Card Lined Up For Amateurs

Traglio and Quisenberry, Quamme and Baughman In Headline Bouts

Webb Traglio, Salem Y. M. C. A. 160-pounder, will meet Roy Quisenberry, Portland amateur boxer, and Bob Quamme, scrappy Salem 120-pound fighter, with the gangplank track coming up the main event of the two top events of the Y. M. C. A.'s second amateur card of the season at 8 o'clock tonight.

Quisenberry, a brother of Clyde Quisenberry, E. B. S. instructor, is one of the best Portland amateurs in his weight and is said to be a better fighter than Cecil Boettcher, who decided Traglio several weeks ago. Traglio will be in better condition for his fight tonight than he was against Boettcher as he has been working out steadily for three weeks.

Battle Royal Again

The two main events will be of five rounds or less—duration while all others will be three. Cliff Nelson, Portland scrapper who was to have fought Bob Quamme, will be matched instead with Alvin Richardson of the Salem team in one of the three-rounders. A number of other Salem boxers, and a few from the Chemawa Indian school will be provided with Portland opponents.

As a special feature the group of Willamette gridders who staged a laugh-provoking burlesque of a professional boxing match will make a return appearance after several days of rehearsal. They are led by Tots (The Mad Russian) Yada.

Crowd Turns Out But Financiers Failed to Get Simon-Pure Passports So No Game; Rubenstein's in Tournery

A FAIRLY good-sized crowd of basketball fans went out to the Parrish gymnasium last night to see a basketball game between General Finance and Rubenstein's of Eugene for the district A. A. U. title but there wasn't any basketball game and as far as General Finance was concerned there wasn't any title.

General Finance was ruled ineligible for the state A. A. U. tournament when their application blanks (and fees, of course) failed to come through on schedule and Rubenstein's was invited by the Portland A. A. U. heads to come to the tournament without bothering to play General Finance. So no game was necessary.

Misunderstanding of the A. A. U. arrangements, which required that all team members be registered with the A. A. U. by noon yesterday, caused General Finance's predicament. Intending to file their registrations if and when they beat Rubenstein's, the General Finance team had the impression that its fees were acceptable any time up to the beginning of the Portland tournament.

No Points Stretched Reminded again Saturday night by Commissioner Phil Bell that their applications and 25 cent fees were due, not all the team members could be found and Manager Kenneth Potts decided to wait until today, hoping that the A. A. U. would stretch a point. The A. A. U. would not stretch a point and Charles G. Walker, Portland A. A. U. head, phoned Bell at noon yesterday and informed him that General Finance might as well forget its game with Rubenstein's since the Eugene team would be invited to represent the district in the tournament.

Braddock's Boss Speaks

By BURNLEY. "Joe Gould is taking the Louis fight for strictly business reasons. Says Joe: 'A schmeling bout would be lucky to be empty. I draw $200,000 and Jim would be left holding the bag. But we can get half a million with Louis.' '2 years of idleness has us up to our necks in bills.' 'I wouldn't look out for his financial interests and see that he takes the best offer. Jim doesn't care who he fights—he'd get in there against the Navy and the Marines if I told him to tomorrow.' 'The little manager finishes in an optimistic vein: 'Schmeling won't be left out in the cold. We'll take care of the Dutchman after we polish off Louis. Max will get his chance in September.' That's Gould's story, and he's stuck on it. Copyright, 1937, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Baer Walkout Now Indicated

Maxie May Go to Europe, Cash in Instead of Meeting Pastor

NEW YORK, March 1.—(AP)—Max Baer probably will answer Madison Square Garden's threat to legal action if he doesn't fight Bob Pastor March 12, by walking up the gangplank Wednesday and sailing to London for two fights and around $50,000.

That's the way the Baer-Garden dispute shaped up today, using however, only outward signs as a gauge on what's going on inside. John Reed Kilpatrick, president of Madison Square Garden corporation, stated emphatically the Garden intends to "go the limit" to force Baer and his manager, Anell Hoffman, to live up to their part of the contract to fight the man who stayed 10 rounds with Joe Louis.

It may be the Garden is glad of the opportunity to test the validity of its contract, using the outcome, perhaps, as a barometer of what to expect when the eighth avenue corporation goes to the courts to halt Jim Braddock from meeting Louis in Chicago.
