the measure, with the voting coming just before the morning adjournment.

Representative Walter Norblad was given the privilege of ruling over the debate. He sat in the speaker's chair all during the afternoon.

Lower Pension Limit Favored

Vote Is 35-24 For Both Minority Report and Final Adoption

also good business to get federal funds for old age assistance. Cost Is Stressed Representative Eason opposed the minority report on the grounds that neither the state nor the counties are in a position to pay the increased costs.

"If you reduce the age limit and increase the pensions it will increase the cost to the state by $3,300,000 and of the counties by over $225,524. They can't afford it," he said.

Under the bill, the counties will bear one-sixth of the total cost of the pensions and the state one-third with the balance being made up by the federal government. At present the state and county match the cost funds equally.

Representative Jones, a member of the ways and means committee, said that he had not joined in either report before the house. He said that one bill was too drastic and that the other did not go far enough.

Governor Quoted As Favoring Bill

Representative Bull in closing challenged any member who had been told by the governor that he opposed the bill. He then quoted from statements of the governor and ended with the declaration that "by his own statements the governor is in favor of this measure."

The roll call on the passage of the bill was: Ayer, Allen, Anttila, Barnes, Bowers, Bood, Brady, Bull, Cady, Carter, Dawson, Deich, Eckerley, Erwin, Eason, Harrison, Higgs, Hockett, Hogan, Hoeh, Hyde, Jeannot, Jennings, Jones, Kimberling, Laird, Mahoney, McKinney, Miller, Norblad, Olsen, Roth, Thomas, Wagner, Wilkinson.

No: Bennett, Duerst, Engdahl, Fatland, French, Friede, Fuhrer, Grant, Hughes, Leach, Livesley, Magruder, Martin, McAllister, Munroe, Norman, Riddle, Semon, Stapleton, Stephenson, Turner, Walker, Young, Bolton.

Nevertheless the house took on a lighter atmosphere as the members were preparing for the end of the session. Cameraderie was freer than it has been since early in the session.

Representative Hannah Martin was too busy yesterday afternoon to attend the house session. She was spending her time in the senate watching the progress of her slot machine and pinball bill. After it passed she returned to the house to get approval of senate amendments and another battle against the slot machine lobbyists had been won by the chairman of the house health and public morals committee.

Judge W. A. Ekwall, former congressman from Multnomah, looked in on the session yesterday.

Rex Balentine, five-year old son of the Klamath Falls senator, drew much attention from members yesterday, also from the stenographers. Bright chap.

Ripples of mischief followed Staples' "no" on the anti-pinball bill for Staples is the arch-enemy of gambling. He recovered his understanding quickly to change his vote to "aye."

Busy newsmen working for pm papers, get cross when their copy goes haywire. Don Caswell, UP man, was winding up his story on the debate over HB 16, the prison good time bill, when suddenly it was referred to committee, so his story was. Don tore his sheet out of the typewriter.

Young democrats have a staunch worker in Mrs. Dorothy Klotman, secretary to Sen. Pearson. She loves politics, quickly caught the ropes of the senate.

State Treasurer Holman got the laugh on himself when the Marion house detective queried him on his signing of thereabouts Thursday morning.

When it was learned the legislature in passing a bill amending the state emergency board had left off the chairman of the ways and means committee, Dean Walker, able senator from the Polk-Benton district, corrective legislation was immediately prepared.

County Judge Herron of Benton county, former representative, was in the lobby Thursday, taking a little time from the valley booster meeting.

Earl Hill was back from Cushman, worried because some fisherman had "cut a hole in the net" on a compromise bill for the Umpqua.

Constipated 30 Years

Now I am healthy, handsome, go, anything I want and never feel tired. I sleep soundly all night and enjoy life."

would encourage illicit relations. Strayer said he would favor it if all western states had it. The bill passed.

Future Convicts Given Recognition

The badly battered HB 16 by Barnes to give good time allowance to prisoners passed just before noon but not until it had been sent to the operating room for a fresh bit of surgery, grafting on the clause that the allowance should extend to future prisoners too. Senators urged its passage to keep faith with the convicts and to provide hope for them as a basis of good discipline. Bennett asserted it was unconstitutional.

The Balentine bill on plats of subdivisions in irrigation districts was passed over the governor's veto.

A house bill to provide qualifications for librarians was killed; also the Thomas bill for licensing fur dealers.

Sen. Strayer withdrew his bill for a chain store tax.

When the appropriation for planning board was up, eight senators voted against the bill: Balentine, Bennett, Burke, Spaulding, Strayer, Stringer, Ellis and Francisovich.

Recommended by the governor, the bill to create a department of mines and geology was passed by the senate, having previously passed the house. It carries an appropriation of $100,000 and permits grubstaking miners up to $50 a year.

She mimicked the customers in a department store. So the manager fired her.

But today Sara Berner, young brown-eyed, good-looking brunette, appears before thousands of persons, travels throughout America and makes more than five times the weekly salary she earned as a saleslady—by mimicking.

Bowes Unit Will Come Next Week

Miss Berner studied drama two years at Tulsa University in Oklahoma, but family reverses forced her to quit college. Department store salesgirl, she got into mimicking in New York. . . . Job in department store. . . . stage frightened amateur broadcasting to millions of listeners. . . . a nod from Major Bowes. . . . show-girl. . . . that's the Horatio Alger story of Sara Berner to date.

With other cleverly talented young women on the same bill, the Bowes all-girl unit promises to be outstanding among stage presentations.
