McKay Damage Award Fought

Motion for Disqualifying Of Counter-Claim Is Filed Here Monday

The jury verdict which awarded Douglas McKay, Inc., $222.63 counter-damages in the circuit court case of Ringwald vs. McKay and Dean R. Adams Saturday was attacked in a motion filed here yesterday by Lawrence Osterman as attorney for the plaintiff.

Basis of Federal Grant Is Changed

The basis of federal participation on public works projects has been altered, according to information received yesterday from Senator McNary. Instead of a straight grant of 45 per cent as on former PWA enterprises the new plan, as outlined by Secretary Ickes, is for the federal government to pay all the wages of labor on approved projects, where the men are taken from the relief rolls, plus 15 per cent. The maximum allotment is 45 per cent of the total cost. Under this plan no contribution is made for materials or other labor.

This ruling would affect projects like new state buildings but not projects already under way, such as the new state capitol. The Marion county courthouse would also be affected by the new regulation, which is general in character.

Court members declared they had attempted to conduct road operations for the benefit of local truck owners and had even made work for them during bad times. Hiring, it was pointed out, was left to the engineer and foremen with the expectation the men most capable and closest to the jobs would be employed. In regard to the Rigdon contract, it was stated that Rigdon, whose quarry was the only available rock source, had refused to take the contract unless he could employ his own men, who were understood to live in Marion county.

Division of Truck Work Now Sought

Protest that county work was not being distributed evenly among truck owners in the county was registered before the county court yesterday by R. W. Skoppl, who said he represented seven truck owners. Operations of a contractor named Rigdon, who supplied rock in the north end of the county from a quarry in Clackamas county were especially objected to.

Court members declared they had attempted to conduct road operations for the benefit of local truck owners and had even made work for them during bad times. Hiring, it was pointed out, was left to the engineer and foremen with the expectation the men most capable and closest to the jobs would be employed. In regard to the Rigdon contract, it was stated that Rigdon, whose quarry was the only available rock source, had refused to take the contract unless he could employ his own men, who were understood to live in Marion county.

Missing Convicts Sought, Portland

Penitentiary guards went to Portland Monday to assist officers there in searching for Jack Young, 25, and Claude Twigger, 30, who escaped from the prison here yesterday morning.

The truck in which the convicts made their escape was found in Portland Sunday night and was returned to the institution yesterday.

Both men were serving terms from Multnomah county and had been trustees for two years.

Warden Lewis said Young had a number of friends in the Albina district and probably was in hiding there.

Reimann Gardens To Be Developed

Development of Reimann Gardens, a 30-acre subdivision located 2 1/2 miles from the north Salem city limits, will be officially started Saturday of this week, with first lots available on that date.

Rich L. Reimann, realtor and owner, announced yesterday "open house" at the tracts will be held Saturday of this week, with the public invited to drive out and view the gardens.

The tracts are located in a choice site a short distance off the Portland highway on the second road to the right past the Hayesville schoolhouse.

With demand for Salem suburban tracts lively now, Reimann believes it will not take buyers long to take up the entire subdivision. Electricity and gas are available, and some of the tracts have fine fruit trees, he says.

County May Gain New Rock Supply

The county court may obtain a much-desired source of crushed rock for roads in the eastern end of the county as a result of a conference members had yesterday with Louis DeSantis, strawberry grower in the Silver creek section. County Engineer Hubbs is to examine rock deposits available on the DeSantis place.

Charles Hoyt would operate the quarry to supply both the county and commercial users and possibly the federal government.

DeSantis said he had a lease from the national park service for the Silver Falls recreation area development but had not yet been called upon to furnish any rock. He has additional deposits upon which the county could draw.
