Resent Party Leverages Applied by Roosevelt in Victory Speech

Strategy for the committee hearings which begin next week also was discussed at today's meeting. The first opposition witness has been selected and has agreed to appear, but the senators would not disclose his

It developed, however, that the democratic opposition had asked Senator Stelwer (R.-Ore.) and Senator Borah (R.-Ida.) to undertake the crossexamination of Attorney-General Cummings when he supports the president's bill before the committee next Wednesday. Informed legislators said both Steiwer and Borah had declined, in accordance with a republican strategy which is leaving the brunt of the opposition to members of the president's own party.

Making Majority Elective Officers Is Purpose; Warning Is Given

A bill which would reduce county relief committees from seven members to five was approved by the joint ways and means committee after a public hearing. The bill is up for passage in the house today.

The county court or county commissioners, and two persons appointed by the governor would comprise the committee. The governor now appoints four of seven W. C. Parker, chairman of the Oregon Truckmen's association, charged that the present committees, with the majority of members appointive, were inclined to "pass the buck." Wants Responsibility "Let's have the county courts or commissioners responsible and then we can get some action because we elect these men," Park-

Opponents contended that the county courts or commissions, with elections involved, might make a political issue of administration of relief. "Under the acts of this session our social security program will have large expenses with limited revenue," said C. C. Chapman, Portland publisher. "We need efficient operation. This bill would wipe out the setup of men who understand conditions and open up political possibilities."
