University Topic As Rotary Meets

The Salem Rotary club heard Anse Cornell manager of athletics at the University of Oregon, Ralph Schomp, manager of the educational student activities at the university, and Gilbert Schults, president of the associated students, relate the effort of the university to operate under the optional fee plan.

Schults declared the institutions were endeavoring to get along to the best of their ability. He said there was a greatly improved feeling between the university and state colleges, and told that after the basketball game next Friday night students of both schools would have a mixer called a "lemon-orange squeeze."

George Varhoff, who recently set a new record of 14 feet 4 1/2 inches for indoor pole vault at Boston, spoke briefly. He credited Bill Hayward, varsity track coach, with bringing up his form.
